Student Consent Not Necessary

Objective information regarding a student's record—including the fact that he has withdrawn from a class—may be released without consent of the student.

Dean of Students Daryl Hagie made that statement this week following much confusion and criticism of faculty members who released signed statements at the end of fall quarter concerning the fact that Associated Student President Clint Hill had dropped a number of his classes.

Hagie added, however, that objectivity depends to an extent on the purpose for which the information is sought. Along with President Emerson Shuck, Hagie also stressed the importance of preserving the confidential relationship between student and college.

Registrar Donald G. Manson advised that while records are available to faculty and administrative officers, his office

Pres Hill Responds to Charges

Clint Hill, Associated Students president, in an interview at his office last week, said that the facts pertaining to his withdrawal from some of his classes during fall quarter have been misrepresented.

The matter of class withdrawal, Hill said, was not a whimsical, spur-of-the-moment undertaking, but the result of a decision arrived at after having received counseling does not release information to anyone else without consent of the student.

In referring to the recent incident involving student records, Manson subsequent to a chain of events that left him unable to fully cope with his heavy schedule.

In discussing his decision, Hill said that during a period in late October and early November, at a time when he was deeply involved in A.S.—spending as many as six to twelve hours a day at the office, thus neglecting his marriage. His wife left said that Clint Hill's grades were obtained from faculty members by an A.S. officer in what appeared to be an underhanded method. He didn't elaborate further.

Manson also stated that Hill withdrew from his classes for serious personal reasons and the resulting situation has caused him a great deal of embarrassment.

The following regulations are those most relevant to the current campus climate:

1. When a student enters a college or university and provides the institution with personal information to facilitate the educational process, a relationship of confidentiality is established between the student and

STUDENTS BOARDING THE 'MAGIC BUS' take advantage of the Associated Students' answer to icy roads and limited campus parking. The bus service, contracted by the Spokane City Lines, has been in operation for a week and has met with instant success, even causing its originators to begin to worry about making a profit for their non-profit organization.

'Magic Bus' Termed Successful

'Magic Bus' Service from Spokane to Cheney and back again has been a definite success, as termed by John Allen, off-campus representative, who took part in the development of the service.

Approximately 213 tickets have been sold for the half quarter, and it is not known yet how many single tickets have been sold, but commuters agree that the buses are full almost all the time.

Several times the buses have been late arriving in Cheney making many of the riders late for morning classes. "But they're going to see what they can do," said John Allen.

The people of Cheney may take these buses, but it is not on a first come first serve basis, said Allen. "We are catering to the students." There will be no advertising of the rides for towns people. If a profit is made by the school, it will have to be limited exclusively to the students.

The entire idea originated with Bill Mustard, and in his own words, it has been a "fantastic success, better than we could have hoped for."

The exact number of riders since the system began has not been determined as of yet, but soon will be, said Allen. He, too, agrees that the system up until now has been a definite success.

Starting this weekend, there will be a trial run of a bus on Saturday for students who live in Spokane and would like to use the library facilities here in Cheney, and for students living in the dorms who would like to ride into Spokane. It will be run for three weeks to see how it works out on the schedule at the left.

This schedule will be run for three weeks at least to determine the success of such a schedule.

INDIFFERENCE SHOWS

All of the with it college students—the ones of the new, better informed, more involved generation—know that student power is the power that moves the establishment.

Their only dilemma is to discover how best to go about it. The alternatives are simple. You either move outside the established means, tear them down and build your own, or you move within them.

Students elsewhere tried the first method. They found out it led inevitably to lumpy heads and bloody nose. They fought back for a while, until the fight got a little too rough and some of their own started killing off their buddies. Maybe now is the time for the second.

