Governor Delays Appointment

Selection of a new Board of Trustees member, originally scheduled to be announced this week by Governor Dan Evans, has been delayed for at least one week, according to Jim Deliver, assistant to Governor Evans.

In an interview, Deliver said the governor did not want to release the information at the present time. "I do not know who the governor will select or who he has in mind, but the announcement will be as soon as possible."

The new board member will fill the vacancy left by Harvey Erickson of Spokane. Erickson, who has been a member of the Board of Trustees for the last 13 years, has recently announced his resignation.

When Erickson resigned, he requested that Governor Evans select either a recent college graduate or a member of a minority group.

Whether or not Governor Evans will follow this suggestion is a matter of speculation at this time. Erickson is a member of the Board of Trustees for the last 13 years, and he has been a member of the board since 1966.

Business Office Manages Bookstore
Increase In SUB Profits Expected

Walter W. Field Memorial Union is the home of the bookstore. Harbor, information-concession booths, room lounges, Associated Student offices, KERC, journalism department and post office. It is also the building in which many Eastern students spend a great deal of time and a great deal of their money.

Areas; (1) the bookstore and (2) the rest of the SUB services category. Now an auxiliary enterprise of the bookstore was included in the rest of the SUB services.

Completion of the new SUB in 1971 will ease the financial strain on present SUB services.

Anthropologist Speaks Today

Dr. Francis L.K. Hsu, chairman of the department of anthropology at Northwestern University, will speak on "Anthropology and the Modern World" at Eastern today at 9:30 a.m. in Showalter Auditorium.

Dr. Hsu, who came to the United States in 1944, was educated in China and England and was on the faculty of the National Yunnan University in southwestern China from 1941 to 1945. He was on the faculties of Columbia and Cornell Universities before joining Northwestern in 1947. He has done extensive research and field work in the Orient, India and the United States and has received grants from the Rockefeller and Carnegie Foundations, the government of India and others.

GAL E FOWLER EXHIBITS HIS skill as a rodeo clown during the Cheney Rodeo, last Saturday and Sunday, as he attempts to attract the bull's attention away from a fallen cowboy. Fowler, an Eastern student, was recently injured while performing as a clown. Approximately 2000 persons attended both days of the event held at the rodeo grounds, two miles north of Cheney. A parade Saturday afternoon and a street dance Saturday night were included in the rodeo festivities.

Trustees Meet

Eastern's Board of Trustees will hold its monthly meeting on campus Friday, 6 p.m., in the Marigold Room, Towanda Commons.

Included on the agenda are bid recommendations for building repairs, construction and financing.

Lufkin Captures Second In Public Links Tourney

Fred Lufkin, number one man on Eastern's golf team for the past two years, finished in the first place for second in the recently completed National Amateur Public Links Golf Championship in Erie, Pennsylvania.

It was the highest finish ever by a Spokane golfer in the Public Links Championship.

Winner of the tourney was John Jackson of Tempe, Arizona, who fired a low round 70 to finish with a four round total of 282, two strokes ahead of three other challengers, including Lufkin.

Lufkin and several other golfers had a chance to catch Jackson on the last few holes but all shot themselves out of contention.

Lufkin had a chance to tie Jackson, needing a par on the 18th hole which would have forced an 18-hole play-off the next day.

Lufkin drove into the right-hand rough and hit an apparently fine second shot to the green of the 14th yard finishing hole. However, the ball was deflected into a trap in the back side of the green.20 yards short of the putting area, Lufkin blasted out of the trap and into another, ending his chances for a tie.

His final score was a 76 for a four day total of 294, two strokes behind Jackson.

Lufkin, a 27-year-old political science major, was leading the tournament at the 18th hole but he lost it at the 15th when he bogied the par 3 hole.

This is the second time Lufkin has been in the Public Links for several years ago he competed in the tournament when it was match play but was defeated in the first go-around by George Archer, now a professional and the recent winner of the Master's Tournament.

