The Human Rights Commission (HRC) has found probable cause to believe discrimination occurred in the failure to promote Dr. Charles B. Minor, Associate Professor of English, James Medina, HRC field representative, said in a telephone conversation Monday.

The finding was decided two months ago, Medina said, but the information was not made public until just recently.

"There will be a public hearing of the case, probably within the next couple months," Medina said since a conciliation meeting between the college administration and the HRC failed.

Unresolved Matter

"The matter is unresolved," Minor said in a prepared statement. "The HRC has completed its investigation and submitted its findings to the administration. Several other agencies are interested in the resolution of this case because several major principles are involved. These principles are based upon facts of law. The question still remains about whether the college has implemented its affirmative action policy or made serious efforts to cooperate fully with the Federal Government to enforce the spirit, intent and mandate of Executive Order 11246."

Personnel Procedures

Promotions at EWSU are determined by a letter written by the department chairman to the Personnel Unit composed by 15 faculty members in each department.

The Personnel Unit then draws up a list of those faculty who are eligible for promotion, and the list is given to the Deans who consult with a representative of each personnel unit. The Dean's committee then compiles their own list of those they feel should be promoted. The names are listed in order of preference, along with reasons for the recommendation.

Dr. Emerson Shuck, EWSU President, and Dr. Philip Marshall, Vice President of Academic Affairs, are the final authorities as to those promoted.

Shuck Responds

"We believe the personnel procedures for review of faculty for promotion is working," Dr. Shuck said, "and that the results of that procedure have to be honored by the college.

Shuck said the college attorney, Roger Reed, has met with the HRC in a conciliation meeting, "which did not result in a solution for Dr. Minor's complaint, and so the next step will be for the HRC to establish a hearing panel to review the case."

Prof. Minor Victim Of Discrimination

By Beverly Vorpahl

EWSU faculty member Kenneth Minor was placed third on the Personnel Unit's list and 15th on the Dean William Hoeckendorf's committee's list from the School of Letters and Science.

Hoeckendorf's list was returned for lack of documentation, and when the revised list was again submitted to the President, Minor's name was not included.

As a result of the omission, some of the English Dept. Personnel Unit resigned their position.

Even though these placements are to be confidential, Minor became aware of his position.

Hoeckendorf's committee said Minor did not qualify for promotion because of, "lack of evidence of superior scholarship."

The recommendation cited the fact that he, "had no published or unpublished material available to the committee."

Kill Machine

Dear Editor,

I have been reading the different comments about the ROTC program, and I am a veteran and still in the reserves. I have to believe somewhat in the views of Mr. Robert Bleicki. I believe that wars are immoral. I don’t believe in killing men, women, and children. I wish someday men would do away with wars and do like the children do, just play! If the differences between some men and their beliefs aren’t settled on a battlefield, then you’ll see peace. Until such a time, man will be having wars.

The ROTC is a good program for the student who wants to become part of the military and be an officer. I believe that the ROTC is better than the Academy and OCS. The ROTC program does build leaders and does create Exopit de Corps which is need for some students to believe in. These goals for the most part are fine goals to achieve.

The ROTC also teaches how to assault a defense, the proper use of the M-16 rifle and other such weapons. The ROTC teaches a man or woman the role of how to become a professional soldier. Most of the professions in the military are connected with what I call, “The Kill Machine.” This “Kill Machine” in that I think it is just like other examples that I can use to prove my point. The Armed Forces are proud of their professionalism. What I am advocating isn’t an abolition of ROTC, but the armed forces need the ROTC programs as long as we need wars to settle man’s arguments. When the time comes for man to stop using wars in this manner, then the time has come to abolish ROTC programs and others just like it. I guess a better way to say this is “When the crooks go honest and peaceful, then we won’t need a police force with a gun.”

In Energy

EWSC Faces 15% Cutback

By Diana Smith

EWSC will face a cut-back in energy consumption of 15 percent in compliance with Washington State's (and other western states') rationing of his energy conservation program in October. According to Charles De Poe, director of the physical plant, this is an increase of 5 percent over last year, and pertains to all forms of energy.

In connection, De Poe said, all state agencies, including EWSC, must turn in reports by Dec. 15, 1974, indicating their energy usage during the past two years, and projecting usage for the near future. This information will be used to establish an "energy budget," by the state agencies, so that energy conservation measures which have already been established will continue to be used.

Some of these measures, De Poe said, include:

- The use of energy saving light bulbs.
- The turning off of lights in areas of the building that are not occupied.
- The use of energy efficient appliances.
- The reduction of water usage.

"We will be polluting less," De Poe said, "but it is up to each individual to help in reducing energy consumption."

World Food Seminar Slated

A seminar on the world food crisis, entitled "More or Enough?" has been scheduled for the coming Wednesday, Satuday and Sunday afternoons at Westminster Congregational Church, 411 Washington St. in Spokane.

The seminar will be given by people from EWSC and the Cheney Environmental Center and will be participation in the program.

The seminar will focus on bringing to the attention of the local community the complex problem from a world-wide view of a national level. Those interested in attending all or part of the seminar should contact the speaker at 365-4852. Registration fee is $4 per person which includes the noon and evening meals Saturday. Alternative Life Styles Fair from 7:30 p.m. Saturday and the panel discussion 12:30 p.m. Sunday are open to the public and require no registration.

Leg. Debates Meet Time

By Jeff Lorello
Associate Editor

"Students are not interested because the legislature and student government don't give a god damn. It is about 90% student dead asses and did something about it." That statement by Vic Pestin at the Nov. 25 Legislative meeting characterized the lively debate regarding a change from 3 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. for Legislative meetings.

After the hour and a half discussion the legislature agreed unanimously to hold meetings in the dorms, but then added Pestin's original motion by voting to keep the meetings at 3 p.m. rather than 6:30.