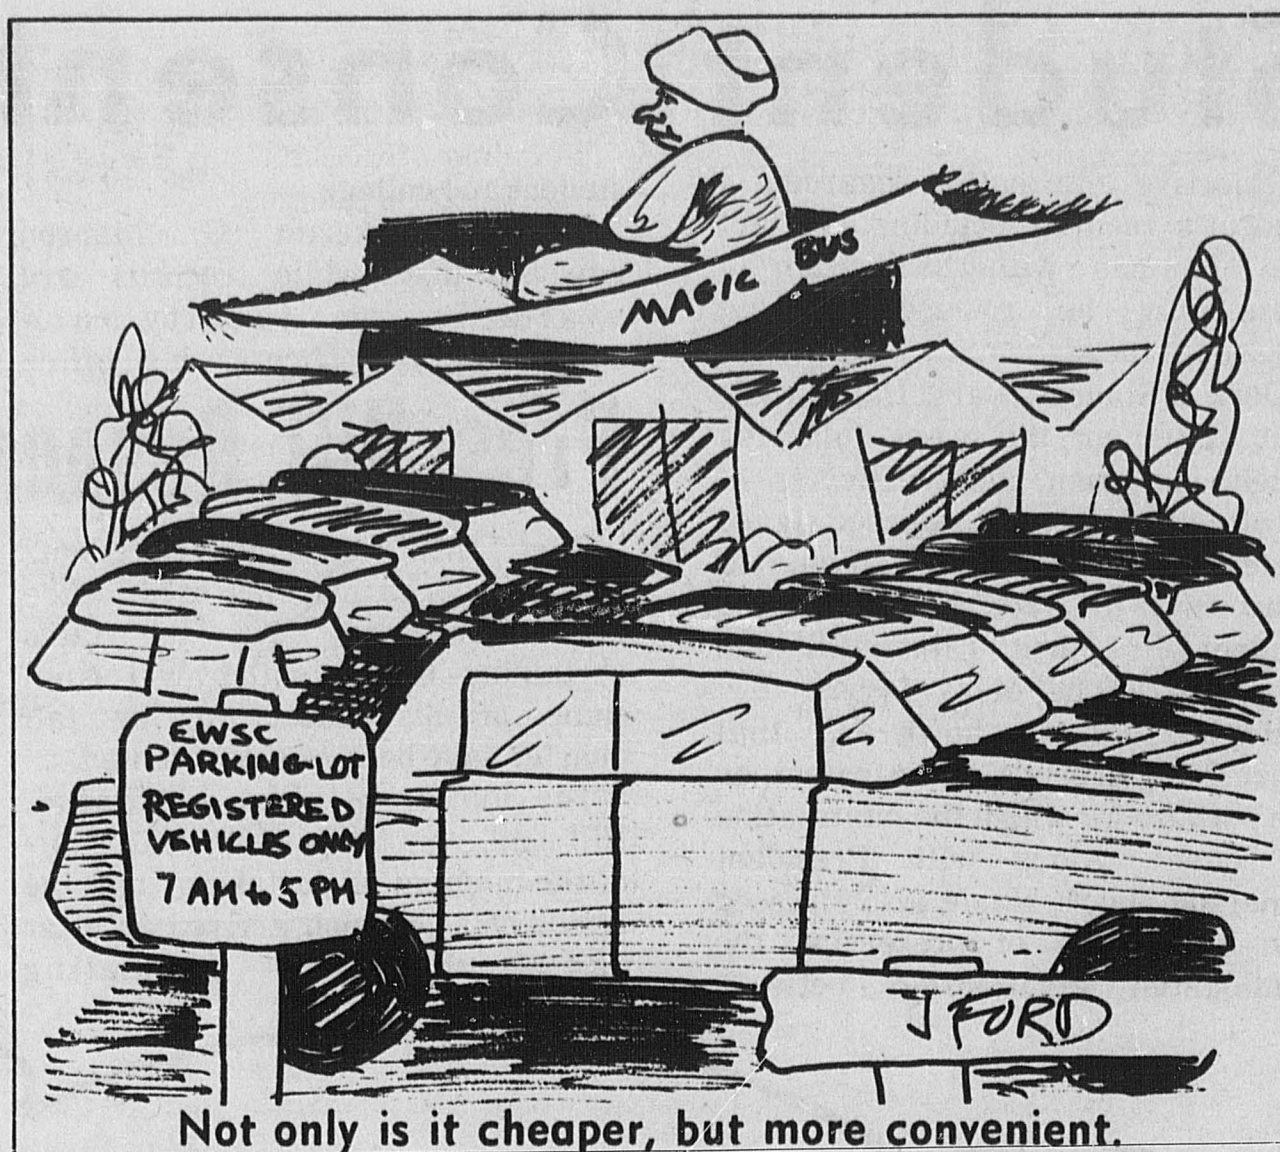

There is a paid position open within student government that could be one of the most potent on campus—legislative action chairman. All that is needed is one of the new, better informed, more involved generation, but such a commodity seems to be hard to come by around here it seems. Though the job has been open since the beginning of the quarter, it has not been filled.

It is through the voice of this person that the voice of the students at Eastern can make themselves heard in the state legislature. And it is the state legislature that will, this term, consider such items as tuition and fee increases, limiting enrollment and bills on how to keep the students in line.

Yet there seems to be no one to take the job. The legislative action chairman travels frequently to Olympia to speak directly to the legislators. He (or she) will be in touch with similar persons on the other campuses throughout the state, aiding in coordinating a unified student front to present a unified student view to the men who will control the destiny of the colleges in the state. He will be the voice to the students telling them what their legislature is doing.

Yet there seems to be no one to take the job.

Not only is it cheaper, but more convenient.

HILL AFFIRMS FREE PRESS

Just after the speech by F. Lee Bailey last fall, A.S. President Clint Hill made a statement that has come to mean more than he was given credit for when he made it.

"I learned something from Bailey's speech," Hill said. "He said that no matter how biased, how unfair or how sensational the mass news media may be, its freedom must not be impaired if we are to insure a free society."

While The Easterner does not feel it has been biased or unfair in its treatment of Hill in the past, it would be understandable (though perhaps not justified) if Hill were to regret uttering those words.

Yet, at the last meeting of the Publications Commission, Hill reaffirmed his belief in that statement. Certain members of the Commission felt some kind of censoring action should be taken for what they felt were unwarranted attacks on Hill in The Easterner.

Hill, however, stood up and said that, though he too felt the paper had been unnecessarily harsh on him, he did not feel any action should be taken against the newspaper.

Hill and the Easterner have not always agreed about everything. But he must be admired for his ability to allow those differences to take second place to his conviction that the press should be allowed to remain free to report what it feels the community has a right and a need to know.

Letters to the Editor

Ellis Retorts

Editor,

While I defend the right of Paul Wilson and Dennis Brandt to comment upon my actions as A. S. Vice President, I believe, in all fairness, those comments should be accurate.

1) Their letter speaks of a bid for A. S. President on my part. I am no longer a candidate for A. S. President.

2) The A. S. Council did not approve the Student Publications Commission Statement two months ago. It was passed last year.

3) I did not agree the student legislature could not write a guideline for the Focus, only that it could not select the editor. I was and am consistent in that position.

4) I have consistently supported, and pushed for, a peaceful decision-making process and warned that to frustrate such a process could cause violence. Their reference to my statement of January 4th is a distortion of the point made in it: that I am pushing for a peaceful decision making process that responds to legitimate requests and grievances of students. Believing the statement is its own best defense I request that you reprint it in full with this letter.

Bruce Ellis,
A. S. Vice President

(Editor's Note: Excerpts from that statement follow.)

Those of us in student leadership positions who have attempted to use the system to adopt a Student Bill of Rights have found that often the domineering personality of administrators blocks the efforts of campus leaders...More often, the outright disregard and disrespect of members of the faculty, administration and Board of Trustees for students creates an atmosphere that causes student leaders to "what's the use?"

The deletion of the student rights, responsibilities and conduct code causes me to ask "what's the use?" We have used the peaceful decision making process to its full extent and found it does not work. There are but two choices left. To give up and drop out as so many "Hippies" have done, or to use the alternative to the peaceful decision making process, violence, as more and more students urge. How I wish we had a peaceful decision making process that responded to the legitimate requests and grievances of students.

Who Decides?

Editor,

Young men have no voice in deciding when we shall go to war; they have no voice in deciding who shall be drafted to fight the war. I would propose that we change the draft in the following way.

When a boy becomes 18, he would register for the draft. When a citizen reaches the income of $41,000 (congressional salary) he registers for the draft. Each boy the institution. This relationship of confidentiality is equally applicable to information generated during a student's enrollment.

The development of mutual trust between a student and an institution is essential to the educational process and to the development of the individual student as an educated person. When information acquired for the basic purpose of facilitating the educational process is made available to private individuals, public agencies or investigatory bodies without the student's consent, the basic purpose for acquiring the information is compromised.

2. The concept of a confidential relationship between the student and his college is supported by the principles of freedom of speech, freedom of association and the right of privacy. Students, as other citizens, are entitled to hold unpopular views, to engage in lawful assembly and to participate in lawful protests without fear of reprisal.

If students are to gain a genuine respect for the constitution and a commitment to the protection of the rights of citizenship, they must learn from their own experience that these rights are never abridged without due cause.

3. Objective information of a public nature will be provided without a singed release by the student.

4. The general principles of academic freedom are accepted as governing the relationships within the entire college community while legal obligations and responsibilities are recognized.

Reasons Given For Dropping

him, (they have since reconciled their differences), he injured his shoulder (an accident which brought about the incomplete in SCUBA), he was involved with a continuing feud with the A.S. Vice President and he made the decision to seek counseling.

Hill said he did not work in secret, nor was his course of action "unbeknownst." He said he worked through and with the help of faculty and administration—receiving counseling from the counseling center and from Dr. Daryl Hagie, dean of students, who says he believes Hill made "a wise choice."

Hill acknowledged that the student body in general had no way of knowing of his current academic standing, but said that many of his fellow officers were well aware of it—that his situation was becoming common knowledge. Secretary Verdene Jenks said "He never made any secret of it."

The question of Hill's presidential eligibility was decided not so much on academic standing as on the official definition of a student. Dr. Henry-York Steiner, dean of undergraduate programs, defines a student as being "one who is involved in studies with the faculty of the college."

In a more complete definition, Registrar Donald G. Manson says, "The student would continue to be classified as a student as long as he was officially registered and the quarter was in session. A student remains a student as long as there is a faculty-student relationship...The assignment of an incomplete grade does not terminate the faculty-student relationship."

Evans' Pinch Felt At Eastern

Effects of Governor Daniel Evans' budget request for the 1971-72 biennium will be a general state-wide tightening of the belt, with the state's four-year colleges, including Eastern, feeling their share of the pinch.

Eastern's president Emerson Shuck outlined those pinches which will apply to Eastern. Included are a raise in tuition (from $120 per quarter to $149), a limit on funded enrollment, a halt to all building not yet begun (with one exception) and no salary increases for either faculty or staff.