Lufkin recently won the University Amateur at Liberty Lake and competed in the NAIA college golf tournament in early June where he helped represent Eastern in the national finals. Eastern, led by Lufkin, scored the lowest place in the finals.

Bookstore Improved

Employees of the College Bookstore are in the process of reshaping the paperback book section in an effort to make book-finding a little easier for the students," said Dick Johnson, bookstore manager.

Books will be arranged by subject and in alphabetical order according to author. This arrangement was expected to go into operation in 1971 with the opening of the new SUB and the expansion of the bookstore into Bali Lounge, but Johnson said he attempts to attract the bull's attention away from a fallen cowboy. Fowler, an Eastern student, was recently injured while performing as a clown. Approximately 2000 persons attended both days of the event held at the rodeo grounds, two miles north of Cheney. A parade Saturday afternoon and a street dance Saturday night were included in the rodeo festivities.

Trustees Meet

Eastern's Board of Trustees will hold its monthly meeting on campus Friday, 6 p.m., in the Marigold Room, Towanda Commons.

Included on the agenda are bid recommendations for building repairs, construction and financing.

Lufkin Captures Second In Public Links Tourney

Fred Lufkin, number one man on Eastern's golf team for the past two years, finished in the first place for second in the recently completed National Amateur Public Links Golf Championship in Erie, Pennsylvania.

It was the highest finish ever by a Spokane golfer in the Public Links Championship.

Winner of the tourney was John Jackson of Tempe, Arizona, who fired a low round 70 to finish with a four round total of 282, two strokes ahead of three other challengers, including Lufkin.

Lufkin and several other golfers had a chance to catch Jackson on the last few holes but all shot themselves out of contention.

Lufkin had a chance to tie Jackson, needing a par on the 18th hole which would have forced an 18-hole play-off the next day.

Lufkin drove into the right-hand rough and hit an apparently fine second shot to the green of the 14th yard finishing hole. However, the ball was deflected into a trap in the back side of the green.20 yards short of the putting area, Lufkin blasted out of the trap and into another, ending his chances for a tie.

His final score was a 76 for a four day total of 294, two strokes behind Jackson.

Lufkin, a 27-year-old political science major, was leading the tournament at the 18th hole but he lost it at the 15th when he bogied the par 3 hole.

This is the second time Lufkin has been in the Public Links for several years ago he competed in the tournament when it was match play but was defeated in the first go-around by George Archer, now a professional and the recent winner of the Master's Tournament.

Lufkin recently won the University Amateur at Liberty Lake and competed in the NAIA college golf tournament in early June where he helped represent Eastern in the national finals. Eastern, led by Lufkin, scored the lowest place in the finals.

Bookstore Improved

Employees of the College Bookstore are in the process of reshaping the paperback book section in an effort to make book-finding a little easier for the students," said Dick Johnson, bookstore manager.

Books will be arranged by subject and in alphabetical order according to author. This arrangement was expected to go into operation in 1971 with the opening of the new SUB and the expansion of the bookstore into Bali Lounge, but Johnson said he attempts to attract the bull's attention away from a fallen cowboy. Fowler, an Eastern student, was recently injured while performing as a clown. Approximately 2000 persons attended both days of the event held at the rodeo grounds, two miles north of Cheney. A parade Saturday afternoon and a street dance Saturday night were included in the rodeo festivities.

Trustees Meet

Eastern's Board of Trustees will hold its monthly meeting on campus Friday, 6 p.m., in the Marigold Room, Towanda Commons.

Included on the agenda are bid recommendations for building repairs, construction and financing.

Lufkin Captures Second In Public Links Tourney

Fred Lufkin, number one man on Eastern's golf team for the past two years, finished in the first place for second in the recently completed National Amateur Public Links Golf Championship in Erie, Pennsylvania.

It was the highest finish ever by a Spokane golfer in the Public Links Championship.

Winner of the tourney was John Jackson of Tempe, Arizona, who fired a low round 70 to finish with a four round total of 282, two strokes ahead of three other challengers, including Lufkin.

Lufkin and several other golfers had a chance to catch Jackson on the last few holes but all shot themselves out of contention.

