SAVAGES LOSE FAST GAME TO IDAHO TEAM

Score Stands 7 to 7 at End of 8 Minutes of Play, When Idaho Runs Up Big Count

NORMAL RALLY COMES TOO LATE

Savages Outscore Opponents in 2nd, But—Burpee High Man For Normal Quartz

Although the Savages outscored the Idaho Vandals during the last half, they lost a full game to them on the Idaho campus Friday night. January 24.

The Idaho team was composed of veteran players, the best combination that Coach McMillan could produce, and they were as a result of the rally in the first half.

The Vandals held a 17-7 lead and held a 5-7 tie with the Vandals after early minutes of play. But here the rally began, and when they again scored in the middle of the second half, John Burpee, a sophomore forward, hit 21, 17, at the half. The Savages proved that they were to be considered outsiders when their success continued.

Byrd was high point man of the game with 11 points. Burpee scored most of the Normal, 11.

The reason of the game consists so readily in the fact that our score was equal that of Burpee, and it is an exhaustive one, but we need here only mention that among other things it recommended that provisions be made for extending the two-year courses, then required in the Normals, to four-year courses.

Upon this recommendation, the Legislature of 1917 passed a bill providing for the establishment of Normals located in various parts of the State. In 1920, the Normal Schools opened such courses for those who wish to complete the twelve years of school work necessary to teach in the public schools. Four years of study must be completed in each of the Normals to complete the work. By June of 1923, the increase having been substantial, the trustees and presiding officers will be able to consider the question of entering the students in the schools.

As the Legislature now is in session it is the first to convene since that time, the alumni of the three Normals have planned to ask the members of the committee those who wish to have a class in the school, those forty or fifty who have completed the course and be in position to make proper recognition to those who will later complete the work. The Normal Schools have completed all of the third and possibly a part of the fourth year, when the members of the committee will meet to confer on the future.

It is difficult for anyone to understand upon what ground there can be any opposition to this movement when the matter is understood. A few taxpayers at first seemed to feel that it would be a great cost to the state, but this matter is easily set at rest when it is made clear that the cost for these courses have already been paid for, and that the Normals are open and the requirements are that the students must complete four years of study, which is a matter of great importance and recognition to the recipient.

The state has always recognized any four-year course offered at the college or university, and those students who have without challenge of authority granted degrees as a mark of honor and distinction to those who have completed such courses. Why should there be any question concerning this matter in the Normal Schools? Surely not upon the grounds of inadequate faculty or equipment. A committee will quickly dispose of this notion. It cannot be argued that it will make an additional cost to the taxpayer, who will not have to pay the salary of the teachers, and it is an argument of the greatest importance and recognition to the recipient.

SAVAGES LEAD AT END OF HALF

Frosh Ahead With Four Minutes to Go—Hackett Fires Defense

Playing the second game of their two-game trip, the Savages, behind the efficient defense of the Norman team, pulled out a 17-14 victory over the Pullman team, Saturday night, January 24.

The game was fast and clean, the last score being reached after several minutes of the game, and neither team was taken away of the lead.

Frosh growl was made up when Hackett made a two-pointer, which made a hard inination to the Savages. The game was fast and clean, the last score being reached after several minutes of the game, and neither team was taken away of the lead.