"Student Input" Noted

The Easterner reported last week, surveys had been taken indicating students were "really excited" about the idea. Pestin reiterated this opinion and said it would "make us more accessible to student input." He said this would be a "golden opportunity" for the legislators to hear from students a chance to get involved.

Superior Court Justice Tori Pickrell, in the gallery, indicated agreement and said Streeter residents should "keep up." Pestin then made a motion calling for the next meeting to be held in the Morrison-Dietz dormitory purpose room at 6:30 p.m. and all meetings thereafter to be held at a different time of day.

Good time? Bad time? Legislators Bob Saling indicated agreement with the idea but questioned the change in time saying he would not be able to attend because of other commitments. He said, "If it works let's do them in different dorms, but if some of the time isn't convenient for someone, forget it." Pestin proposed an amendment to keep the meetings at 3 p.m. It was attacked by Pestin who said, "Let's do two meetings instead of one a week." Pestin said he was back from dinner.

Schedule Error

Dr. Neil Greenen, chairman of the foreign language dept., had announced an error in the Winter Schedule in the French Dept. Pestin had 5 has been applied to FRN 311, 321, 331, 411 and 441, when it should have applied only to FRN 497.

French 497 is not part of the regular program and is open only for seniors and graduate students who have had no previous French language training. It is an intensive reading course which concentrates on helping the students how to decode a French text into the English meaning, and has nothing to do with writing or speaking French.

Tunnels Heat Sidewalks

An interesting feature of many of the walkways around campus is that they remain free of snow and ice when the ground around them is covered.

According to Jack Quinn, assistant director of the physical plant, this is because the sidewalks are built over a network of tunnels which carry heated and chilled water to various parts of the campus.

Quinn also said that very little heat energy is lost through the pipes, which are insulated with 4 to 5 inches of fiberglass. However, the air in the tunnels is sufficiently warm to melt snow on the walkways when the air and ground above are at freezing levels.

Dr. Clifford Rajlafa, in the Geography Dept., explained, the ground 10 to 12 feet below the surface remains at a constant temperature, which in this area is around 45 degrees.

The ground heat is transferred to the air in the tunnels. As the warmer air circulates upward, it heats the concrete to the same temperature, melting any snow which may have fallen.

Many of the sidewalks on campus have been constructed to take advantage of this natural phenomenon, Quinn said. After all, "they had to put them somewhere."

The case arose from an altercation between the two in the AS office Nov. 26. The two had been at odds concerning holding AS Legislative meetings in the dormitories.

The court administered the two legislators in its final comment, "It is the opinion of the Court that students who have been elected to represent the Associated Students should set a better example," the court said.

Following the announcement of the court's decision Feeley and Pestin shook hands.

Student Found Guilty

Associated Student legislator Lawrence (Skip) Feeley was found guilty of assaulting legislator Vic Pestin by the AS Superior Court Tuesday afternoon.

Feeley, who pleaded nolo contendere, was issued a warning by the court, "that continuation or repetition of conduct found wrongful, within a period of time stated in the warning, may cause far more severe disciplinary action."

The warning will be in effect until June 1, 1975.

In addition Feeley was ordered to pay two dollars to Pestin for cleaning a ski coat.

Professor's Prerogative

A Different View of EWSC

This column is an open forum for all EWSC professors. The opinions expressed are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Easterner.

By Don Wall
Associate Professor
English

Everyone sees a different EWSC; I suppose, I've gotten the impression that Mr. Roskam sees classes filled with apathetic, vegetable-like students whose very roots need kicking; students who come to life only, perhaps, while disporting themselves in typical undergraduate revelry. The student letter's in response rage that students aren't lobotomized, their professors are; the vegetables are all behind the lectures at the front of the classroom.

Different View

I write this because the view I have of Eastern is quite a different one.

I don't deny, of course, that some students are apathetic. All of us have faced dull faces, sullen faces, lobotomized, their professors are; able to strike the right sparks to ignite the punky brain, the problem exists.

Nor do I deny that some professors are determinedly dull. Some of us are so successful at creating a soporific class atmosphere that we could put a hyperkinetic kid chock-full of speed into a semicatatonic condition. Hundreds of times I have passed offices where teacher and student were busy educating each other. Any numerous noisy classrooms, erupting daily in spirited argument, all by-products of the gassy gape-and-take of learning. All this happens, and frequently.

Eastern isn't Harvard

I certainly do not contend that Eastern is some unacknowledged Harvard. It isn't. And as long as apathetic students, time-serving professors and other undesirable features exist at all we should not be complacent. Whenever it is warranted, criticism should continue.

But while we are not Harvard, neither are we Parsons College, or any other jerkwax academic jungle. A good many students and faculty and many faculty have an unfilled inferiority complex about this college. The college has that it might become a self-fulfilling prophecy. I, for one, have been very happy teaching at Eastern, and therefore I resent what to me is the grossly distorted picture of the college we have been getting of late.

Eastern is admittedly a long way from being an academic paradise, but I think it is a damn sight better than the carpers, quibblers, complainers and bitchers would have us believe. These unfounded and apathetic professors have monopolized the media and have helped establish and perpetuate an image of the college that I believe to be false.

I think it is about time, or past time, that we are replaced with a more rational perspective. If anyone else out there thinks too, I'd like to hear their voices. How about it?

Civil Service Pay Raise

Civil Service employees on campus will receive a raise averaging 12 percent, it was decided last Friday at Ivan Zarling, director of personnel. The raises vary according to the position held, ranging from zero to 15 percent.

The amount of each raise will be determined by the "1974 Wage and Salary Survey." This survey, conducted by the 100,000-plus employees, found that the benchmark descriptions of each civil service position and the average salary should be comparable jobs by civilians in businesses and industries in the state.

EWSC, as well as all state colleges and universities, is required by law to use this survey in fixing salaries and determining raises.