Lufkin had a chance to tie Jackson, needing a par on the 18th hole which would have forced an 18-hole play-off the next day.

Lufkin drove into the right-hand rough and hit an apparently fine second shot to the green of the 14th yard finishing hole. However, the ball was deflected into a trap in the back side of the green.20 yards short of the putting area, Lufkin blasted out of the trap and into another, ending his chances for a tie.

His final score was a 76 for a four day total of 294, two strokes behind Jackson.

Lufkin, a 27-year-old political science major, was leading the tournament at the 18th hole but he lost it at the 15th when he bogied the par 3 hole.

This is the second time Lufkin has been in the Public Links for several years ago he competed in the tournament when it was match play but was defeated in the first go-around by George Archer, now a professional and the recent winner of the Master's Tournament.

Lufkin recently won the University Amateur at Liberty Lake and competed in the NAIA college golf tournament in early June where he helped represent Eastern in the national finals. Eastern, led by Lufkin, scored the lowest place in the finals.

Bookstore Improved

Employees of the College Bookstore are in the process of reshaping the paperback book section in an effort to make book-finding a little easier for the students," said Dick Johnson, bookstore manager.

Books will be arranged by subject and in alphabetical order according to author. This arrangement was expected to go into operation in 1971 with the opening of the new SUB and the expansion of the bookstore into Bali Lounge, but Johnson said he attempts to attract the bull's attention away from a fallen cowboy. Fowler, an Eastern student, was recently injured while performing as a clown. Approximately 2000 persons attended both days of the event held at the rodeo grounds, two miles north of Cheney. A parade Saturday afternoon and a street dance Saturday night were included in the rodeo festivities.
NECK PAIN EASED

The SUB Bookstore paper-back section, long a pain in the neck for many Easterners and faculty members, is now in the process of revamping of the paperback-reference book section of its facility. After a year of discussing the much-needed change in the shelving system, the Bookstore personnel have come up with a system much like the type used in libraries. The first step in the reorganization of the display was the moving of the books to the third floor of Showalter. It used to be that everyone on the walk would smile and say hello to all who passed. The tradition is confusing, though, as it doesn’t say whether or not a “hello” is proper anywhere else on campus.

Eastern has the equivalent of Ireland’s Blarney stone with its students, including this writer, even realizing that it exists. Granted it is not located in the most advantageous spot between Showalter and the church on the corner of Fifth and “D” Streets and just a few yards from the street—but one would think that after all these years there would be more than six sets of initials.

The tradition says that after three months of “going steady,” a couple may carve their initials in the rock and seal it with a kiss.

Either Eastern couples don’t go together that long or there aren’t many chiselers on campus.

Then too there is “hello” walk, the stroll from Fifth Street to the front door of Showalter. It used to be that everyone on the walk would smile and say hello to all who passed. The tradition is confusing, though, as it doesn’t say whether or not a “hello” is proper anywhere else on campus.

Eastern also has a “Lover’s Lane” located along Monroe Hall on the way to Martin Hall. It has trees and bushes on both sides of the moon supposedly shines brightest through the trees along this lane.

Whether traditions are believable or sane has little to do with it. Eastern’s traditions will be obsolete in a few years unless students and faculty alike bring them back into vogue.

It is the duty of those loyal to old EVSC to push ahead and make traditions a part of their everyday lives.

So be patriotic... go out and kiss that rock.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pat On Back

Editor: Somebody sent me a copy of The Easterner of July 2, 1969, and I write to congratulate you on the makeup of the paper.

Many years ago when I was a student in Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, I worked on the staff of the college paper and was editor in my senior year, and I have seen many college publications.

Although I have been a congressman and a senator, I have never forgotten those days, and reading your paper caused me to be impressed with the cleverness of the printed titles, the interesting material and the editorials and letters from students.

Your method of criticism is interesting.

I like your rudeness.

Raps Pearce

Editor: More than four weeks have elapsed since summer quarter commenced.

During this time Pearce Hall has offered no social functions to its residents.

