Appearance of a name on this program is presumptive evidence of graduation, but it must not in any sense be regarded as conclusive. The diploma of the College, signed and sealed by its proper officers, remains the official testimony of the possession of the degree.

Reception

Dr. and Mrs. Shuck cordially invite the parents, friends and faculty to attend a reception honoring the Winter Session, 1974 graduating class in the second floor lounge of Pence Union Building immediately following commencement exercises.

Academic Costume

The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given that the audience might more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors are black, plain with long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. The arm goes through a slit, giving the appearance of short sleeves for the master's gown. Doctor's gowns are black and are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. These bars represent each academic degree and may only be worn by those individuals who have earned the doctorate at an accredited institution of higher education. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hood and indicates the department of faculty to which the degree pertains. The doctors hood is four feet in length and has velvet edging five inches in width. The masters hood is three and one half feet in length with three inch edging, and the bachelor hood is three feet in length with two inch edging.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Arts and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King's court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Blue, the color of wisdom and truth is shared by philosophy, education, communications, radio & tv, and public administration. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Education in Mathematics should be light blue representing education, rather than golden yellow representing science.
