Old UW Law May Block PUB Beer

Liquor Board To Make Or Break Student Suds

By Jim Macknicki
Staff Writer

Beer in the PUB? Not for a while anyway. Robert L. Pelloux, Senior Enforcement Officer of the Washington State Liquor Control Board, said Tuesday the possibility the liquor board will grant a license to sell beer in the PUB appears remote at this time.

"Currently," Pelloux said, "it is unlawful to sell any intoxicating liquors, with or without a license, on the grounds of the University of Washington. As long as this law is on the books they (the liquor board) do not feel they should issue other licenses."

Both Western Washington State College and Seattle University were recently denied licenses to sell beer on campus due to the UW law which dates back to 1933. Four King County State Representatives have, however, introduced House Bill 572 which would repeal the law barring alcoholic beverages on campuses, but the bill will not be acted upon until the legislature meets this January.

Pelloux did not definitely say the license would be denied but he did not offer any encouragement. "In view of the correspondence we have it looks as if the license may be turned down," he said.

Former Spokane tavern owner John D. Workland has filed an application for a license to sell beer in the PUB. Pelloux said the liquor board would not decide on the matter until after the 30 day waiting period before the board will act in order to check out the applicant and to give those people objecting a chance to file their objections.

And people have been objecting. The plans for beer garden in the PUB have come under fire from Cheney tavern owners and managers who have been circulating petitions against the planned beer garden.

Tom Showalter, owner of Showalter's Hall and a Cheney City Councilman candidate, said the petitions have been taken to the mayor with more than 350 signatures and will be filed with the liquor control board.

Showalter, who estimated 60 per cent of his business comes from EWSC students and faculty, admitted that a beer garden in the PUB would hurt his business "considerably" and also cited other reasons for being against the beer garden.

"I am against taking student body funds for something only 20 per cent (the number of students he estimated over 21) can use," Showalter said. Showalter, an EWSC student, also said an academic atmosphere and alcoholic beverages do not exactly go hand in hand and he did not see how the student body could recover the $20,000 needed to start the beer garden.

Showalter also pointed out that keeping minors out could be a problem. "No matter how responsible the Board of Trustees feels the students of Eastern are, they try to get into other taverns quite frequently," he said.

Carol Worthington, ASB President, disagreed with Showalter on the percentage of students over 21 and is backed up by EWSC institutional research analyst, Donald Mason. Mason reported that while figures for this year are as yet unavailable, last fall quarter 63.5 per cent of the students were over 21 and that figure would be about the same for this year.

Regarding the enforcement problem Worthington said, "I don't think we will have trouble as we will be as well managed as any other tavern in town."

Evans' Veto Saves Tenure, Budget

By Bill Stewart
Staff Writer

Gov. Daniel J. Evans item vetoed two amendments to Ingressed Senate Substitute Bill 29-56 last Thursday that would have reduced $124,000 from the EWSC instructional budget and empowered colleges and universities to fire faculty members with a six-month notice.

The amendment regulating faculty dismissal notices was the brainchild of Rep. Albert (Bud) Shimpoek, D-Renton, in an apparent attempt to "show the public it (the state legislature) was doing something significant" during the mini-session, said Dr. Robert Atwood, president of the Academic Senate. "I'm concerned about the legislature moving in and making decisions on how the college should run the internal shop," Atwood said.

Prior to the veto, academicians from throughout the state expressed fear that high caliber faculty members would not seek positions in this state if the bill passed. Tenure policies for faculty members would have become meaningless.

The bill, which passed Sept. 16 while professors and administrators were away from the campuses for the summer, would have gone into effect at the beginning of the 1974-75 fiscal year.

EWSC President Dr. Emerson C. Shuck labeled the summer action "a brand new concept." State colleges and universities were given a two-day notice of the bill before it entered the Senate Ways and Means Committee after passing through the House.

Dr. Atwood, accompanied by another professor and two administrators, flew to Olympia for the Ways and Means Committee hearings at the expense of the faculty--preceded by a barrage of letters and telegrams from local academicians. When they arrived, they were given two minutes to argue their case, Atwood said.

In addition to the proposed $124,000 cut from the EWSC budget, Central Washington State College would have been cutback $1.2 million while Western Washington State College would have suffered a $1.6 million loss. The budget cutbacks were based on speculated enrollment drops at the three schools.

The $124,000 cutback would have compounded a blow dealt by the state legislature during the regular session when EWSC was allocated $100,000 to launch a Masters of Social Work program that was expected to cost from $350-$375,000. The amount was "a very embarrassing figure," said Dr. Shuck. "It's not enough to get the job done but it is enough to start it," he said.