Each member was assessed $3 for the quarter’s beginning and assured of a return on his investment.

To date we have seen no return. Certainism of social functions, according to one resident assistant, is due to five or six residents who have not paid their $3.

If this be the only roadblock to staging activities, I strongly suggest dorm officials make debtors pay up or, failing that, restrict them from attending Pearce Hall events.

Two weeks remain in the seven-week quarter. I suggest the social treasury (containing at least $400) be invested in elevating boring summer evenings. If dorm management fails to do this, dorm residents have no recourse but to demand refunds.

Steve L. Miller

U.S.-Russian Space

On July 21st, if all goes well, a human being will set his foot down on the surface of the moon. It will be the greatest achievement known to man, and what’s more—the entire world will view the historic moment, as it is happening, via lunar television.

In keeping with other momentous occasions in history, such as the discovery of America by Columbus, commander Neil Armstrong will utter the first words from the surface of the moon that will go down in history.

What will these few words be? We can only guess.

In keeping with other momentous occasions in history, such as the discovery of America by Columbus, commander Neil Armstrong will utter the first words from the surface of the moon that will go down in history.

I hope these words will be remembered because they were said by a man not by an American. With the landing on the moon an objective of eight extensive years will have reached a climax. What happens then? It is a long jump from the moon to any of our neighboring planets.

If the quest in science is to continue, not only a tremendous budget will be needed, but cooperation between the countries of the U.S. and Russia.

As commander Frank Borman of Apollo 8 said on his return from Russia, it would be to both countries’ advantage to combine programs. Borman said several Russian space officials expressed the desire to combine efforts in the space program, so duplication of objectives could be avoided and better use made of the millions of dollars poured into space.

This would enable man to combine his efforts to explore the universe with added vitality and with an increased chance for success.

It is hoped that in the not too distant future, political motives of the two nations will be overcome and a joint space program will become a reality.

Found: One Lost Needle

From Where I Sit

By Robert Jones

U.S.-Russian Space

On July 21st, if all goes well, a human being will set his foot down on the surface of the moon. It will be the greatest achievement known to man, and what’s more—the entire world will view the historic moment, as it is happening, via lunar television.

In keeping with other momentous occasions in history, such as the discovery of America by Columbus, commander Neil Armstrong will utter the first words from the surface of the moon that will go down in history.

What will these few words be? We can only guess.

In keeping with other momentous occasions in history, such as the discovery of America by Columbus, commander Neil Armstrong will utter the first words from the surface of the moon that will go down in history.

I hope these words will be remembered because they were said by a man not by an American. With the landing on the moon an objective of eight extensive years will have reached a climax. What happens then? It is a long jump from the moon to any of our neighboring planets.

If the quest in science is to continue, not only a tremendous budget will be needed, but cooperation between the countries of the U.S. and Russia.

As commander Frank Borman of Apollo 8 said on his return from Russia, it would be to both countries’ advantage to combine programs. Borman said several Russian space officials expressed the desire to combine efforts in the space program, so duplication of objectives could be avoided and better use made of the millions of dollars poured into space.

This would enable man to combine his efforts to explore the universe with added vitality and with an increased chance for success.

It is hoped that in the not too distant future, political motives of the two nations will be overcome and a joint space program will become a reality.

Letters to the Editor

Any letter to the editor re­ceived by noon Friday preceding the week's publication will be printed. All letters must be signed, type-written, double-spaced and not exceed 250 words. All letters will be printed as received with the exception of paragraphing.

Pat On Back

Editor: Somebody sent me a copy of The Easterner of July 2, 1969, and I write to congratulate you on the makeup of the paper.

Many years ago when I was a student in Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, I worked on the staff of the college paper and was editor in my senior year, and I have seen many college publications.

Although I have been a congressman and a senator, I have never forgotten those days, and reading your paper caused me to be impressed with the cleverness of the printed titles, the interesting material and the editorials and letters from students.

I like your method of criticizing certain activities at the college because of its being fair and temperate, and that should appeal to anybody, whether he agrees with you or not.