Dr. Shuck said the tuition raise of 24.1 per cent over present levels would be the first step of a two-part raise. For the second year of the biennium, tuition would go up to $165 per quarter for a resident student, a 10.7 per cent increase over the first year's tuition. The total raise will represent a 95 per cent increase from the fees charged just last year when registration could be completed for $88 per quarter.

Shuck said the majority of the additional money collected would go to the state's general fund and then allocated back to the college.

Part of Evans' proposal for the college includes an immediate raise in out-of-state fees to $440 per quarter ($1,360 per year) for newly enrolled students. Presently enrolled out-of-state students would face a raise of $71 per quarter next year, to $311.

For the second year of the biennium, the fees would be $288, with an eventual limit of $440. The out-of-state upper limit on fees is based on estimated out-of-state pocket cost to the state to educate a student, Shuck said.

In contrast to the State Council on Higher Education's recommendations, Evans' asked that fees at the two state universities remain at a higher level than the state colleges.

Enrollment will be limited to 6,545 full fee-paying students during the first year and 6,750 for the second year of the biennium.

Though the college is free to accept more than the limits, no funds will be allocated for them. The college will continue to receive funds for growth in health sciences, Shuck said.

Construction throughout the state colleges has been halted on all buildings not yet begun, Shuck said. The only exceptions to this will be two facilities at the new Evergreen State College and the remaining portion to the physical education complex here.

This does not include internal campus beautification, Shuck said, such as the planned Patterson Mall, which will be funded out of local funds rather than general funds.

Salary increases have been halted, also. The only salary increases allowed will be those already promised under the present biennium budget. Shuck said a person receiving $5,000 per year at the beginning of the biennium will be receiving $5,000 per year at the end of the biennium, with no provisions for a cost of living rise.

Shuck added that the budget was only a request from the governor and still must be approved by the legislature. Evans, in his State Of The State message in which he announced his budget proposal, said that every time he has proposed a budget since he has been governor the legislature has enacted appropriations in excess of his request.

But Shuck said he expected the actual budget to be close to the governor's proposal even if it is changed.

EW in Touch At Olympia

Another session of the state legislature is underway in Olympia, and in Cheney, key Eastern officials are making a coordinated effort to insure that their needs receive the best possible consideration.

This comes amid uncertainty and tension over fears of the effects of a possible "tax-payers' revolt," and the long-range impact that this might have on budgetary appropriations for the state's campuses.

Thus far, there have been several "low-key" meetings with legislators and educators from the state's other four-year colleges, said Dr. Boyd C. Mills, chairman of Eastern's legislative affairs subcommittee and administrator of the community college program.

Now that the session is in progress, the pace of the meetings is expected to increase, and so is the tension. Kenneth Kennedy, director of planning and development, is the quarterback for the administration's lobbying activities, and he will be meeting almost weekly with other educators and legislators in Olympia.

Other members of Eastern's team include President Emerson Shuck, Business Manager Fred Johns and Dr. Vincent Stevens, head of the faculty committee. In addition, there are openings for three students on the expanded legislative affairs subcommittee, said Dr. Mills.

Mills pointed out several ways in which the college community can stay abreast of legislative activities. Kennedy library will be receiving copies of various bills as soon as they are printed, and there will be a legislative "hot line" every Tuesday morning in the Cheney City Hall auditorium.

The hot line will enable any interested person to talk directly with the three sixth district legislators—State Senator Sam Guess, and State Representatives A. J. "Bud" Pardini, and J. C. Kopet. Pardini serves as House majority caucus coordinator, and Guess is expected to play a major role in matters relating to education. His bill dealing with student rights and campus unrest is already the source of much controversy.

What will happen in Olympia? Eastern's "lobbyists" are reluctant to make any definite predictions, but one thing is certain Kennedy said,—like it or not, higher education is in the legislative spotlight.

Election Today

Primary elections will be held today for the seven open positions on the Associated Students Legislature.

Polls, located in the lobby of Pence Union Building, Tawanka Commons and Kennedy Library, will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Candidates for Cheney position 6 are Randy Waldher and Doug Sienknecht, for position 9 are Sue Saling and Terry Stratton, with Jim DeWalt, Paul Parker and Kristi Piccioni competing for position 12.

Spokane positions 8 pits Gary Zadow and John Daughters against each other and Stan Phipps and James Kjeldsen vie for position 11.

On Campus has Tom Miller, Joey Raugust and Frank Griffith going for position 7, with Becky Lafer, Ingrid Bandt and Harry Runnels racing for position 10.

Students must present student identification cards at the polls.

Seals And Crofts Here Saturday

A concert by nationally known Seals and Crofts highlights this week's musical fare Saturday night in the Pence Union Building multi-purpose room. The weekly offering in the PUB den will be "Apple Glass," a Spokane based rock and jazz group. They will perform tomorrow and Friday from 8-11 p.m. and Saturday from 6-8 p.m.

Herb Jones, Associated Students activities vice-president, said, "Seals and Crofts are a cross between Simon and Garfunkel, and Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young. They are probably only a year away from becoming one of the biggest twosome in the country."

Jimmy Seals and Dash Crofts are California-based and come here from a television appearance on the Ian and Sylvia Show in Los Angeles. The two have two albums on the market at present, "Seals and Crofts," and "Down Home."

A Spokane group, "Concord Green," will lead off the concert. Jones describes the trio's work as "folk music." Playing with Seals and Crofts will be bass player Jimmy Rolleston, who Jones calls "one of the best in the business."

Admission is 50 cents for students with I.D. cards and $1 for the general public. There is no charge for the weekly series in the den.

Food Stamp Regulations Tighten Use

The recent state-wide tightening of food stamp regulations will apparently have little effect on the eligibility of low-income college students, according to program officials.

Ted Wagner, with the administrative office of the Spokane food stamp program, confirmed Monday that some of the regulations governing the stamps have been changed. He said that the changes will both help and hinder the student, but the overall situation will be essentially the same.

The new rules were put into effect, he says, after a federal audit of one of the Washington state counties failed to produce a single eligible student. It did bring to light a number of stamp users whose well-to-do parents could easily afford to help them.

One of the new regulations provides that the parents of single students under 21 may be contacted for verification of the student's emancipation, and in the event the parents can provide support the student would be ineligible for food stamps.

Wagner emphasized that the price scale has not been changed. "The biggest difference," he says, "is in the handling of scholarships, loans and income."

SMC Supports Students For AS Primary Election

Eastern's chapter of the Student Mobilization Committee against the Vietnam war has formulated a platform and will endorse three of their members for the Associated Students' primary election, said John Daughters, a spokesman for the group. The announcement followed a meeting Thursday in the PUB.

Daughters said the move represents a direct challenge to the present student government, which the committee has labeled "inefficient and ineffective."

The three candidates and the positions which they are seeking are: James Kjeldsen, off-campus Spokane (position 11); Steve Dennis, off-campus Cheney (position 12); and John Daughters, off-campus Spokane (position 8).

Kjeldsen has been a VISTA volunteer, an American Friends' Service Committee member, and an S.M.C. organizer.

Dennis is the election coordinator for the candidates, and he has been active in local political campaigns.

Daughters, a former student at the University of Washington, has been a delegate to the most recent King County Democratic convention, and he was a candidate for King County precinct committeeman.