The legislature is expected to reassess state school budgets during the next regular session in January.

Anti-Beer Petitions Exercise In Futility

The circulating of petitions against a beer garden in the PUB by Cheney tavern owners and managers is an exercise in futility which in the long run could hurt more than help their cause.

The petition drive by the tavern owners has only served to arouse the competitive nature of the students of Eastern. Petitions are now circulating on campus favoring a beer garden. With over 6,000 students on campus daily any thought the downtown tavern people have of getting more signatures on their petitions must be considered a pipe dream.

True, not all of the students at Eastern would sign a petition favoring a beer garden, but then on the other hand it is just as inconceivable 100 per cent of the people patronizing the taverns are against beer in the PUB.

Regardless of the stated nature of the complaint or the number of signatures the tavern owners have accumulated surely the liquor board will view the complaint as economic in nature. One tavern manager even confided that the circulating of a petition against the liquor board issuing another license in town was standard operating procedure.

With this in mind it should be pointed out the bidding on the contract to sell beer in the PUB was open to everybody, including the owners of the Cheney taverns. Without a doubt had one of them received the contract there would be one less tavern downtown opposed to beer in the PUB.

The proposed beer garden in the PUB will be just that -- a beer garden without a game room and without entertainment with students paying the regular price for beer.

Cheney tavern owners feel that beer in the PUB will hurt them economically. It may do that. At the same time, however, they have an opportunity to offer students a better atmosphere, more entertainment and a games room. Perhaps by throwing in a few more mid week (and week end) specials they could have their cash drawers ringing constantly provided, of course, they do not alienate the students in their effort to keep beer out of the PUB.

Train Your Eye, Reader

Here it is, folks. What you've all been waiting for. The year's first Easterner.

To the untrained eye, it may not look like the ultimate in EWSC journalistic talent and innovation. Don't sorrow, though. We'll try to train your untrained eye as the year goes on.

For the first time in recent years, maybe the first time ever, The Easterner was not published during the summer session (a misfortune that shouldn't happen next summer). With the newspaper office locked up tight during those three months, there were more cob webs than usual for the new staff that walked in this fall. It was a mammoth job to get the paper rolling again after the months of standstill.

Now, I don't mind having to search for a little while to find the office typewriters hidden in mounds of rubbish. But it is a little difficult to get the copy flowing when you have to advance the typewriter ribbon manually.

Now that most of the office bugs are finally taken care of (file cabinets that wouldn't open, a telephone dial that kept falling off, a bashed up school camera held together with rubber bands), we should be about ready to start putting out a newspaper.

Keep picking us off the floor to read. We've got a young, for the most part inexperienced staff. But we should get better.

Says EWSC President

State Schools Equal Or Superior To Privately Financed Colleges

Beginning his seventh year as President of Eastern Washington State College, 57-year-old Dr. Emerson C. Shuck has seen the school grow from about 4,500 students when he took over in 1967 to its peak of more than 6,800 students in 1970 to its present enrollment of about 6,100.

Born to a Findlay, Ohio, dentist and his wife in 1916, he spent nearly all his life in the Buckeye State before coming to Washington. Only for higher education and Uncle Sam did Shuck stray from his native Ohio; three years at the University of Wisconsin working on his Ph. D. [American Literature and Philosophy] and a stint of about one year with the Army at Ft. Lee, Virginia, in 1945.

Shuck graduated from a public high school in Findlay and entered Otterbein College, a private Brethren institution in Westerville, Ohio. At the age of 20 he married another Otterbein student, the former Sarah L. [Sally] Beidleman. She earned her B. A. in English and history at the college while he received a B. S. in biology chemistry and English.

In 1936 Shuck received his M. S. in English from Ohio State University, the same year he and his wife had their first child, a son [the Shuck's also have three married daughters].

After receiving his Ph. D. in 1943, Shuck taught English at Bowling Green State University at Bowling Green, Ohio for five years. He was made Dean of Bowling Green's graduate school in 1948 and then became Dean of BGSU's College of Liberal Arts in 1955.

Ten years ago Shuck left Bowling Green to teach English at Ohio Wesleyan University where he was also Vice President for Academic Affairs before taking over the Presidency at Eastern.

Shuck and his wife recently built a cabin at Spirit Lake, Idaho, where he says they go "when we want to relax." He enjoys fishing and sailing and also plays what he describes as a "bad game of golf."

"I feel happy when I come off the course if I've broken 100," Shuck said.

Until recently, the family car was a 1964 Mercury. It was discarded this year when Shuck bought a used [1970] Mercedes Benz. His wife, however, insists they are "not really the Mercedes Benz type."