You have my best wishes for success in your literary efforts, especially if you go on to be a newspaperman as I did before I became a lawyer and member of Congress.

Clarence C. Dill

Raps Pearce

Editor: More than four weeks have elapsed since summer quarter commenced.

During this time Pearce Hall has offered no social functions to its residents.

Each member was assessed $3 for the quarter’s beginning and assured of a return on his investment.

To date we have seen no return. Certainism of social functions, according to one resident assistant, is due to five or six residents who have not paid their $3.

If this be the only roadblock to staging activities, I strongly suggest dorm officials make debtors pay up or, failing that, restrict them from attending Pearce Hall events.

Two weeks remain in the seven-week quarter. I suggest the social treasury (containing at least $400) be invested in elevating boring summer evenings. If dorm management fails to do this, dorm residents have no recourse but to demand refunds.

Steve L. Miller

Health Director Here Tomorrow

Dr. David J. Johnson, director of the health counseling center, Baylor University, Waco, Texas, will speak on “Implications of Career Development for Public Schools” here tomorrow at 11:40 a.m. in lounge in Tawanda Commons.

Dr. Johnson, a member of the summer quarter visiting faculty, will speak at a meeting of the Eastern chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, international fraternity for men in education.
ew to Host Ed Convention
Eastern will host more than 1500 high school, vocational technical institute and community college teachers at the annual week-long convention of the Washington Vocational Association and the State Division of Vocational Education.

Beginning August 18, the group will gather in separate sections of six vocational education area areas. The six areas covered are: vocational education are areas: agriculture, distribution education, home and family life, office occupations, trade and counseling.

Although nearly 400,000 persons received vocational education and training in large part during the past two years, explosive industrial growth has created a tremendous need for people.

John Elliott, WY president and vocational agriculture instructor at Spokane Community College, said, "Opportunities are greater, but thousands of skilled workers are imported into Washington each year because we can't train them fast enough."

Most critical needs in the state are for entry-level production workers and skilled office workers and for trained sales and service workers.

By Ruth Westergard
The metamorphosis of style, attitudes, and humor at Eastern during the last forty years has been made in some instances and surprisingly radical in others as the following items will exemplify.

Fashion, the most visual change, is typified in a 1928 issue of The Easterner equivalent, the Normal School Journal. In describing a school fashion show the newspaper stated that even in warm weather "Ties are an absolute necessity. And, "Men will appear in dark coat and light trousers at tea."

Dietasches such as "Vanity was proving very ridiculous in age when "do your own thing" is a pet slogan.

Although the form, "Lost in translation," is generally applied to a foreign language, it frequently occurs in a native tongue. Once wor'red, in 1928, stated, "the electric curling iron is the best aid to a "hard-boiled" aspect for a woman." The exact meaning of "hard-boiled" is difficult to tell.

What would now be an eyebrow raising headline, "Miss Filmpion Honored by Affairs," was printed in large bold type in 1928.

Enjoying numerous personal freedoms, young adults in 1929 will find the following account printed under the title, "Dancing Rules Applied by Campus," comparable to a mimeographed copy of the current campus form.

The following dancing rules for the National Association of Dancing Masters, are to be observed.

"If you are leading, place your right hand between the shoulders of your partner, keeping your elbow away from your body. See that above, but not resting on your partner's left shoulder. Place your right arm at right angles with your body, her hand at the back of the curve of your shoulder. Let your hand palm, clasp your partner's right. A line from these hands to the opposite elbow should be parallel with your partner's arm."

"Choke to Cheek dancing, the hop and other conscious dances are taboo, according to the rules and regulations formulated by the student dance committee of the Normal School. Repetition of the offense after due warning will automatically bar the offender from school dances."

Basic to human society is the ability to laugh and to make others laugh, although it adds to or alters the form, seldom subtracts the fun from it. The following quips were printed under the title, "Free Air and Gas" in 1929.

"Where is your car bob?"

Financial Aid Offices explained that funds for increasing his staff must come from the state legislature.