All of the candidates consider themselves "student activists," and base their challenge primarily on an expressed desire to "bring the war on campus by means of student organizing and activities," Daughters said. He stressed the activist but non-violent role of the committee, noting that the candidates did not seek the "overthrow" of student government. Instead, Daughters said, the candidates seek merely the "full implementation of all the resources available to the students, so that they may gain control of their own future."

The committee spokesman also said the present leadership in student government did not seem to be capable of bringing any action to bear on the vital problems of the students.

In addition to the SMC's opposition to the Vietnam war, Daughters announced that the main features of the platform applying to Eastern specifically are: A resolve to gain an articulate student voice on the curriculum and tenure committee, a desire to press again for a student "bill of rights," which was recently rejected by the Board of Trustees, and a firm intention to have an active student government which will reflect student objectives.

Pictures Circulated

Beginning this week, students, faculty and staff will be able to check out pictures at Kennedy Library, said Sue Wallace, audio-visual librarian.

Part of the Gary Abernathy Memorial Collection, which also contains poetry books, these pictures are reproductions of prints, paintings and posters which were donated by a library staff member, and have been mounted and laminated by the IMC Graphics Lab.

Adjustable hangers may also be checked out at the circulation desk along with the loan art, which will circulate for one month.

Modern art, with emphasis upon German expressionism, dominates this growing collection of over 100 titles, which is located opposite the reference desk. Bookplates designed by Bruce Beal, art department faculty member, are an added feature.

Japanese Art Display At Hargreaves Gallery

You can walk through the snow to look at the rainbows if you stop by the Hargreaves Gallery to see the serigraphs by the Japanese artist Ay-O, part of a display of silk screenings brought to Eastern through the efforts of Marianna Hamilton, gallery director.

Miss Hamilton, who has exhibited her own work at two shows in the area, one in Spokane and one in Clarkston, Idaho is enthusiastic about the gallery showings which give art viewers in this area an opportunity to see the work of well known artists in various mediums. Currently teaching a class in water color, Miss Hamilton is also interested in Batik, which is a method of displaying color on fabric and tie-dyeing. She participated in a two-man Batik exhibit in September.

Questioned about a large oil painting in her office, she said, "I did that when I first came to Eastern about three years ago. The strong colors probably indicate my background," Miss Hamilton has a Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of Arizona and enjoys Mexican art.

Through her contracts in Arizona and California, her home, she has arranged the serigraph showing and one to begin in February which will include color photographs taken in Mexico and watercolors, both by Lez L. Haas, former head of the University of Arizona art department.

Chorale Dies

The ROTC Chorale, an exclusive men's singing group, has been dropped from the ROTC curriculum due to lack of participation, said Col. Andy Pribnow, ROTC dept chr.

Now donning a new name, The Male Chorus, the organization is now under the music department, said Dr. Richard Householder, director of choral activities. All students and faculty members have been invited to participate. Meetings are each Tuesday and Thursday at 3:40 p.m. in M216, Creative Arts Building.

PATTERSON HALL, PHASE II, is nearly complete and ready for occupancy. Workmen are presently finishing up the inside and have removed the partition which until now have isolated Phase II from the already in use Phase I. The second section should be open and in use spring quarter.

Financial Aid Applications Due Soon

Students who are in need of financial assistance, either now or in the future, should contact the Financial Aids Office during the month of January, according to Mrs. Sue Shackette, assistant director of financial aids.

Although funds for many programs have been exhausted for the current year, there are still two government-sponsored or guaranteed programs available. These are the National Defense Student Loans and the Federally Insured Student Loans obtained from a private lending institution.

The National Defense Student Loan is based on need, and if a person qualifies, is by far the most desirable loan from the viewpoint of cost—three percent versus seven per cent interest, the special cancellation clauses involved, and the eligibility of freshmen for benefits.

Application procedures are time-consuming, said Mrs. Shackette. Part of the process requires the completion of a confidential statement, which must be forwarded to College Scholarship Services at Berkeley. This requires approximately six weeks. The necessity for making application during January and February cannot be over-emphasized, she said. Upon return of this form, Eastern determines eligibility and the amount of assistance to which the student is entitled.

The National Defense Student Loan carries both a teacher and armed services' cancellation clause.

If a student enters the armed services upon termination or graduation, his loan will be cancelled at the rate of 12.5 per cent for each year of service up to three years.

And if he enters teaching, 10 per cent of his loan for each year taught up to five years - may be cancelled. If the teaching is done in a low income area, 15 per cent of the loan may be cancelled for each year taught until the complete loan is amortized. Undergraduates may borrow up to $1,000 and graduates up to $2,500 per academic year.

The Federally Insured Student Loan differs in many respects. It is not based on need, the interest rate is higher, and the private lending institution approves or disapproves the loan.

A survey of five major lending institutions in Spokane revealed that some do not make any loans under this program. Some make loans to juniors and above, some to sophomores and above, but none of those contacted made loans to freshmen.

This is discouraging to freshmen, but only five of the many institutions available were contacted, and it is possible for the right person, with the proper sales pitch, sufficiently motivated, to convince any reasonable businessman that he should make an exception in the particular student's case.

In general, requirements for obtaining this loan are legal resident of the state, 12 hours or more of college instruction, and a g.p.a. of 2.0 or above, Mrs. Shackette said. Students may apply for loans up to $1,000 per year for undergraduates and $1,500 per year for graduates for a total of $7,500.

If the total family income exceeds $15,000 per year, the student pays the 7 per cent interest as it accrues. If the income is less than this amount, the interest is paid by the government. The student has a grace period of nine months after termination or graduation before it is necessary to start repaying the loan.

Camelot Sunday

This week's Associated Students sponsored movie Sunday will be shown twice instead of the scheduled single showing "because of the great response we are getting for the movies," said Herb Jones, A. S. activities vice-president.

The movie, "Camelot," stars Richard Harris and Vanessa Redgrave. Admission is 25 cents for the 7 and 9 p.m. showings in Pence Union Building multi-purpose room.

The story depicted in the movie concerns King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table and their adventures in medieval England.

Notes From The 'Underground'

by Patrick J. Quiggle
Contributing Writer

In his twenties, Jere Kineen (pronounced Jerry Ki-nean) already has a head of naturally gray hair. He is hardly what you would expect an "underground" editor to look like. But in fact, Jere Kineen owns and is Editor-in-Chief of The Provincial Press newspaper in Spokane.

From 10 until 5 on weekdays, Kineen continues what Russ Nobbs formerly attempted—namely, the impossible. He edits and directs a twice monthly publication without any money. His staff alternates somewhere between enthusiasm and insomnia in order to present alternative news coverage to the "Ingrown Empire."

What most editors do with money and a paid staff, Kineen attempts with determination and a lot more than just thrift. He doesn't just pinch money. He strains and filters it enough to make a pollution expert envious.

Kineen would be the first to tell you that he is no hero or martyr. Selling personal items in order to finance a newspaper is nothing new to an age whose heroes began by eating pigeons in Paris while setting type for the Paris Review or the TransAtlantic Review. But Kineen and his staff are very unique people when compared with certain others. Others possibly a little closer to home.

In the Provincial Press offices on Browne Street in Spokane Kineen shuttles from phone to press type to typists to tourists. He talks about Spokane and about what his hopes are for the city and the people. He is remarkably kind to the Spokane Daily Chronicle and the Spokesman Review. That is, Kineen is kind to the owners and maybe even to some of the editors. But his irritation increases the closer he gets to the working, writing staff.