Easterner staff writer Jim Baker met with Shuck this week for a short interview. Questions centered primarily around the role a college president plays in the higher education process.

EASTERNER: What major problems face college presidents today?

SHUCK: Balancing the budget is the major problem. Another is trying to deal with groups arguing strongly for their point of view which is often times in contradiction to another group's. To deal equitably with people in reaching fair and wise decisions calls for a great deal of consultation before a decision can be made. To be responsive to a wide range of constituents makes the decision-making process pretty difficult.

EASTERNER: What criteria do scholars use to evaluate the success or failings of a college president?

SHUCK: In the past, it used to be the capability of the president to influence and affect the character of the institution. The great presidents one always hears about are those who may have turned a college clear around. I think the measure of a college president's success these days is much more whether he is able to hold together this wide range of constituents we were talking about and make it possible for people--students, faculty and others--to do their best job.

EASTERNER: Is it valid to judge the success of a college president in terms of growth of a college?

SHUCK: That has been one of our hangups over the last 15 years. Growth and size were for a long time regarded as a mark of success, sort of like the building of a business. The bigger it got, think the whole thing is being questioned right now. Size is good up to a certain point because it gives the institution the capability of developing resources that it couldn't have if it were smaller. But size for its own sake is an illusion and one of the things that maybe led to some of the problems of higher education.

EASTERNER: How does a state college like Eastern rate with the better Ivy League schools?

SHUCK: Rating of colleges is one of those crystal ball things that depends on your prejudices to some extent. Some of the traditional ways of rating schools, for example, have been by the number of their graduates who have received awards or have gone on to graduate school, the wealth of the alumni, the size of the library, the number of Ph.D.'s on the faculty. I like to think of the quality of a school as the success it has in doing the job it's doing. An Ivy League school, for example, recruits only the brightest students. They're bound to succeed. The state school tries to serve a broad range of students. If they can offer a service to the student who couldn't even get into an Ivy League school and makes the person's life better, I think maybe the state school might be doing a better job educationally than, let's say, the Ivy League school.

EASTERNER: How does a state school like the University of Washington rate academically?

SHUCK: The University of Washington is undoubtedly one of the great universities in the country. That's based partially on their research capability. In this part of the country, I would say that the publicly supported schools have an academic quality equivalent to and in many instances superior to other schools. I think, for example, Eastern Washington State College, compared with institutions across the country--I don't care what type they are--provides a genuinely fine quality of education. The quality of our instruction and facilities offer the student high quality, good education.

Four Women In ROTC Army Adds Second Latrine

By Kelly McManus
Staff Writer

Until June of this year, an ROTC cadet wearing lipstick and pantyhose was bound to arouse a certain amount of suspicion.

This is all changed. EWSC women are now able to participate in the campus' Reserve Officers Training Corp on an equal commission basis as their male counterparts.

The first four women to enroll in the program are Judy Van Dyke, Wanda Oliver, Sue Shepherd and Billie Jean Hall.

Lt. Col. Thomas Talkington, assistant professor of Military Science, said that the women are currently enrolled in Military Science 104, an introductory lecture course which discusses the defense establishment in "Very broad terms."

"The women are participating in exactly the same program and receiving exactly the same instruction as the men," said

Talkington. "Women have taken ROTC classes in the past at EWSC and have also participated in rifle competition but they have not been eligible for commissions."

Following college graduation and the completion of the college ROTC program, both male and female cadets are enlisted in the U.S. Army as second lieutenants. They will serve in the army for two years and three months.

Students may take the freshmen and sophomore ROTC courses without incurring any military obligation.

During the last two years of his college training, each cadet will receive a monthly payment of one hundred dollars. This sum eventually totals over two thousand dollars for the period of the advanced course, Lt. Col. Talkington said.

Both male and female cadets will also take part in a six-week summer camp between their junior and senior year where they will receive one-half the pay of a second lieutenant.

"The first day I walked into the class, I got the impression that I was in the wrong class--the 'go-away' impression," said Judy Van Dyke. "I think everyone is feeling more comfortable now that we're getting accustomed to the situation."

Judy Van Dyke and Sue Shepherd, both freshmen, said they were participating in the program because they were curious and had long been interested in the military field.

Mrs. Oliver, the current National Jr. Small Bore Rifle Champion, said she joined the program because it provided more rifle competition and offered "leadership preparation."

Billie Jean Hall said she enrolled in the ROTC program because she was active in the Women's Sponsor Corps, a women's auxiliary club and drill team which is associated with the Military Science department.

The male response to the admittance of women on an equal basis was, for the most part, favorable.