Concerning the transfer of student placement Dolan said that his office was not able to carry out the selection and placement because they do not have staff to give placement tests or do the necessary interviewing. To be effective in this area the Aid Office would need an additional full-time clerk to handle the testing and interviewing.

Another problem harrying the Aid Office is the revolving fund. This fund was established to provide short term loans for students. Normally the fund has about $30,000 dollars to work with, but at present, half of this amount is tied up in bad debts.

Bettendorf Of Mankind Advocated By Scientist

"Betterment of mankind by scientific research" was the main theme expressed by Dr. Isidor Shipiro in his speech last Wednesday entitled "Science and Humanism - Are They in Conflict?"

Dr. Shipiro, a nuclear physicist and space scientist, is founder and chief scientist of the Laboratory for Cosmic Ray Physics at the Naval Research Laboratory.

Speaking in Showalter Hall, Shipiro said that "the scientists regard achievement of a better mankind." While there is some conflict between the sciences, he added, liberal arts "the scientist wants to save man's existence and this is also the function of the humanities," said Shipiro.

"The scientist's relation to society is the same as man's. They do not care how social and political views as do poets and novelists, but they are concerned with society and realize fully that obligations exist," said Shipiro.

Scientists seek a quest for peace by understanding each other. He explores every avenue for cultural and scientific exchange between countries in the East and West, said Dr. Shipiro, who has given numerous lectures in many countries, including Russia.

The Russian scientists must ask themselves, asserts Dr. Shipiro, "How can the scientist contribute to human betterment here?" Within the next 20 to 30 years scientific advances through investigations and research will lift man from drudgery, said Shipiro.

When Eastern Was Normal

Robert Ramsey: "I did take my car down town!"

"You sure did!"

"I'll be blamed, I remember now that after I got turned around to thank the fellow who gave me the lift and wondered where he got to!"

Jane: "Why are you writing your jokes on tissue paper?"

Evelyn: "The oil's running a little light hum!"

Love Song

Your hair is as black as the trodden snow
In a city of Pittsburgh street;
Your cheeks are as pale as the alabast
With the blush of a picketed belt.

Your lashes are long and thick and curved
And the brows of your eyes is like nothing so much
As the bacons with scrambled eggs.

Your ears are as pink as the delfied blooming
That appears on my roommate's face.

But I hope someday you'll have to say
For being a cross-eyed flirt.

Crucial conditions that existed in 1928 are common situations having to be faced today. These were described recently by Robert Ramsey, The Normal School Journal in 1928.

"Start Many Forest Fires, "- Sound Ads Are Arch Offenders In Causing Confagratia, - " America Should Cooperate To Secure Peace of World, Sound Peace?"
‘Over 30’ Generation Views Campus Unrest

In an attempt to reach a few conclusions about student unrest prevalent on many of the nation’s campuses today, The Easterner has conducted a poll of students over thirty. Sixty of the unique situations that arise during the day were against it and two were twenty-two people interviewed along with they need to know something.

Conducted a poll of students over thirty. Twelve were in favor of more student involvement in administrative affairs. Eight were against it and two were undecided.

This may surprise many people, and indeed, it did surprise The Easterner and the staff who carried on the interviews. The “generation gap,” if this small poll can be related to the citizenry of the country in general, is more a phrase than reality.

This tally also shows to a certain extent that adults are not handed together against the student population nor are they in any conspiracy against the youth of the nation.

Below are comments of ten of the twenty-two people interviewed along with their photographs. Because of space limitations, not all the people interviewed could have corresponding pictures used in the survey. The pictures and comments used were picked at random from the group interviewed.

Maurice Mintzer, a 35-year-old educator, said, “I believe every school needs a community center. I think there is a certain stage in life on which the person must have a place to look to and a crew of their own.

Craig Logan, a principal from Elmer, asserted: “Students are not demanding requests which are not economical. They have a right to be a part of the selection-making process.”

Don Lombe, a 30-year-old high school teacher, said: “Yes, I don’t think students know enough about the necessity to make decisions. I don’t feel they are qualified for this.”