"Keep-Up Factor"

Because the raise increases do not go into effect until July 1975, a "keep-up factor" of 10 percent will be implemented to keep pace with increases in civilian salaries.

The raises will be approved. If all the money is not used, Zarling said, "We'll have to back off and work out an equitable way to do it."

College Sues Students

College controller James Rogers Monday said the state will go to court over an $800 student in-dendent loan.

Rogers said the amount is minor compared with other suits to follow. He said some accounts range up to $2,000 and $3,000. Delinquent loans are money owed to the state.

Rogers said the $260 loan was the first returned to his office following a legal procedure outlined by the state attorney general's office. The loan came from a collection agency, which failed to locate the student.

Rogers said the procedure calls for the collection agency (Central Adjustment Bureau) to advise on whether to go to court. The bureau's lawyer, would represent the attorney general in court.

College consent must be given. Notification is served for the defendant to appear. Rogers said each defendant will be given another chance to pay. He said the court's decision is to be based on the defendant's ability to pay.

Rogers indicated the new procedure may cause students to pay before they case reaches court.

Defendants must pay court costs and attorneys' fees. Records show student own $54,000 in delinquent short term loans.

EWSC Honored

Eastern Washington State College has officially been named the first Bicentennial College by unanimous vote of the Washington State American Revolution Bicentennial Commission in Tacoma, Bruce Le Roy, chairman, said.

Dr. Emerson Shuck, EWSC president, said the college should be a "symbol of excellence" for the college's Bicentennial role in­clude a major focus of academic, cultural and social events during the Bicentennial period upon the three basic themes: Heritage, Festival and Horizons.

Programs and celebrations will extend from the summer of 1975 through the summer of 1976, he said.

In the letter of invitation to EWSC, Norman D. Burbridge, commis­sion director, said that recognition of EWSC as a Bicentennial college "is unique to our state" and that recognition of EWSC would really be first in the nation."
The Phase II facilities of the Health and Physical Education Dept. can now be used by non-students, at a cost.

The Board of Trustees at its meeting Nov. 21 decided by a 5-1 vote, that vote being cast by Vice President and Management, Chairman Ronald E. Robinson voting no, to approve the plan submitted by Fred S. Jones, vice president for business and management.

The fee paid by non-students will be one dollar for a single use and five dollars per quarter or $20 for an annual permit. This fee would provide the user with a locker and lock, a set of gym clothes, shoes excluded; a towel, and a laundry bag, according to John O. plan.

The original cost of the program will be funded by a $1,600 loan from the Housing Fund to the Stores and Services Fund. The loan will be repaid with a six per cent simple interest, according to the plan.

The fund will buy trunks, t-shirts, sox, supporters, towels and laundry bags.

The plan calls for a minimum of 70 people using the facilities each quarter during fall, winter, and spring, and 35 people during summer quarters.

Minimum Wage Raised

The estimated cost of this increase for the remainder of the 1974-75 fiscal year will be $17,000 which will come from "salary and other cost savings in Physical Plant and other budgets in my areas," according to John O.

Alumni Funds

The Board upheld its earlier decision to phase out funding for the Alumni Association from the Student Services and Activities Fees.

They also approved funding the Association through the Student Services Program. The money, $6,000 to $10,000 would come from the regular college fund, according to Ken O., assistant to the president.

The bill requires all student files to be kept confidential based will either be resubmittal or withdrawal from the prior to November 21, 1974 on a confidential basis will either be destroyed by the Placement Office or, at the eligible person's request, returned to the original writer for resubmittal or withdrawal from the file.

The problem stems from the recently enacted Family Rights and Educational Privacy Act of 1974. The bill requires all student files to be kept confidential.

In a telephone conversation with Roger Reed, college attorney, Reed said, "We are taking the interpretation on a case like this that an employer outside the school gave reference in confidence and the college would in effect be breaching that promise to the employer."

When asked if this could be a wrong interpretation of the new federal law Reed admitted, "It could be that we're wrong. It's a matter of interpretation."

Case Started

Reed was referring to a complaint which has been filed with the Legal Services office on campus by Dennis Brandt, a senior.

Brandt requested he be allowed to examine his placement file in a letter to Ray Giles, director of career planning and placement, Nov. 20.

Brandt received a letter from Giles dated Nov. 26 in which Giles denied Brandt access to his files.

Emergency Basis

The new WAC 172 was approved on a 90 day emergency basis by the Board of Trustees at its meeting Nov. 21. It was written by Roger Reed with input from the board and the administration, according to Reed.

When Reed was asked how a student might gain access to a file which is supposed to be open but in fact is closed, he said: "They have to go around to the back door."

That would entail having a trend in a position to examine the file report to the student what he or she found out.

Reed also said Sen. James Buckley (Ind.) N.Y., who wrote the original piece of legislation is going to introduce an amendment to make the law non-retroactive. When questioned whether this proposed action would indicate that the present legislation is intended to be retroactive Reed replied, "no. That would just eliminate questions."

Student Files Subject To 'Catch 22'

The Board approved WAC 172-65-030 which prohibits the drinking of alcoholic beverages in public places except at special banquets. Drinking will be allowed at these events provided the sponsor has a banquet permit from the State Liquor Control Board and the approval of the college.

The Science of Bhakti Yoga and Transcendental Meditation in Vedic Culture" will be offered for the first time this winter quarter.

The class, a directed study, will be taught by Haribasara, a disciple of Swami A.C. Bhaktivedanta, founder of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness.

The course will use "Bhagavad-gita: As It Is" by the Swami as its text, according to Haribasara.

Haribasara said the course will emphasize the philosophy behind transcendental meditation rather than the practice of meditation.

There are no prerequisites for the class which is being offered in cooperation with the Dept. of Applied Psychology and Physical Education.

Open Forum is Held on Abortion

An open forum on the pros and cons of abortion, sponsored by the EWSC Young Democrats and the student Political Action Committee, was held Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Patterson Hall auditorium. A panel of six members of the Spokane community, three in favor and three against, spoke concerning their various opinions of abortions. Following this, the panel fielded questions from the audience and other panel members.