"You get used to the stereotype of a woman as a housewife and mother and I think that working with them in a situation like the army will give us more insight into what they are really like," said one freshman student. "Right now, they're just like one of the guys."

One cadet admitted that he had always felt women were somewhat "lower" than men and it would feel strange to salute them but--"there are already a lot of women bosses."

Most of the ROTC men interviewed expressed the opinion that having women around made them a little more uncomfortable but, as one cadet summed it up--"You're going to have them at your side for the rest of your life, so you might as well start with the army."

EWSC Cuts Energy Use

Conservation tactics are in force within the Eastern community in an attempt to comply with Gov. Evans' demand that all state agencies reduce energy consumption by 10 per cent.

C.R. DePoe, director of Eastern's physical plant, said the college is cutting down on excess lighting and turning back heating thermostats two degrees.

"We urge students, faculty and staff to turn off any room lights if they will be out of the room for more than 10 minutes," DePoe said. "We're also adjusting thermostats to approximately 68 degrees from their normal 70."

DePoe said exterior building illumination has been reduced and some street lights have been turned off. Water heat temperatures have also been reduced in hot water tanks, DePoe said.

"We're confident we can meet the 10 per cent cut-back with only these measures," he added.

Alan N. Shaw, director of Campus Safety and head of the school's motor pool, said so far they have not needed to cut back on the use of Eastern-owned vehicles. However, the school is starting to purchase small and compact cars for the motor pool, Shaw said.

New Faculty Added

EWSC has 16 new faculty members this fall, Dr. Philip R. Marshall, vice president for academic affairs, announced last week. The new faculty members and their departments are:

Jerry D. Blanche, communication studies; Robert B. Bowin, management; Edwin A. Bump, accounting; Emile H. Coombe, urban and regional planning; Gene L. Engene, drama; Joseph Franklin, black studies; Gregory Hawkins, art; John R. Keehle, English;

Barbara Miller, art; Correen M. Morrill, education; Karen Noble, music; Julia N. Renner, dental hygiene; Jerry L. Roitor, industrial education and technology; Ilse M. Tan, German; Ruben M. Trejo, art; and Judith H. Vizenor, education.

More Beer

In an effort to combat the petitions of the taverns Worthington said petitions favoring a beer garden in the PUB are available in the AS offices and will be circulated in the dorms as well as in the PUB.

"If the students want beer in the PUB," Worthington said, "they can help by signing petitions and writing to the liquor board."

Should the liquor board grant Eastern a license, tavern owners and managers predict the operation will be hard pressed financially. Randy Waldher, manager of Goofy's in Cheney, said that unless the 19-year-old drinking law passes there are already enough taverns in Cheney to accommodate the business.

To pay expenses and to have a profit of $500 a week approximately 20 kegs of beer must be sold. Waldher called this figure unrealistic. "There isn't a tavern in town pumping 20 kegs a week," he said.

A study done last spring by the students in Marketing Research under the supervision of Dr. William R. Wynd, Professor of Marketing, concluded, however, there was a 90 per cent probability the beer garden could exceed the break even point and register a profit each week between $47 and $1,060. An average profit, the study concluded, would be approximately $500 per week.

Richard W. Lee, son of the owner of Bill's Tavern, agreed with Showalter and Waldher about not having beer in the PUB in that he said he does not feel the campus should be in economic competition with the community.

"If they get their PUB," Lee said, "a grocery store, a clothing store or a gas station may follow." Lee also said if plans for the beer garden are approved they may be forced to withdraw their support of EWSC athletics and suspend advertising in The Easterner.

2 Professors Die

Two E.W.S.C. professors, Dr. Paul L. Helsing and Dr. Boyd C. Mills, died this past July. Helsing, a former chairman of Eastern's economics department, was 43. Mills, the school's director of community college programs, was 51.

Helsing joined Eastern's staff in 1961 after earning his B.A. here and his M. S. and Ph.D. at Washington State University. He served as acting department chairman of the economics department during the 1970-'71 and 1971-'72 academic years and was chairman of the EWSC Faculty Organization and EWSC Academic Senate at the time of his death.

Survivors include his widow, Arlene, and five sons.

Mills came to Eastern in 1966, having earned his B. S. at Washington State, M. S. at University of Puget Sound and Ed. D. at Washington State. He served as Professor of Higher Education and Director of Community College Programs at Eastern.

Survivors include his widow, Laupele, and a son and daughter.

Office Filings For Student Deadline Nears

Eastern students have until Oct. 10 to file for any one of seven Associated Student legislative positions up for election this fall.

Primary election has been set for Oct. 17; general election Oct. 24.