Kineen goes on to explain that he thinks writers and reporters really determine the news. If any newspaper is full of accident reports and trivial accounts of society people-about-town it is because reporters have seen fit to write it, or because the reporters just haven't the guts to write what they really think is important. Kineen talks about possibly running a short satire-like society page in his paper just to spoof it.

What Kineen really considers to be newsworthy are articles on Gonzaga's "Steel Teepee" of an Indian Center, the new north-south freeway in Spokane, the Vietnam War, Nursing-Home abuses in the Spokane area, and administrative violations by college financial aid offices.

In a brown leather jacket at his desk, Kineen looks like a union painter who has been spray-painting homes with white exterior latex. His hair is practically all gray. It isn't very long, and his mustache is likewise. But it is difficult to decide what color are his eyes.

Kineen definitely carries himself like Ralph Nader. His body is thin and his shoulders slightly stoop forward. Jere Kineen definitely looks forward.

Expansion Plans Are Reviewed

by Mary Grafious

The product of a three-year study of Eastern's future campus needs is being reviewed by the Community and Development Committee, composed of staff, faculty, and student representatives, with the aid of Environmental Concern, Inc., Spokane firm of architects and planners.

Four alternative plans have been prepared by the Spokane firm to meet possible growth in student enrollment of up to 20,000.

Plan One showed the present campus as it is. Plan two depicted possible expansion of building in that part of the present campus lying east of Washington Street, to provide facilities for an enrollment of 12,000; Plan Three also provided facilities for 12,000, but made more extensive use of land west of Washington street; Plan Four called for purchase of additional land west of Washington street and development of a campus to care for up to 20,000.

"We expect the slowed rate of growth at Eastern and other schools to remain about the same for two or three years. This will mean that when presently funded building is completed, we will be pretty well caught up with our needs," said Kenneth Kennedy, director of planning and development.

"Our plans to request funds for a computer building will be postponed for several years. The tight state budget will not provide for any new building in the next biennium," Facilities Director Wayne Loomis, said.

"If construction of this building had begun next year as hoped earlier," he said, "it would have necessitated an immediate decision as to whether to concentrate the campus east of Washington Street or to plan now for more expansion west of that street."

Drawings of all four plans will be exhibited, probably in the PUB, so that students and faculty will have an opportunity to study them and communicate to the committee their ideas on the future direction of the campus.

All four plans call for what might be termed a "bastion" type of campus. An aerial view would show an outer ring of parking lots, an inner access arterial, then classroom buildings, followed by an inner walking path, and a core of more buildings.

Student representatives were asked for comment and Jim Hansen said, "I think that parking is of greater concern to the students than academic buildings. Some of us have doubts about putting parking lots on the town side of the campus because of the necessity for taking people's homes away from them."

Services Honor Dr. M. L. King

Memorial services honoring Dr. Martin Luther King are scheduled for Friday, January 15 at 2:30 p.m., said Harold K. Stevens, Division Dean of Arts and Letters.

Services will be held in the multi-purpose room B in the Pence Union Building.

There will be two speakers attending: Mr. Thomas Kennedy of the Washington State Board of Discrimination, and Dr. Emerson Shuck, President.

All students and faculty are invited to attend.

LP Kinks Review

by Larry Snider
Contributing Writer

The Kinks have long been a major voice in the kingdom of rock music. Songs like "You Really Got Me," "Tired Of Waiting" and "Sunny Afternoon" were all catchy tunes that brought forth writer and vocalist Ray Davies' evolution into one of the finest young commentators on our world today.

Davies' and the Kinks' latest album released, Lola vs Powerman and the Moneygoround, presents their most up to date and powerful statements yet on record. And most of it comes wrapped in a fine musical coating.

The album could be interpreted as a commentary with a twofold design. Side One is Davies' look at the music business and the hassles coming from taking part in such a lowly position in it as a rock artist. "Denmark Street" attacks the publishers, the pleadingly forceful "Get Back in the Line" (one of the albums' gems) frowns on the role of the 'union man,' "Top of the Pops" illustrates the way to the 'hit' song with those hard rocking guitar licks we've all heard before, and "Moneygoround" talks of just that.

Side Two has Davies' lyrics and the Kinks very capable sound looking, in a broader sense, at our world. "This Time Tomorrow" asks of the future, "A Long Way From Home" questions monetary values, "Apeman" (the Kinks new single) is fun and a good laugh at ourselves and "Powerman," on a more serious note, glances at Hitler, Mussolini, publishers, and lobbyists.

KEWC FM Expanding Educational Features

Campus radio station KEWC FM is now in the process of expanding its educational programming to Eastern's campus community, said Dave Smeltzer, FM station manager.

The program will run from 7:40 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and the station is now in the process of setting up a working program with the individual departments.

"What we want to develop are programs that would not only be of interest and educational value to our audience, but will be designed for use by individual class groups," said Smeltzer.

The programs can be arranged to be aired at specific times. "For example, if an economics professor wishes to have a report on nation's economic situation, he can arrange it with the radio station to have it on air during his economics class, or a Shakespeare series can be put on air for the English classes," explained Smeltzer.

This program can also be used to publicize various experiments and projects of concern to the community. "If a biology professor is working on an experiment, he can relate the progress of his experiment through a program series," said Smeltzer.

KEWC FM is currently broadcasting series of movie critiques, book reviews, scientific developments, and national affair programs. Smeltzer said the new series would mark a new trend in educational programming on campus.

KEWC-AM is entering the second week of their contest, in which dorm residents are eligible to win prizes for answering a question. O'Brien said that the station will make eight calls, from numbers picked at random, to dorm rooms between 8:00 p.m. and midnight.

For answering the question correctly, the contestant will win a prize like a pizza, a game of bowling, or others. O'Brien emphasized that winners must pick up a coupon at the KEWC studios, 2nd floor of the old SUB, within seven days to get their prize.

The length of a mans locks has been a burning question of the past decade and now is entering into the world of the athlete. Just recently a U of W gymnast was suspended. In the past hair has been associated with the "socially undesirable" but now that long air has become the style of the day the athlete has started to let his locks creep down his neck.

The parents and coaches of today's "jock" continue to affiliate hair with Communists, drugs and freaks. This is very significant because it's a sign of the times. The college people associate a man in uniform as being a "pig", while the community at large shouts freak at the man with long hair. Then politicians ask why all the unrest in college towns?

In amateur athletics people have performed in competition since the anicent Greeks. A man is judged by his ability and character as shown in competition and not by his personal preferences in clothing and hair style.

Styles change and so must the attitudes that go with it. An athlete is an individual with his own personal goals and desires and in college he is not a professional, but an amatuer with school first and the sport second.

What college athletics needs today is not the polarization as can be seen in the political world but the understanding that has been its strength in the past.

In case you haven't noticed Eastern's basketball team is currently in first place. They are the highest scoring team in the conference and have a guy named Harris who you swear has eyes in back of his head.

Something is lacking however, and that is student support for this outstanding ball club. If you're a commuter from Spokane I assure you the fifteen minutes you spend on driving out to Cheney will be well worth your while.

Tonight the Savages take on Western Montana. A week from Friday two of the biggest games in Eastern basketball history will be played in the Fieldhouse when Central and Western visit.

If you have attended one of Eastern's games you probably know that no band is present for the games. There is a feeling among cheerleaders and supporters alike, that even a brass drum would improve the enthusiasm. If anyone has information on getting some "sounds" for the games, please contact the Easterner or one of the cheerleaders.