The vigorous debate was moderated by EWSC professor of political science, Keith Quincy. Panel members in favor of abortion were Jane Bowen, Planned Parenthood in Spokane; Dr. Gilpatrick, a Spokane physician; and his wife, Janet Gilpatrick, from the National Organization of Women (NOW).

Those speaking out against abortion included Rev. Robert Fitts, Sacred Heart Medical Center chaplain; Diana Allman, Pregnancy Care Center in Spokane; and James Daegel, Gonzaga University chaplain.

Allman delineated the function of the Pregnancy Care Center, stressing that abortion referrals are not made, even though abortion counseling is given.

According to Allman, the alternatives to abortion, particularly adoption, are overlooked because the agency feels, "the rights of the unborn child should not be overemphasized."

Rev. Fitts presented a moral view of abortion, explaining, "I don't want to be a part of a world that believes killing is a solution to problems."

Dr. Daegel spoke about problems with similar societal impact, such as overpopulation, control of food resources, and genetic engineering.

Mrs. Gilpatrick said that the position of NOW was, "no human life includes the use of another human's body and life systems without the full consent of that person."

She also stressed, as did several of the other speakers, that abortion is not an adequate, nor desirable method of birth control, but necessary until a superior method of contraception is developed and until people are better educated about human sexuality.

Dr. Gilpatrick gave statistics showing abortion is a safer procedure than is a full-term pregnancy. He countered the question of who should have an abortion by saying, in general, those least well-equipped for caring for a child are those who opt for an abortion.

Bowen presented background information about the Planned Parenthood organization and gave her reasons for favoring abortion. These included the danger of death from illegal and self-induced abortions and the problem of battered and abused children produced by unwanted pregnancies.

She also quoted from an article stating that the moral issue of abortion could be avoided, not by legalizing abortion, but by de-criminalizing it.

Women's Caucus Presents Resolution to Pres. Shuck

By Carol Richy
News Editor

The Women's Caucus of EWSC earlier this week sent a resolution to Dr. Emerson Shuck, college president, urging employment of a female faculty member(s) in existing student service centers or the establishment of a special service area for women students.

The reasons for their request were cited in the resolution as follows:

Whereas, women students have unique developmental needs in relation to the career, social, and personal demands of our times and

Whereas, this campus has no woman in charge of women's studies or special concerns related to women students and

Whereas, although a number of women presently contribute to some of the need areas on an overtime basis, no women faculty members are specifically employed by Psychological Services, Placement, or Central Advising, whose charge it is to make available counseling, advisory, or psychological services to women.

Temporary Chairwoman for the caucus, Dr. Correen M. Morrill said, "The resolution is a means of expressing our concerns and getting them out so that they can be dealt with. I don't know what will happen. But now at least we can start looking for some alternatives and solutions."

Mylon Winn, Affirmative Action Coordinator, who also received a copy of the resolution, said in response, "I would support anything that would contribute to improved work environment for women and the retention of qualified women at Eastern."

Winn said he had a meeting with Dr. Shuck some time ago which included some of the problems facing women on campus that were expressed in the Women's Caucus resolution.

The problem appears to be not having funds available and positions allocated even though we recognize the problems of women and have included them in the Women's Caucus resolution.

Other members of the administration staff who received a copy of the resolution were Dr. Daryl Hage, Vice President for Student Services; and Dr. Philip Marshall, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Dr. Morrill said the resolution would probably be circulated further.

Legal Services in PUB

For instance... You should know the importance of having the ASCC office well-stocked and have in your mind that it is your responsibility to make sure the ASCC office is well-stocked.

For example... You should know that it is not just a matter of paying your tuition and getting your diploma. It is also your responsibility to help the people around you make good decisions. And that is why you are in college, right? To learn how to make good decisions?

No other discussion leader in the student program found a way to make students listen to what he was saying. And no other group was able to make students understand the necessity of other institutional or civil institutions.

And if it is a strike or a dance, then you should be the one who is responsible for making sure that the students are safe.

If you think the tuition for your medical education is too high, then you should be the one who is responsible for bringing the issue to the attention of the administration.

If you really do believe in the value of your medical education, then you should be the one who is responsible for making sure that the medical education is available to those who need it.

Women's Caucus Presents Resolution to Pres. Shuck

What can a student do when he or she and their landlord are in a financial conflict and a compromise seems to be an impossibility?

One answer, other than lawsuits, is to talk to the problem to Spokane Legal Services located on the third floor of the PUB, set up in cooperation with EWSC to deal with such matters.

Norman Rosenberg, head of Spokane Legal Services, said the Center's office in Cheney is due to efforts to expand services to people in Spokane County.

Rosenberg said aid has already scattered from its permanent Spokane location to part time offices in Newport and Walla Walla, and with the recent addition in Cheney the service's efficiency can be expected to increase. He added the organization is now able to handle about 3,000 cases per year.

Rosenberg explained even though the center's location is on campus it is designed to offer "legal representation for everyone of low income." He said, "No one under the sun, no one can afford to pay for legal services."

Rosenberg said service is designed to help people in many areas which might require legal attention such as disputes involving housing, consumer protection, and welfare, and also give legal advice to minorities and senior citizens. Eligibility depends only on the person's income. To qualify you must have a yearly income of less than $2,500 ($500 additional per dependent) and you might not meet this requirement the service can refer you to other legal aid.

The service is open on Tuesday afternoons and anyone is invited to come in for an interview. So if you're in need of legal help and don't know where to turn the Spokane Legal Services office might offer just the assistance you're looking for.
The prevention of birth defects and the perfection of contraceptive methods are being a concentrated effort for Dr. Ronald White, Biology Department, At Primate Center, Medical Lake Primate Center. Dr. Ronald White, Biology Department, At Primate Center, medical facility at Medical Lake Primate Center. His primary goal is to get the animal better established in the area and to have the perfect contraceptive method. The research he has conducted in that goal, and his research on the pigtail macaque, is definitely going to result in useful results applicable to humans.