ASB Vice President Larry Stueckle said normally only five of the fifteen legislative positions are open each quarter. But two additional seats became vacant with the resignations of Ellis Ann Bennett (position 6) and Scott Ames (position 8) during the summer, Stueckle said.

Those interested in filing can do so at the AS office and must have a GPA of at least 2.0, Stueckle added.

Thefts, Vandalism Reported First Week

Campus security encountered a busy week as EWSC opened its doors for fall classes. Several incidents of missing wallets, purses and books were reported.

A battery was reported stolen from a car, a chair was missing from an office in Monroe Hall and an $80 cassette tape player was reported stolen from a room in Morrison Hall.

Two bicycles were also reported missing but one bike has been recovered.

Two incidents of vandalism also occurred during the week. A clock in Dryden Hall was damaged and damage was reported on a paint job to a car parked on campus.

Eastern Enrollment Down 600 Students

Fewer continuing students and fewer transfer students caused Eastern's enrollment to drop over 600 students from last fall's enrollment of 6,725 students, according to EWSC Registrar Delbert Liljegen.

Liljegen reported that as of Friday 6,100 students of the estimated enrollment of 6,600 were registered. Freshmen enrollment is up, however, from 941 last year to 1,045 this year.

Due to the drop of enrollment Liljegen said that 71 sections of various classes have been dropped but additional sections of some classes have been added where student interest was higher than expected.

Past Trustee Dead At 80

Former chairman of EWSC's Board of Trustees, Richard S. Munter, died Sept. 27 at a Spokane convalescent center. He was 80.

Munter was a member of the Board of Trustees from 1926 to 1945 and presided over the board for 12 years.

Born in Spokane in 1893,

Munter was a lifetime resident of the city. He received his law degree and was admitted to the Washington State Bar in 1916.

Munter was president of the Spokane County Bar Association 1926-27 and president of the Washington State Bar 1947-48.

Survivors include his widow, Helen, Spokane.

Eagles Storm Vikings; Even Record

By Butch Brown
Sports Editor

While most of the Pacific Northwest gridiron squads enjoyed excellent football weather Saturday, the Bellingham area, particularly Western Washington State College, was hit by a Snow-storm.

Eastern quarterback Bob Snow scrambled and passed for 157 yards worth of offense as he directed a much-improved Eagle team past the unsuspecting Vikings by a 34-6 count. Snow went the six-point route four times as he connected on a pair of first half aeriels and found paydirt twice via the ground.

Coming off a mistake-ridden 19-8 setback in their season opener to Oregon College of Education, Coach John Massengale's forces grabbed an early 14-0 lead and played heady football as they held the Western eleven to just a pair of field goals. Vik fullback Tom Wigg, one of the top rushers in EvCo action of a year past, did not gain a single yard.

With six minutes gone in the first period halfback John O'Connor worked free on the WWSC five-yard line and Snow rifled a 40-yard bullet to him for the Eagles first score. Tight end Scott Garske added the PAT. Five minutes later Snow strapped Garske with a 4-yard aerial and the Cheney crew enjoyed a 14 point margin.

Western place kicker Bruce Phillips put a 25-yard field goal through the uprights early in the second quarter, but the Eagles struck back four minutes later on a quarterback keeper for a 20-3 lead. The Vikings finished their scoring as the initial half came to a close on a 30-yard three-pointer by Phillips.

With just over a minute remaining in the third quarter, Snow showed his "Fran Tarkenton move" as he rolled left for a pass and broke five tackles on his way to a 29-yard scoring romp. Back-up signal caller Mike Hermesen teamed up with flanker Steve Farrington for the final Eagle TD on a 1-yard pass.

Although the Western defensive front line outweighed Eastern's offensive crew by a considerable amount per man, the Eagles were able to provide fine pass protection, allowing EWSC quarterbacks to connect on 12 of 18 passes for 163 yards. O'Connor led an improved running attack that netted 191 yards.

Massengale lauded Snow and linebacker Al Bushnell for their fine individual performances along with the entire offensive unit. "Our biggest improvement was consistency in our offense," Massengale remarked. "I only called two or three plays all night."

The Eagles will draw a testy opponent Saturday night when they journey to Ashland, Oregon, for an evening conference tilt with Southern Oregon. "SOC is a big, physical team and returned nearly their whole offensive team," the head mentor said. "This game will be very important for us."

Marksmen Nominated

Eastern Washington State College's ROTC rifle team has been nominated for the coveted Warrior of the Pacific trophy, Lt. Col. Thomas E. Talkington announced last week.

The award is donated each year by the University of Hawaii to be awarded to a senior ROTC unit having at least 20 cadets in attendance at an advanced camp, for excellence in rifle marksmanship.