Gene Dipple, a 36-year-old student, said: “I think students are justified in wanting representatives on the Board of Trustees. But as far as administering policy, I think people more qualified should do this. Students, however, should be consulted.”

Bill Zappane, a 42-year-old journalism adviser and high school teacher, said: “I don’t believe they should interfere with administrative policies in the actual function of the college. As for individual rights, though, everyone has them. College is here to give people an education. I came here for that, but I can’t study if there is interference.”

Maurice Mintzer, a 35-year-old educator, said: “Yes, I do. The reason is, I think, because colleges are state supported schools and taxpayers are paying for the school. Administrators should have control over the students. Students, who are here only for four years, should not be allowed to dictate policy to those who come after.”

Mitchell Sundseth, a 30-year-old dental technician, said: “I’ve got a tooth in my mouth and that’s all I care about.”

Mary Thacker, an 8th grade teacher who is 49, said: “I don’t find it exceedingly hard to get direction in my Master’s program, such as getting advisors. I very definitely feel a change is necessary in the students today. They are very well qualified and informed. Much more than when I was going to school. They can certainly add to the administrative process.”

Bill Mason, a 41-year-old student, said: “I think students should have more control in some areas. Most of the protest, however, seems to come from minority groups. I get offended when such groups ask a school to turn itself upside down for 20 or 30 students.”

Sue Lehinger, a 34-year-old student, said: “The type of administration we have now is not adequate to the student needs. I’m not sure what should be done about it. Whether more student involvement is needed or an intellectual revolution on the adult level.”

Joyce Halman, a 29-year-old teacher, said: “No. At best, suggests a sense of involvement and concern for what is happening in the world. Sometimes I question the means, but the motivation is good.”

The Lone Attendant

By TOM JUDSON

With the journalistic fervor typical of writers for The Easterner, I got up at 6 a.m. in the morning (there is such an hour: to check out the rumored parking problem on campus.

There is a problem. The laws of supply and demand and “the strong survive” exist in classic examples. About 6:30 the hardy commuters start arriving in a long stream of machines and a cloud of exhaust.

I was driving my car around to observe the scene when I noticed the situation. I noticed that many returning teachers ride in groups. They spot a parking place (always on the opposite side of the street), let one of their number out to “take and hold” the position. She plants her legs firmly and a little apart in the middle of the parking slot. Then with a look on her face. Similar to that of Attila the Hun when sacking a city, she swung her 35 pound purse over her head to ward off all comers. This is very effective since it is a natural law that you should attack a group of people with a large group.

Those of us who have been through many credits are among those that are full of Christian love for their fellow man. In the parking war, however, they are topnotch opportunists. They, of course, do not use the same methods as the M.M.A. (Millionaire Middling Agers) but they always win.

The looks they give to would be spots stealers say, “I’ll turn you into a Prototype.” If that doesn’t chill the blood of the Lutherans and others among you. I am sure whatever the look means is enough to keep you from hedging into a place toward which a group of nuts is heading.

As seems obvious, all these commuters must mean that someone is losing. It is true. On several occasions I saw young women and less competitive older women break into tears over the steering wheel as they saw the last place taken and their classes begin.

This I could not stand. Something must be done about it. And so it was.

Protector of the weak and good, my band of hope, in the hope and finder of parking places; the Lone Attendant was born the next morning.

This time I went out in my car and turned in front of M.M.A.’s and allowed the innocent a place to park. The morning was spent helping those who can’t help themselves.

Glory and inner righteousness! As I leaped into my car after making another wrong right, I heard cries of, “Who was that masked man? I wanted to thank him.”

The lone attendant is still on the prowl, but with a smaller band of followers.

ED. TEST

Seniors and graduate students who have applied to challenge Ed. 449, Washington State Manual, and Ed. 181. Introduction to Education, will be administered the challenge test on July 14th, 5:30 p.m., Room 54 Martin Hall.

Anyone who is registered in the Ed. 44 class may not challenge.