"Sex Skin"

Most of White's research concerns the study of the "sex skin" of the Pigtail. According to White, the "sex skin" is located at the base of the spine on the females, shown when the female is in estrus. White explained that the "sex skin" grows as the event of ovulation occurs.

"Six Little Monkeys"

White started his research with six monkeys to study the "sex skin." He said each monkey in the group was in estrus for one or two months "to get used to the cage." He also said the monkeys were in a more fertile period, thus providing a higher level of fertility among the animals.

White said he wanted to know about the "sex skin" because he believes the "sex skin" will provide the time of ovulation, therefore, "now gold" as an indicator is.

"Time Consuming"

What White has done in trying to answer these questions has been to select a group of six animals and completely monitor their vital signs with regard to the reproductive system. White said he started three years ago and is now just beginning to get the data he had obtained. He indicated measuring the change in hormone levels was the most time consuming aspect of the project.

White explained that the measurement of hormone levels was completed in about six months. He said he would eventually make a statement that stimulates production of certain sex hormones. Nevertheless, he added data so far has showed the "sex skin" is not closely related to the event of ovulation.

"Application"

When asked how all this research was going to humans, White replied by saying, "There are all kinds of ways in which this should be of benefit to mankind." White elaborated, "In order to study ovulation, cycles and what activities affect the births during pregnancy." He said research in this area would indirectly help produce fewer congenital diseases. While expressed optimism in the area of contraceptive research which he said eventually may be enhanced by research such as his. Since hormones create the cycling phenomenon and are involved in most correlations with other reproductive events, the data which White said would effect other possibilities in the area of contraception.

"The Pigtails"

White explained in the reproductive cycle in the Pigtail, other than availability, was the similarity to the human cycle. Similarities include the "sex skin" finding, the idea is that one of the hormones "keep track of which animals are in estrus," and the "sex skin" is evident also creating a higher level of fertility. However, "sex skin" is evident also.

"Six Little Monkeys"

White said you can control the whole process- "increase fertility or decrease fertility." He explained in the reproductive cycle of the female, hormone changes have to occur after ovulation is expelled. If you block any one of these "it's possible you can interrupt pregnancy at an early stage." It's possible you can interrupt pregnancy at an early stage. Leg. Intern Program Short of Funds

By Tom Routt
Staff Photographer

Out of four students from Eastern going to Olympia winter quarter to participate in the Washington State Legislative Internship Program two have been forced to drop out because the minimum wage has been increased from $1.60 to two dollars an hour. Federal Law 93-259 enacted April 8, 1974 amending the Fair Labor Standards Act is the reason for the forty cent increase and extended coverage to Federal and State employees.

As explained by Prof. George Durrie, coordinator of the program here, an intern falls under the definition of a state employee, so if the state is going to continue providing funds they would have to pay the minimum wage in order to be in accordance with the law. But, according to Durrie, the money necessary for the increase of funds just doesn’t exist.

He said he was aware of this conflict for some time and had been waiting for a decision during the previous week from the state legislature on whether to run the risk of violating the federal law and continue supplying funds for the same amount, $100 a month, or abide by the law and be forced to stop giving any money.

The decision to stop all funds was reached Nov. 27 and all involved persons were notified they probably would have to rely on their own saving if they were still going to participate in the program.

Durrie has studied the alternatives of acquiring funds from other sources and has drawn up a summary of the situation as it stands now. He has presented this to the dean of the Political Science Dept. and the AS Legislative, at its meeting Dec. 2. He hopes either of these might provide funds to keep this program available to the students going this year.

The AS Legislative sent his request to its Finance Committee and will consider what action to take at a special meeting Dec. 9 at 5 p.m. in the PUB Council Chambers.

Eastern, along with several other colleges throughout the state, has participated in the internship program since it was reopened five years ago. Since 1970 the interns have received financial aid from the state to help meet expenses during their work with the legislature.

The program was designed to place students on the staff of state representatives and state senators. They have been assigned to do research for proposed legislation, handle relations with the press, and other staff functions.

The internship program has been considered by political science professors one of the most effective ways of acquainting students with the operation of government functions and really shows them the true world of politics, according to Durrie.

Profiles on Two Cheney City Councilmen

Cheney city councilman Fred Johns said he attended a council meeting and “just decided I wanted to be on the other side of the table.”

Johns, Eastern’s vice president of business and management, filed for the council seat vacated by Warren Westerman one week before deadline.

“I just went home and told my wife I was going to file,” Johns said at his Showalter office. “I must have been mad about something.”

Johns had been the college representative to the Council.

Johns said he based his campaign on two issues, parking and water and electric rate increases.

Johns said he thought the Council had “gone too far” banning parking on streets 40 feet wide or more.

He said the Council has since restored parking on most of the streets.

Johns also opposed the 30 per cent increase in electricity and water rates. The Council was scheduled to approve a 15 per cent to 20 per cent electric rate increase at a meeting last week.

Johns wanted rates increased only enough to cover operating costs.

Others favored providing for capital improvements. Johns lost his case on water rates.

Johns said the Council anticipates a $42,000 cut in federal revenues for 1976.

Johns added the College expects a $5,000 cost increase in police protection and a similar increase for fire protection. He said the College does not know what the legislature will provide for the increases.

Apathy, he said, is another problem. “They (the voters) don’t tell us what they have in mind until too late,” he said.

Johns said, “none, or one of two” citizens attend Council meetings.

Johns is chairman of the Council finance committee

He is a former Milwaukee budget personnel specialist. He also worked one summer for the mayor of Seattle.

How can Cheney attract more part-time student jobs?