The nomination is a result of having attained the highest average in rifle marksmanship at the Fort Lewis, Wash., ROTC Advanced Camp this past summer. The average attained by Eastern's cadets will now be compared with those of the winning colleges or universities at other ROTC Advanced Camps to determine the winner.

"We are in strong contention for the award," Talkington said, "and should be finding out the results any day now." Eastern gunners last captured the bronze statuette in 1969.

Intramural Program Underway

Offering an agenda of ten events, the fall intramural program got underway this week and will continue to unfold throughout the quarter.

Intramural Director Brent Wooten said he was "very pleased" with the participation last year and has added two new events that should offer a lot of competition. "We've organized a baseball (hardball) league for the first time and also plan to execute a 3-on-3 basketball program around the first of November. Student reaction has been good in the past and we anticipate a good turnout for both these events," Wooten said. Flag football - Men's entry deadline will be tomorrow. League play will begin Monday. The women's league will start play Oct. 15 with a sign up deadline of Oct. 10.

Tennis - Singles competition will get underway Oct. 8 for both sexes. Oct. 5 is the last day to sign up.

Co-ed bowling - Participation in this sport increases every year. Get a team together and register by tomorrow.

Volleyball - Co-ed, men's and women's teams top the bill in this event. Last day to present your roster for co-ed action is Oct. 10. Separate males and female teams must be signed up by Oct. 19.

Golf - Get that swing grooved for 2-man team match play at Hangman Valley. Sign up by tomorrow.

Handball - Register by Nov. 2 and be ready to start play on Nov. 5.

Basketball (3-on-3) - Should be some pretty fast action here. Play starts Nov. 12 and all rosters are due in by Nov. 9.

Baseball - Check in with the intramural office for rules and other details.

Entry forms and further information on all sports can be obtained by stopping in at HPE 252 or by calling 359-2461

Harriers Eye Western Clan

By Jon White
Sports Reporter

Led by stars Bob Maplestone and Rick Hebron, Eastern's 1973 cross country team appears to be a strong contender to dethrone defending champion Western this year.

Coach Bob Barr said he is elated with this season's prospects and reports the team is in excellent physical shape except for a few minor injuries.

Maplestone, two-time conference cross country king, was sidelined from last week's meet at Whitworth with tendonitis. Gerri Franklin, a promising freshman, also was plagued by tendonitis, but both appear to be recovering nicely.

"Just off past experience, we could be right in there," Barr explained. "But, he added, Western is the team to beat." Maplestone and Hebron undoubtedly will be tough to beat, but the key to team success will be those runners following the dynamic duo. That's where Dean Hatt, Bob Barbaro and Dave Atkins enter the scene.

The squad recently conditioned in the thin air of the Cascades, hiking and running daily. Barr said he was not only pleased with the physical progress, but was impressed with the group's mental eagerness as well.

Western, slightly favored to take the title again this year, had tremendous depth last season but is an unknown quality up to the present time.

EWSC, meanwhile, showed great potential last week at Whitworth as the times were exceptional for this stage of the season. The Eagles are not only eyeing the conference crown this year, but the district championship as well.

CROSS COUNTRY SCHEDULE: Oct. 6 - U. of Idaho Invitational (Moscow)--Oct. 20 - Whitworth (Spokane)--Oct. 27 - Eastern Oregon Invitational (LaGrande)--Nov. 3 - EvCo Championships (Bellingham)--Nov. 10 - NAIA District 1 Championships (Vancouver, B.C.)--Nov. 17 - NAIA National Championships (Salina, Kansas).

Wolfe's Jockey Shorts

By Gary Wolfe

Looking into the shorts this week, we find baseballs. Since it's the end of the season, here they are:

Oakland, Cal....It is rumored that next year Oakland A's owner Charley Finley will have his players decked out in yellow uniforms with pink piping, gold Napoleon buttons, silver beanie with fluorescent spinners, a large picture of Finley on the back and purple shoes.

Finley vehemently denies his players will be wearing purple shoes.

Atlanta, Ga....Henry Aaron attributes his home run hitting prowess to his monk-like dedication to the game, a proper diet and his use of an eight pound bat.

Cleveland, Ohio...Cleveland pitcher Gaylord Perry, long accused of throwing "doctored" baseballs, recently defended his purchase of four cases of Vaseline on the grounds that it was to be used for sick, erotic purposes.

Detroit, Mich....After striking out four straight times, one American League hitter commented on California Angel's pitching star Nolan Ryan. "The odds on hitting his fastball are about the same as getting a straight brownie from Dr. Leary."