Savages Capture EVCO Lead

The Eastern Washington Savages vaulted into first place in the Evergreen Conference on the strength of a 87-64 victory over Eastern Oregon Saturday night.

Eastern will be out to equal their win total for all of last season when they meet Western Montana tonight at 8:05 in the Fieldhouse. The Savages were 8-17 last year.

The Bulldogs of Dillon, Montana will bring a 12-7 record into the non-conference clash and are currently in first place in the Frontier Conference.

The Savages scored victories over Whitworth, 80-58, and Eastern Oregon, 87-64. Friday St. Martin's defeated Eastern, 90-82, in a non-conference game.

This Friday and Saturday Eastern faces what head coach Jerry Krause termed "a very important weekend," as the Savages travel to Klamath Falls Friday night for a game against Oregon Tech and Saturday night visit Southern Oregon college at Ashland.

Oregon Tech, although currently in the cellar of the EvCo, boasts the leading point producer in the conference in Mel Farris who is averaging 30.1 points per game.

The Red Raiders of Southern Oregon are 3-2 in conference play and are led by their 6-9 center Allen Graves. Graves is averaging 12.7 points per contest and 9.6 rebounds a game.

Two wins this week would retain the Savages hold on first place and set the stage for the big weekend January 29, and 30 when Eastern plays host to Central Washington and Western Washington.

Eastern played their best game of the season against Whitworth last Wednesday according to Krause.

The defense was superb limiting Whitworth to 58 points, well below the Savages defensive average of 86.1 per contest. Steve Barnett was high man for Eastern with 22 points.

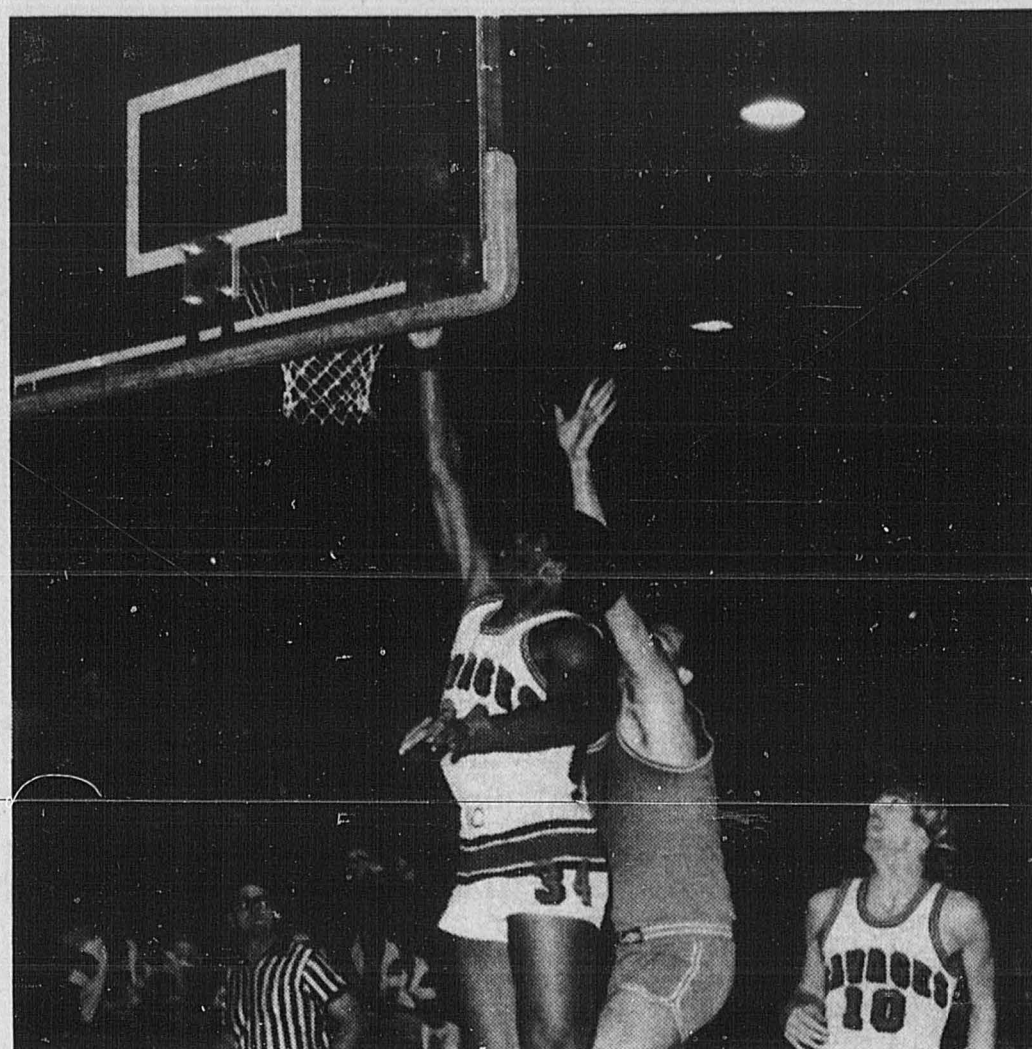

Krause credited the loss Friday night to the "spiritless" attitude of the team.

"The offense was flat and we just were not excited enough about a non-conference game and allowed the Saint's front court to out rebound us, 70-54," Krause said.

The Savage basketballers made a complete turn around Saturday and annihilated the Eastern Oregon Mountaineers, 87-64. At one point in the second half Eastern raced to a 68-24 advantage. Krause singled out the play of Steve Barnett who had 20 points in the first half and Darryl Harris who had 12 assists and 7 steals.

"Dave Hayden had an outstanding defensive game with 13 rebounds and 5 blocked shots to trigger the fast break," Krause volunteered.

Duane Barnett gets two points off the fast break in the Savages 87-64 win over Eastern Oregon. Barnett is a senior letterman guard from Middleton, Ohio. Chris Anderson looks on.

Girls Swim Team Eye Natls

Eastern's female swim team will be in Portland Saturday for the first dual swim meet with Portland State University.

Eastern will be featuring an eight or nine woman team, their first meet at full strength. A five-girl team was defeated by Washington State University team of over 20 competitors. Eastern had to forfeit four events.

Eastern has already qualified for this spring's national championships in the 200-yard freestyle relay and two individual events.

Barb Banger qualified in the 50 and 100 yard breaststroke and Beth Banger qualified in the 50 yard backstroke.

The relay team consists of the Banger sisters, Loupy Smith and Linda Brandt. Teri Perrine, a new addition to the relay team, is expected to qualify as are other team members in the weeks ahead.

The national meet will be held at Tempe, Arizona, in March.

EW to Oregon Gym Meet

Eastern gymnasts meet Portland State and Lane Community College, of Eugene, Friday in a gymnastics meet at Portland.

Savage coach Dennis Lazzar said Portland State is going to be "...at least as strong and perhaps stronger than they were last year, when they beat us in the Pacific Northwest Championships."

"However, this year, we are probably stronger and certainly more consistent than last year," he said.

Eastern's next home meet will be January 30th against Eastern Montana and Central Washington at 2:00 p.m.

"Eastern Montana has developed into a strong and fierce rivalry," Lazzar said. "Last year we beat Eastern Montana by 1/500 of a point."

Eastern had beat Central two of the last five times.

EW Poolmen to Host Western and GU

Eastern's swim team will host a double-dual men's meet at the Fieldhouse pool at 4:30 this Friday afternoon when Western Washington State College and Gonzaga University teams come to Cheney.