City councilman Ray Hamel thinks, “That’s where it is.”

Hamel, Eastern math professor, said too many students, “attend a couple of classes here in the morning and work someplace in the Valley in the afternoon.”

He said many Eastern students “live in three places—school, work, and home. He calls it an “unsatisfactory lifestyle.”

Living, working, and attending classes in Cheney, he says will enable these students to attend college cultural activities.

“They can take in the play the Drama department’s offering,” Hamel said. “They can take in that concert. They can get a lot more out of their college experience.”

Hamel favors an increase in students, yet opposes “residential growth.”

Hamel is a former Northwestern University professor.

Stageband Gives Dry Run

By Mark Carlin
Staff Writer

The concert given by the Stage Band Nov. 26, was at least, refreshing. The music was reminiscent of the light Jazz-heavy Swing tunes of the early Sixties. The definite lack of new or semiprogressive styles made it rather dry.

James Albert, band director, was quite passive in his conducting but his influences were clear. He seemed to flow with the music and suddenly awaken and remind the band of tempo change or dynamic variation.

His punctuation of the musical phrases was valid but dated. His talent is obvious but what he needs is to expand into fresh new materials.

The band was not as tight as was seen in past years. This could have been because of new personnel or stage fright but the fact remains, they were pretty sloppy.

Examples of this could be seen in the tune, "Basically Blood," which seemed to drag because of the absence of "feeling." Another tune which hit rock-bottom was, "Goodbye Yesterday." The trumpets hurt with their overbearing presence and volume.

In "Ummmmm! It Feels Good," the rest of side one is characterized by Klemmer's uncan-ny ability to project a sense of mellowness in a way that does not lay back the listener. Klemmer's rendition of "Make It With You" (side one), emphasizes this phenomenon. Though a slow piece, Klemmer adds snap to it with his zippy tenor and allows the listener the unique distinction of dreaming about a little romance.

"Music For The People"

The only vocals in the album are performed in "Music For The People" on side two. That's just fine, folks, music for the people, up and down, easy flow.

Laced with various Klemmer solos, along with a barely audible undertone, the piece indicates Klemmer's lively and exalting personality, and seems to say to us, "This is how it should sound." Beautiful.

More

There's More! "Gentle Morning Song" (side two), as the title im­plies, is a number you'd like to wake up to.

This one seems to affect the listener's mind by putting it at those fine thoughts of peace and love. As a matter of fact the reviewer got a camp in his neck by nodding in agreement to all the positive connotations projected by the piece.

"Wizards Revenge"

"Wizards Revenge," last tune on side two, ends the experience with a finale that sees Klemmer apparent­ly giving the green light to the rest of the featured artists.

The familiar strong rhythmic under­tones of the keyboard are heard here. Ivers harp is also distinctly present lending a different and likeable perspective to the sound of Jazz.

This album, "Fresh Feathers", is strongly recommended to anyone disillusioned or frustrated with pop­ular music today. Next time you're out and about check into a music store and give it a hear, you'll be glad you did.

Bicentennial Offers Essay Competition

A statewide, Bicentennial essay contest was announced by the Washington State American Revolu­tion Bicentennial Commission (WSARBC). The competition is open to residents and students.

Essays are to be on one of two topics, the contribution of a leading individual of the revolutionary period or the most important challenge facing the United States in its third century.

Entries are to be 1,000 to 2,500 words depending on the category.

Eastern Student Dies

Garrie Franklin

An Eastern student was killed and two others injured last Saturday when two cars collided head-on out-side Canopyville, Ore.

Garrie Franklin died after the car he was riding in was hit by a car reported to have been driving on the wrong side of the freeway when the collision occurred.

He was a passenger with Daryl Schrull in a car driven by Greg Beyerlein. Schrull is reported to be in a satisfactory condition at a Roseburg, Ore. hospital and Beyerlein is reported to be in serious condition at a Roseburg, Wash. hospital.

All three students were members of this year's championship cross-country team that won the Evergreen title and NAIA titles, then placed 12th in the National Finals.

Franklin, 21, was a Recreation Major and member of the Recreation Society and Judo Club. He ran track and cross-country for Eastern the last two years following his transfer from Lane Community College where he ran on the National Cross-country Championship team.

The Horton, Ore. resident is best remembered by his friendly outgoing ways. His roommate at school, Rick Hebron, said he was "the kind of guy you couldn't forget once you met him."

Beyerlein was third for the Eagle harriers in the EVC0 championship, and seventh at District, and 137th in the Nationals.

Schrull placed 14th in the EVC0, 16th in District, and 210th at the Nationals.

Memorial Planned

This Friday at 12 noon in Woodward Stadium a silent 15 minute memorial will be held. Members of the cross-country and track teams, remembering Garrie's love of the outdoors and how he lived, feel the outdoor service is a way to be that much closer to the man Garrie Franklin.

Members of Eastern's athletic teams will attend and they encourage the college community to attend.

Today and Friday, the cross-country and track team will be accepting donations to help Mr. and Mrs. Don Franklin with the funeral. The team will be in the PUB Information Booth.

Two Others Injured

Loggers Defeat Eagles

The University of Puget Sound Loggers traveled with their own tall timber Monday night and survived a last minute cutting attempt from Eastern Washington to take a 71-65 win back to the Coast.

UPS had built a 12 point lead with three minutes left on Fred Cox's long jumper to put the score at 60-49. But the Eagles fought their way back to the outside, and Cox's long three point jumper left at 15-14.

The Loggers then started a stall and with Alavina, Hite, and Ed Waters in foul trouble with four each, Jeff McAlister moved in to foul UPS's Curt Peterson on his shot. The basket was good which made it 71-63. Peterson missed the foul shot and with 30 left Waters put in a jumper but UPS held on for the win.

Eagles Battle

UPS started a tall team with Peterson at 7-0, Cain, 6-6, and two other forwards at 6-6 and 6-5. But through the first half the Eagles battled right with them as Hite, 6-4, and Peterson to only four points in the half.