Houston, Tex....Twenty-seven deceased cows recently discovered in Houston were found to have massive amounts of green plastic in their stomachs. The mystery was cleared up when a farmer admitted allowing his herd to graze in the Astrodome. The farmer was charged with blatant weirdness.

"Promenade All" Features Fine Acting And Humor

By T.A. Atkinson
Staff Writer

A crowd of about 130 persons enjoyed the first drama production of the school year Sept. 27 at the opening performance of "Promenade All," at the College Theatre.

The comedy of four acts depicts the progress of the Huntziger family through successive generations. The first three acts consisted of rapidly moving, uninhibited, somewhat licentious humor which the audience greatly enjoyed. The last act slows to expose more of the relevant moral issues that the plot is based on.

Fine acting enhanced the excellent material. Jim Sheridan, Laura Mathaison and Warren Moutz talentedly executed exacting multiple roles. John Dearing performed a no less impressive single role. Ken King portrayed the character of Wesley Hunt with marked vivacity.

The players were supported by excellent technical assistance. Directed by drama department chairman R. Boyd Devin, the production ran three nights last weekend and will conclude this weekend with performances Oct. 4, 5 and 6 with curtain time at 7:30. The general public is invited, with students admitted free of charge.

Beginning Nov. 15 the drama department will present their second performance, "By Jupiter," which will replace "Guys and Dolls" previously scheduled. Other plays to be presented this year include: "The Homecoming," "Blithe Spirit," "Mr. Roberts," and "And Miss Readon Drinks A Little."

Lecture Series Slated For Fall

Pulitzer Prize winner Maxine Kumin will head a list of five lecturers to be presented at EWSC this fall, William D. Thomas, Lyceum director, announced last week.

The lecture series will be held in Showalter Auditorium beginning Oct. 11 at no charge to the public.

Ms. Kumin won the 1973 Pulitzer Prize for Poetry for her book "Up Country." She has also written three other poetry books, three novels and several children's books. She will speak Oct. 11 at 11:00 a.m.

Other scheduled appearances include:

--Dr. Robert Jay Lifton, author of "History and Human Survival" and "Home from the War," Oct. 12 at 9 a.m. Lifton spent several years in the Far East studying the psychological effects of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

--James Moffett, author of "A Student-Centered Language Arts Curriculum" and "Teaching the Universe of Discourse," at 10:30 a.m. on Oct. 12.

--University of Georgia art professor, Dr. Edmund Burke Feldman, will speak on "Recent Developments in Art" on Oct. 26 at 11 a.m.

--New York Times reporter Neil Sheehan will speak on Nov. 19 at 10:00 a.m. on "The Pentagon Papers and the Centralized State."

"Strawdogs" Film Requires Stomach

"Strawdogs," the film shown Saturday night in the fall film series, "Flawlessly expresses Peckinpaw's belief that manhood requires rites of violence," or so goes its billing. The artists involved projected this billing expertly.

Peckinpaw produced the sequences of violence and sex graphically and realistically--that is what he is recognized for. Those who enjoyed the film probably enjoyed it for such segments. But many in the audience didn't deeply appreciate the film, a common response "I think I'm gonna puke"

Dustin Hoffman portrayed David Sumner, an American mathematician who, accompanied by his wife (Susan George), takes up residence in Britain to write. He does not accomplish much writing but does utilize great ingenuity in killing five men.

The film dragged through the first half and then suddenly perked up with a stimulating rape scene, then proceeded to culminate in the finale of incredible death.

For a quarter it was a fair deal. Hopefully we will be better entertained by this weekend's film "Fritz the Cat."

Donna Bruce won a case of her "favorite" beverage after a random drawing of refrigerator serial numbers. George Jacoby received the prize for Donna.

Student Input Wanted In Faculty Bargaining

By Darin Krogh
Staff Writer

The welfare of college students might be overlooked as faculties attempt to "unionize" and institute collective bargaining with their respective administrations.

ASB President Carol Worthington said students will be directly affected but "will not be represented" in the collective bargaining between faculty and administration "unless the bills to be introduced to the state legislature include provisions reflecting student interests."

"Policy, procedures, professors' office hours, courses offered and other items of student interest will be settled without student representation," Worthington said. "Students should have representation in collective bargaining if student matters are affected."

A national convention of student leaders is to be held later this year in New York to determine how best to achieve student representation in campus collective bargaining. Worthington said that because of lack of travel funds, Eastern may not be able to send a student representative to the national convention, a situation she termed as "A real loss for Eastern."

The ASB Officers' travel budget, Worthington said, was cut from last year's $3,000 to $750.

Campus Faculty Representatives (CFR), the National Association of University Professors (NAUP) and other organizations are competing to be chosen as the representative bargaining agent for faculty members, Worthington said. A representative that includes student input should be selected, she said.

