Eastern Washington University

EWU Digital Commons

Life During COVID: Preserving Personal Pandemic Stories

Eastern Washington University Digital History Collections

6-4-2021

Contentment poems

Joy E. Krumdiack

Follow this and additional works at: https://dc.ewu.edu/covid

Recommended Citation

Krumdiack, Joy E., "Contentment poems" (2021). Life During COVID: Preserving Personal Pandemic Stories. 25.

https://dc.ewu.edu/covid/25

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Eastern Washington University Digital History Collections at EWU Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Life During COVID: Preserving Personal Pandemic Stories by an authorized administrator of EWU Digital Commons. For more information, please contact jotto@ewu.edu.

BE CONTENT

If I have learned anything in this year, In altered plans I should not shed a tear. Be content with what I have or have not; Because what I have may be all I've got.

I've listened to advice; changes are made.
To get ill from COVID, I'm not afraid.
Wash my hands, social distance, wear a mask;
Stay home, stay healthy is my only task.

I'm retired, and have no places to go.
I can stay in the comfort of home SO...
If you look for me, home is where I'll be,
And will be keeping "busy as a bee".

Projects to do, saved for that "rainy day";

Meetings scheduled in a virtual way.

Can my life get any better than this?

YES! COVID could leave; that would be true bliss.

joy e krumdiack written in Spring 2020

CONTENT

It's been quite a year and a little more
That I thought there was a lock on the door.
It was on the outside keeping me in;
Holding me hostage without and within.

I was happy in a world all my own; Ticking off my to-do-list that had grown. I was creative in writing and art; Accomplishing projects dear to my heart.

It didn't matter the weather or day, I was happy in ev'ry little way, Seeing my projects from start to finish; Being successful helped me to flourish.

And as the world began to overcome;
As turning from darkness to light was welcome.
I have now determined to continue.
Peace and happiness is long overdue.

joy e krumdiack written in May 2021