The lead changed seven times in the first half with UPS climbing on top with 9:16 left at 15-14. The Eagles had pressed the Loggers into constant turnovers with their pressing and hustle, and Cox's board work kept Eastern close. Hite's aggressive defense on Peterson resulted in picking up a third foul with 5:09 left and UPS had its biggest lead, 24-19.

Hite came right back with two after a McAlister feed. Cox got two. Hite two free throws, McAlister two after a Hite feed, and Rob Ridnour connected on a long jumper and the Eagles were down by one, 30-29, with 2:33 left.

Waters replaced Ridnour with 2:12 left and the sophomore guard put in five in a span of 22 seconds for a half time lead of 34-32.

Eagles Reluctant

UPS opened the second half with a zone defense that forced Eastern to the outside, and Cain's long baskets from the corner helped the visitors to a 10 point lead at 44-34 with 11:21 left, 54-46.

| EAGLES! |

The Eagles finish the last of this week's basketball this Friday night against Whitworth and Saturday night against Eastern Montana College. Both games begin at 7:30 in Memorial Fieldhouse. The JVs will play Whitworth's JVs Friday and a team from Fanchil on Saturday. Both games begin at 5:15. GO EAGLES!
Eastern's wrestling squad dropped its first dual meet of the year to powerful Portland State on Nov. 21, 42-3.

The visiting Vikings lost only one match during the meet held at the Memorial Fieldhouse and that was to Eastern's 1974 NAIA All-American, Lanny Davidson.

Portland State has placed in the top ten in the NCAA wrestling tournament every year since 1966 and had a 17-5 dual meet record last year. They are ranked second among all collegiate wrestling teams on the West Coast.

Viking wrestlers pinned four Eagles during the meet which had three of Eastern's top performers out of action.

Eagles Out

Head Coach Curt Byrnes was still pleased with some of the performances that the Eagles had and when everyone is healthy and eligible he expects a strong showing for Eastern in the EVC.

Don Draper, fifth last year in the NAIA national tournament at 167 pounds, is eligible for the season. Tony Byrne, 150-pounds is ineligible fall quarter, Greg Darden, 190-pounds was injured, and Dave Breidenbach, heavyweight, is ineligible fall quarter.

Draper, whom Byrne called a potential national champion is lost for the season following a decision by the Evergreen Conference director.

Draper was enrolled at Columbia Basin for two years and then transferred to Seattle Pacific. While at SP he wrestled unattached in the University of British Columbia Open. Usually wrestlers in open competition do not represent a school and would normally not be considered to have used any eligibility from competing.

Coach Byrnes said Draper did not wrestle any more that semester at SP and then transferred to Eastern and sat out a year until competing last year for the Eagles.

Byrnes said a ruling was made last spring that since SP had transported Draper to the open meet, paid his fee, and since Draper wore an SP uniform he was not wresting unattached and had therefore used a year's eligibility.

That was appealed but last week's decision upheld the spring decision.

Dr. Robert Anderson, Eastern's athletic director, said the EVC does not recognize unattached athletes competing in any sports.

Scores

Two Tournaments

On Saturday, Nov. 23, the Eagles were in the North Idaho College Takedown Tournament. Eastern's wrestlers who placed in the all-day event were Rick Colwell 134, third, Mark Robbins 158, third, Jerry Thew 167, second, and Dave Breidenbach-heavyweight, second.

The Eagles hosted the fourth annual Eastern Washington State College Open Wrestling Tournament last Saturday in Phase II. Taking part in the all-day event were fourteen teams including two 1973 national champions and about 150 wrestlers.

Eastern wrestlers who placed in the tournament were: Jerry Thew, second at 167 pounds, Lanny Davidson first at 177 pounds, and Greg Darden first in the unlimited weight class.

Selected as "Outstanding Wrestler" for the day was North Idaho College's Mike Reed who won at 158 pounds. NIC is the defending national junior college champions and Central Washington is the NAIA national champion from last year.

Eastern's JV basketball squad ousted Big Bend Community College to the tune of 102-87 Monday night, with a balanced scoring attack and an early second half rally keying the victory.

Four Eagles finished with double figures, led by Terry Poppel's 20 points. Leading 54-47 after a fast-paced first half, the Eagles outscored Big Bend 24-14 in the first three minutes after intermission giving a 66-51 lead. People tallied 10 points during the rally, mainly off the fastbreak attack.

The Eagles widened their lead to 74-54 after Ken Eckerman hit on two consecutive driving layups with 14:37 remaining in the game.

Big Bend narrowed the gap to 80-77 at the 9:30 mark, behind the hot-shooting of Mike Ransford and guard Scott Frost. Eastern's Chris Pock countered with a rebound basket and Jim Greene produced a three point play on a stealing lay off the fastbreak to give the Eagles an 87-72 margin with 8:11 remaining.

Greene hit a free throw with 254 to go, pushing the Eagles over the century mark.

The contest was plagued by turnovers, characteristic of early season competition.

Following People's 20 point performance were Greg Hall's 15 and Eckerman's 14. Chris Pock and Kevin Griffin each contributed 10 points.

Big Bend's sharp-shooting Mike Ransford garnered scoring honors with 28 points.

Eastern is 0-0 for the season following last week's win over Lewis & Clark State College's JVs, 83-71.
Eastern's Football Season Closes
Eagles Receive Post-Season Honors

By Jim Elliott

There was a time when the locker rooms in the Fieldhouse were filled with the smell of analgesic balm and dried perspiration, when the athletic field was alive with the cracking of pads and helmets and the moans and grunts of that extra effort exerted for the benefit of watching eyes, when the sound of a thousand voices rolled out of Woodward Stadium over that chain linked fence, around Pearse and Digsetter Halls, through the quad and then filtered off into the trees near Showalter. There was such a time.