"As students we are consumers of the educational product," ASB Treasurer Tom Rantz said. "We (students) deserve a voice in campus bargaining."

Hawaii Trip Set For Geologists

EWSC geology students have an opportunity to spend Christmas vacation in Hawaii studying the geology of the islands and active volcanoes, according to William L. Wilkerson of the Geology Department.

Wilkerson said the cost of the trip from Seattle would be $230 and would include all ground transportation while in Hawaii and four nights in a hotel. The remainder of the seven day directed study would be spent camping out.

Run in cooperation with Portland State University and a group of community colleges in the Seattle area, students would leave Sea-Tac International Airport Dec. 13 and return any time after the seven-day class ended.

Wilkerson said interested students should contact him before the end of October and should sign up for Geology 299 as part of their winter quarter load during the prereistration period.

Evening Classes Set

Two evening political science courses will be offered fall quarter as a result of funding provided by the Carthage Foundation.

A seminar on "National Security: A Comparative View of the U.S. and U.S.S.R.," will be offered Oct. 15 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in Kingston Hall for four weeks.

Another seminar, "Bureaucracy and Organization: The Individual in the Military," will run from Nov. 19 to Dec. 10.

The seminars will be instructed by Dr. Robert C. Herold and Dr. Shane E. Mahoney, and will include lectures by other members of the political science department and guest speakers.

Volunteers Needed To Man Rap-In Crisis Center Phones

Volunteers for RAP-IN, the student-operated Information-Crisis Center, are needed for fall quarter.

RAP-IN opened its telephone lines last Friday on a temporary schedule of 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., seven days a week. Service is to be expanded as soon as new volunteers are trained, according to Kathy Musgrove, RAP-IN coordinator.

RAP-IN's telephones (359-7979) are manned entirely by student volunteers and by students receiving two to five credit hours. Volunteers are given training in interpersonal communication, information handling, crisis intervention and responding to drug calls and personal problems, Musgrove said.

All personal information remains strictly confidential, she stressed.

Since its inception in the spring of 1971, RAP-IN has been expanding its role to become an up-to-date information resource of services and activities on campus, in Cheney and in Spokane, Musgrove said. RAP-IN also serves as a referral agency for contact with many available social and health services and is currently setting up a baby-sitter service (give them your name, number, hours and price).

Those interested in being a RAP-IN volunteer or to work in the program for college credit should contact Musgrove at 208L Martin Hall, 356-2366.

Magic Bus Fare To Go Up 10¢

The Transit System recently acquired the parking space under the freeway but must pay the City of Spokane $6,000 annual rent. Harder said the purpose of acquiring the additional parking space was to cut down on the number of Students using the Coliseum parking lot due to increased activity at the Coliseum during the day.

"This coupled with the number of people taking advantage of the downtown shuttle bus has drastically reduced the number of parking spaces available at the Coliseum," he said.

Harder added the new parking lot would be more convenient for students living on the South and East sides of Spokane, it will be lighted at night and during the winter afford some protection from the snow.

The announced price hike of ten cents each way for students taking the Magic Bus to and from Spokane will take effect immediately upon completion of a new contract between the Spokane Transit System and EWSC, Transit Manager Robert W. Harder said Tuesday.

Harder said the contract will be completed "in the very near future" but was unable to give a specific date.

The rate increase which will affect approximately 1,200 students, will generate an additional $20,000 a year for the transit system and will be used to pay for higher operating costs and for the rental of parking space for EWSC students under Interstate 90 between Jefferson and Walnut.

Drug Program To Be Terminated If Legislature Denies Budget

The Drug Information Mobile Crisis Organization (DIMCO) will terminate its program at EWSC if a budget request is denied by the A.S. legislature next week, Mrs. Mary Guillotte, co-director of the organization, said this week.

DIMCO is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping students with drug related problems.

Confidentiality is one of the main objectives DIMCO stresses, said Mrs. Guillotte. DIMCO keeps a record of the various calls it receives for future reference, she said, but names are not recorded or released.

The success of DIMCO cannot be measured, Mrs. Guillotte said. "If one person has been helped by the struggling efforts of this organization, then it is a success," she said. Over 40 drug abuse cases were treated during winter quarter last year.

Red Cross Seeks Tutors

The Inland Empire Chapter of American National Red Cross is looking for volunteer tutors to work with school children in the Spokane area, according to Mrs. Robert B. Harper of the Red Cross Tutor Program.

Mrs. Harper said tutors are needed in all subject areas. Students would work two hours per week and the hours are flexible. Interested students should contact Dr. Dean Gaudette, 213 Martin Hall.