The match with Western is a regularly scheduled Evergreen Conference meet and Gonzaga is making up a previously cancelled swim meet.

The Savages split the weekend

Keith Semler matches at Portland, defeating Lewis and Clark, 66-45, Friday but losing to Portland State University, 63-49, Saturday. Lewis and Clark is coached by Don Schollander, former Olympic Star.

Eastern coach Gene Lisiecke was "well-pleased" with his swimmers' performances over the weekend.

Keith Semler was Eastern's leading scorer, with two individual wins in each meet plus his part with the winning relay team in the L-C meet. Semler won the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events both days.

Tom Tigar won the 200 yard freestyle in both matches and topped the 500 yard freestyle against Lewis and Clark. Tom Stone was second in the latter event.

Kevin Hill scored three wins over the weekend, taking the 1,000 meter freestyle both days and winning the 200-meter breaststroke against Portland State.

Semler, Tigar, Hill and Brad Olson comprise the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team.

Don Freeman, Eastern's part-time diver and full-time gymnast, won the three-meter diving event against Lewis and Clark and won the one-meter diving title against Portland State.

Scott Thompson scored a win in the 200-yard butterfly in Friday's match.

Lisiecke was happy with Mark McLaughlin, who picked up third place in the breaststroke against Portland State. "It was his first scoring venture."

The 400-meter freestyle relay was the deciding event in Portland's 24-meter pool. By virtue of that win, Portland State broke a 56-56 tie and won the match. (In a relay, seven points are subtracted from the loser's score and given to the winner.)

The Savages one win and three losses so far this season will open conference competition this weekend against Western Washington.

Springtime Comes Early

Spring is here according to baseball Head Coach Ed Chissus as Savage pitchers and catchers have started workouts for the upcoming season. The battaries have been turning out for a week and a half and Chissus announced that everybody would start workouts January 25.

"Pitchers take longer to get their arms in shape so that they can throw at batting practice," said Chissus, when questioned why pitchers started earlier.

Chissus, a recent inductee to the NAIA Hall of Fame, spent last spring visiting spring training camps of major league ball clubs.

"It was a great experience meeting the outstanding baseball people in the country. They are glad to talk to you and showed great interest on injury prevention," commented Chissus.

The Savage baseball mentor and trainer for 18 years said that the best way to keep away from injuries is, "...out of season conditioning, weight training and proper guidance by a coach."

Chissus also said that the Fieldhouse is a great asset to the program, "We can get a full infield and it's really true."

Bob Maplestone and Al Stallworth work out in the Fieldhouse as they prepare for the NAIA Indoor Track Meet to be held in Kansas City, Missouri, January 22 and 23. Maplestone is entered in the mile and Stallworth in the 60 yard dash. If funds are approved long jumper Ed Fisher may get a berth.

Women's Championship Competition Scheduled

The third annual National Intercollegiate Track and Field Championships for Women will be held at Woodward Field May 14-15.

Dr. C. Peggy Gazette, chairman of the women's department of physical education, and meet director, said last year's meet at the University of Illinois drew more than 200 competitors from 55 colleges and universities.

This year's meet at Eastern is expected to be even larger and many more entries from the Pacific Northwest are expected than in previous years.

The meet is sponsored by the Division of Girls' and Women's Sports of the American Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics. A number of Olympic hopefuls are expected to be entered, Dr. Gazette said.

The May 14 all-day competition will feature preliminaries and semifinals. The May 15 finals will be held in the afternoon.

The all-weather, rubber-asphalt track is expected to enable a number of records to fall, providing the weather cooperates, Dr. Gazette said.

Field events include long jump, shot put, discus, high jump and javelin. Track events are the 100-, 220-, 440- and 880-yard dashes; 100- and 200-meter hurdles, mile run, 440-yard relay, and 880-yard medley relay.

Featured speaker at the Friday evening banquet will be Nell Jackson, a former Olympic sprinter, now women's track and field instructor at the University of Illinois. She will also be one of the top officials at the meet, Dr. Gazette said.

Competitors and coaches will be housed in Morrison Hall.

Intramural Teams Compete

Eastern's intramural basketball program is now in full swing, with over fifty teams from on and off campus competing.

Randy Auvil, co-ordinator of the program has supplied the Easterner with the names of just a few of the top teams up to this point in the competition.

One of the leading teams is the Fastbreak Five, who defeated the Streeter Studs 76-18. The Gypsies, lead by Jerry Swinkendorph, N.A.I.A. discus-throwing champion, stomped the War Eagles. Auvil attested to the Gypsies' ability on the court: "They have to be one of the favorites, and they are extremely big under the board."

Intramural Events Vary

The Annual Intramural Ski Meet is slated for 9 a.m. February 6, 1971, on Mount Spokane. There will be individual and team competition.

Three men or women will constitute a team, said Thorne Tibbitts, director of intramurals. There will be open competition allowing any number of contestants to compete. Entry deadline for the meet is Wednesday, February 3. Entry forms can be picked up at the intramural office in the Fieldhouse, or at Mr. Tibbitts office in the new Physical Education Building.

All contestants will receive chairlift tickets at half price.

There will be an organizational meeting tomorrow night, Jan. 21, at the field house for women's basketball. Teams may practice if desired.

"Any woman interested in bowling on Wednesday afternoons from 3:45 - 5:30 please contact Jim Dike at Cheney Bowl (325-6278)," announced Thorne Tibbitts, director of intramurals. Bowling leagues can still be formed for men and women by contacting Jim Dike.

The Easterner wishes to stand corrected. Pi Kappa Alpha were the winners in over-all bowling competition last quarter, not the Primos as reported.

Another noteworthy contest was between Bill's Tavern and the Turquoise Turkeys. Bill's Tavern came out ahead 65-15. Mother's Oats ate up the Good.

Auvil pointed out: "These are just some of the ball players and clubs who are outstanding. We may have overlooked some."

Intramural basketball schedules are out for the next two weeks, and team captains may pick them up in the fieldhouse.

EW Grapplers To Meet GU

Eastern's grapplers will be out to end a three match losing streak this Saturday when they travel to Kennedy Pavilion for a meet with Gonzaga at 2:00 p.m.

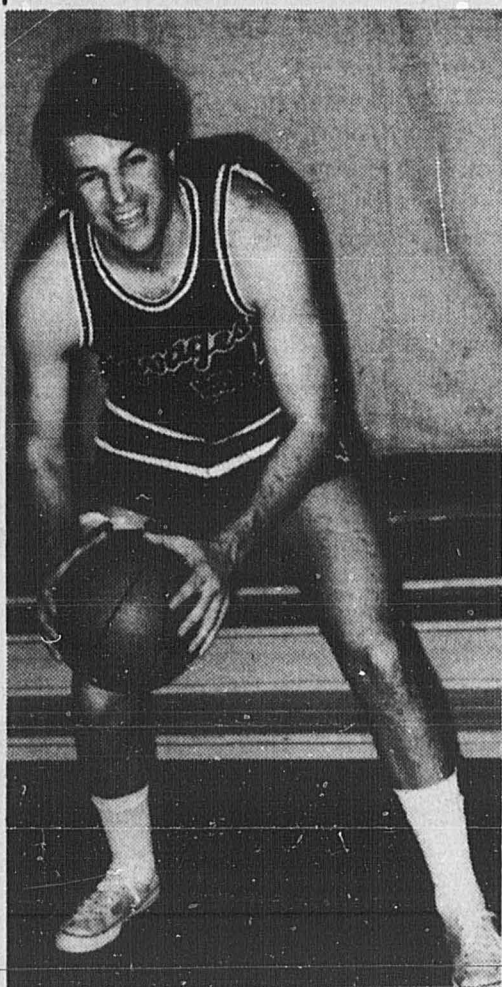

The Savages dropped a duel match with Big Bend last Saturday 19-17. After falling behind 19-3, Eastern won the last four matches to narrow the margin of defeat to 2 points.