But now the stadium is quiet, the athletic field grows hard from the fall frost, and the echoes are gone because there is no one to see that long pass or a broken field run is now just a tune they days dormant for another year.

Coaches First

Coaches Mike Richter, first, some to classes, some to more coaching, and some to both. Head coach John Massengale will serve in next year's recruitment and returnees while technician coach Doug Orcutt, first team defensive tackle, next year. Martin says he has to finish a book on defense football, then spring practice and says he hasn't started it yet.

Coaches Jerry Martin and Curt Blythe have already started to pick up a crucial touchdown. Sartz away which changed the season. He was also second in scoring will graduate this year. He was the opening of Eagle trophy case this year but the Oregon bush trail.

Mike Richter, first team defensive half back was another unanimous choice and a repeater from last year. Richter was the conference's leading pest strip as he picked up nine passes and returned them for 82 yards through the season. He was also second in kickoff returns with 18 returned for 439 yards. Richter returns next year.

Barry Sartz, first team punter, averaged 39.0 yards a punt for a year. He also had the best yards per carry of any Eagle back he ran one play for 16 yards on a fourth down in the Southern Oregon game to set up a crucial touchdown. Sartz played part of the season with a shoulder separation but will return next year.

Second team honors went to Jan Steva, tight end, and Bob Stone, center, and also receiving votes were Tom Bassettt, split end, fourth in EVCO pass-receiving and Chip Cockell, defensive back. Awarded selection to the 1974 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 1 all star team were Orcutt and Richter on first team. Orcutt was a repeater from last year's all-star team. Honorable mention were Steva, Bassettt, offensive guard Randy.

Gorman, and defensive inbacker Ray Enckson. Orcutt and Richter also received honors from their teammates after the season ended. Orcutt was voted the Most Inspirational Eagle and Richter, The Most Valuable.

Whitworth college's football team selects an all-opponent team and Orcutt and Gorman were picked.

It was the opening of Eagle Season last week and obviously, the die was cast. The Evergreen Conference directors that hunting Eagles is a crime. But here is what was considered as the Evergreen football crown was stolen from the Eagles and fenced to Oregon Institution of Technology.

The Eagles finished the conference season with a 4-2 record and the OIT with a 2-2-2 record. The directors decided that Eastern Oregon would have to forfeit two conference games in which they won and two in which Western Washington was each given a win and had a loss taken away. The changed OIT record to 3-1-2.

Now which team has the best record, Eastern's 4-2 or OIT's 3-1-2. Tough decision? Then use the conference rules to decide. 1. Straight percentage. 2. If the same percentage is established by two teams playing the same number of conference games, these two teams are considered co champions. 3. If there is a percentage tie for first place between teams playing under the same number of games, the championship is to be decided on the basis of the outcome of the game between these two teams.

Sorry to say but I'm not sure of the details. The Ohio State Buckeyes are now the No. 1 team in the country. They have a 9-0 record and are the favorite to win the national championship. In the last few games they have been playing very well, especially on defense. They have a strong defense led by two of the best players in the nation. The winning streak will continue until the season ends.

Women Gymnasts Open Season With Intersquad Competition

By Jim Elliott

Eastern's women gymnasts open their 1974-75 season this Saturday afternoon with an intersquad meet. The 1 p.m. performance will be held in Phase II's Gymnastics Room and there is no charge for admission.

Coach Maxine Davis said intersquad will be a meet among the teams members but that they "use this as an opportunity to show our routines to qualified judges." "This determines the strengths and weaknesses that we have for our first real competition and gives us an opportunity to prepare ourselves psychologically as well as physically for our upcoming season," she said.

It has been a tradition at Eastern for Davis to meet the team captain at the intersquad. She was voted on a month ago by the team members and her name has been kept a secret by Davis until the intersquad.

"We give our captain a bouquet of roses at the meet which has also become a tradition," Davis added.

Ellis-Mustard Return

Davis has only two returning letterwomen this year from the seven gymnasts on the team. Sophomore Patricia "Tris" Ellis and junior Rebecca "Becky" Mustard are the returnees.

Joining Ellis and Mustard this year will be sophomore Lynne Oxstine and freshmen women Gail Norvell, Leana Carollo, Carol Ringen, and Pamela "Pam" Brown.

This year Davis hopes to have seven all-around women competing. In the all-around the gymnasts will perform the four international and Olympic-style gymnastics events for women: floor exercise, balance beam, uneven parallel bars and side horse vaulting.

For the intersquad Davis expects to have four all-around competitors and three women splitting events.

Challenging Year

Davis said this year's schedule is challenging but that everyone seemed excited for the season to begin. She said that the team has strong committed attitudes and the only disadvantage would be the lack of collegiate meet experience.

"I am looking forward to the season and the opportunity to watch my team grow and mature," Davis said.

Women's Gym Changes

Unlike many present day sports, modern gymnastics for women is not a modified men's activity. Twenty years ago women were still copying men while performing on the rings, uneven bars, side horse exercises and strength-oriented floor work.

Today women compete in gymnastics but must take advantage of the different body build of the female to emphasize grace, poise and beautiful, flowing movement rather than strength and power.

This is not meant to indicate that women's gymnastics is anything less challenging or demanding. The rewards of flexibility, grace, poise, and a good figure for the women gymnast requires a great deal of self-discipline, courage to try almost anything, and willingness to travel a certain degree of physical discomfort. Discomforts like black and blue spots, sore muscles, and even tearing of the palms are all associated with the successful gymnasts.

Official measurement of the degree of success that the Eagles will have this year will begin Monday, Jan. 10, when the women team will work with the men's varsity for a co-ed meet against Oregon College of Education in Phase II at 8 p.m.

Only two other meets will be at home for the Eagles and those will be on Jan. 19 and Mar. 15 against University of Oregon—University of Alberta and Boise State, respective, GO EAGLES.