Scoring his seventh duel match win in a row was Jerry Byrne at 167 pounds.

Athlete of the Week

Steve Barnett

Steve Barnett has been named the "Athlete of the Week" by the Inland Empire Sports Writers and Broadcasters at their weekly luncheon.

Barnett, senior co-captain for the Savage basketball team, scored 64 points in three games last week while leading Eastern to first place in the Evergreen Conference standings.

Barnett was also named the recipient of the Mosman award for his outstanding play. Jerry Krause, head basketball coach, commented, "Steve is very deserving of both awards. Besides his offensive talents Steve is an excellent defensive ball player and is always assigned the opponents best front court man."

Child Care Center Head Readies For Spring

Tordis Busskohl, wife of James Busskohl, English instructor, has assumed her duties as director for child care center due to open spring quarter.

Mrs. Busskohl, a native of Norway, said the center will be for children of students and will operate as a nursery. Bruce Murray, assistant program director of student activities, who conceived the idea of a care center, said, "We are hoping to be able to use the old Catholic Church rectory that now houses teaching assistants for the English department." The building is located on N. 5th Street between C and D Streets.

If the English building becomes available Mrs. Busskohl said a maximum of 15 children can be accommodated at any one time. She said applications will be made available for student parents sometime before spring quarter pre-registration that takes place February 16-26.

Since there will undoubtedly be more children who parents want to put in the care center Mrs. Busskohl said a student advisory committee will have to decide the criteria for allowing children to be left in the center.

The center will operate two sessions between 8:30 and 11:45 a.m. and 12:30 and 3:45 p.m. "This would allow parents to take as many as three classes," said Mrs. Busskohl. Children between the ages of three and five will be accepted in the center.

The center may be free or a minimal fee may be charged according to ability to pay, said Mrs. Busskohl.

Mrs. Busskohl forsee a dual role for the child facility. "The center will enable students to take day classes and will function as a pre-educational program for the children," she said.

Activities in the center will include creative painting, clay work, sandbox activities, dramatic play, rhythmic activities and music as well as stories. Other activities are also planned but Mrs. Busskohl emphasized the care program is not trying to compete on a level with such well known programs as "Sesame Street."

"We hope to broaden the experience of the child who has not had any involvement outside the home, however," she explained.

Mrs. Busskohl, who was hired to her position after screening by a five member faculty advisory committee, has impressive credentials. She has over six years teaching experience in Scandanavian countries and taught at a school for mentally retarded children in California for two and one-half years.

She received her undergraduate degree in pre-school education in Norway. Other work includes studies in Finland on a United Nations scholarship to learn more about child welfare.

Included among her teaching credentials is teaching children between the ages of three and seven in a Norweign kindergarten.

Drivers Warned

When a boy's number came up and he was drafted the citizen with the same number would be drafted. The boy would report to the service for training. The citizen would be required to pay the cost to the Government for his co-number during his stay in the service.

In case the boy is killed, the citizen would have to give up 80 per cent of his income for his life to the Government and at death his estate would go to the Government. If the boy is disabled the citizen would be obligated to pay the total cost of hospital and pension until death.

Ax To Grind

Dear Editor:

It should be pointed out that both Paul Wilson and Dennis Brant have an ax to grind with Bruce Ellis and their attack is nothing more than revenge. Because Mr. Brant had no journalistic background, Bruce Ellis voted against his appointment to the Publications Commission. Now Mr. Brant is out for his pound of flesh.

Mr. Wilson is bent out of shape because he lost his unfair advantage, of his vote counting 10 times as much as other students, when the new constitution was passed.

They should have at least put things in the right order and perspective in their outrageous letter.

Voluntary ASB?

Editor,

The occasion of the distribution of this quarter's first The Easterner marked, for me, a juxtaposition of events so unusual as to be suggestive.

First, I was confronted with a straightforward news story detailing the extraordinary (even bizarre) career of Clint Hill; it should not be necessary to recapitulate the affair here. Suffice it to say that the entire sequence of events is enough to provoke nausea among many who provide Mr. Hill, through fees, with his salary.

Second, in common I think, with substantial numbers of other students I was harried by rumors of an impending increase in tuition. The amounts mentioned in by presence varied from the merely staggering through the unthinkable and peaked out in figures which obviously needed drastic discounting, they have been quoted by persons in states of panic.

The two events seem to me to have a bearing one upon the other; the geometry of the relationship of the first to the second is both elliptical and classic.

My suggestion is this: through petition, referendum or whatever means lie buried in the verbose bowels of the A.S.B. constitution, let us initiate one minor change in the membership requirements of the institution. Let's make A.S.B. membership a purely voluntary matter. As it now stands, we pay our fees (among them the A. S. B. membership fee) in one lump sum as we are herded through the corrals of registration. Under the new system we would merely add one more line to stand in, for those who wished to do so.

Following this change, those who so desired could continue to hold meetings, attack one another through obtuse parliamentary means, pay one another whatever salaries they saw fit, hold entertainments (charging the rest of us whatever the traffic might bear) and even purchase for one another suitably crested blazers.

Those interested can sign an initial petition, which I will try to place in an accesible location.

They might even be able to turn out over 50 per cent of the membership in elections!

Bus OK But . . .

Editor:

As a Magic Bus commuter I would like to commend those responsible for initiating such a needed service.

Trying not to look a gift bus in the generator, so to speak, I venture to make two suggestions.

At least one bus to Spokane at 12:40 would be well patronized I am sure. I would also suggest that since the buses of Spokane City Lines are not the speediest things on the road, they leave Spokane about five minutes earlier. As the system now operates, the 7:55 bus does not get me to my 8:40 class on time.

I realize the system is still in its trial period. I hope that these suggestions are considered in compiling the permanent schedule.

Art Shows

The first student art show of the quarter will be presented in the Pence Union Building gallery beginning Monday.

Herb Jones, Associated Students activities vice-president, said, "I hope that we will be able to display student work from time to time in the gallery. This first show is a result of a request made to me by Fred Ploeger, an art major."

Jones said Ploeger is expected to present paintings and other work he has produced for the one man show.

Students may only park their cars in posted areas, warns A.S. traffic court judge Pat O'Donnell.

Judge O'Donnell said that the Board of Trustees has ruled that if there are no signs in an area, parked cars will be given citations.

He further explained that the streets on campus are under the jurisdiction of the City Of Cheney and violations, including leaving a car on the street overnight when two or more inches of snow have fallen, are handled by the Cheney municipal court.

Judge O'Donnell said that students have the right to appeal his decisions to the Cheney municipal court, but fines levied by the A.S. court, if paid in 24 hours, were one dollar. The Cheney Municipal court usually charged those found guilty five dollars, he said.

Judge O'Donnell said that campus police have begun giving tickets for all violations on Monday and by Wednesday he had 200 cases to adjudicate.

Some of these tickets, however, were carried over from last quarter.
