AMERICANS SHOULD PREPARE FOR WORLD CIVILIZATION, according to Dr. E. T. Devine.

TALKS ON THREE MODERN LEADERS

Noted Speaker Draws Lessons from Life and Work of Lenin, Ghandi and Mussolini

"Americans must prepare for world citizenship," said Dr. Edward T. Devine of New York University, in an address delivered Monday. "They must do it by studying the lives and work of the greatest leaders of today and yesterday."

Dr. Devine chose as his subject, "The Modern World Leaders," a theme that led him to discuss the lives and work of Lenin, Ghandi and Mussolini.

Lenin was described by Dr. Devine as a revolutionary leader, his work having been to help usher in a new world economy. He said Lenin was a good pupil, one who could be depended upon to bring about the change that was necessary for him to be successful.

Ghandi, he continued, had a left or right bias, party. He supported the pool-division system of teaching, being that the land belonged to the worker. He was the head of a revolution against the existing economic system, a revolution that was easy to come by, and therefore adaptable to many different systems.

Mussolini was seen as a man who had a right or left bias, party. He was a great and influential figure, his work having been to bring about a change that was necessary for him to be successful.

Dr. Devine said these three leaders had much in common, among them the fact that they had all been reformers. They had all been men of the world, and they had all been leaders of men.

"Their lives are full of lessons for the student," Dr. Devine said. "They are full of lessons for the teacher."

INLAND EMPIRE TEACHERS ARE SCHOOL GUESTS

Visitors Are Entertained at Luncheon by Normal Domestic Science Department

Dr. Lewis M. Turner, Stanford University, welcomed a group of teachers from the Normal on the Normal Annual Thursday, April 1.

Dr. Turner, who is the prominent figure in a country that is a center of the world, said that the normal system in the schools of this country is necessary for the success of the normal system in the schools of the world.

In the city of Cheney, the teachers are trying to do as much as they can to make the normal system work efficiently.

Dr. Turner said that the normal system is the foundation on which all education is built. It is the foundation on which all the other systems of education are built. It is the foundation on which all the other systems of education are built.

Enthusiasm, Training, Co-operation Are Essential to Teacher's Success, Says U.S. Education Commissioner

That the dedication of the teachers in the country is the foundation of all success in the schools of the country, was brought out by Dr. Lewis M. Turner, Stanford University, in his address at the luncheon given by the Normal Domestic Science Department.

Dr. Turner said that the normal system is the foundation on which all education is built. It is the foundation on which all the other systems of education are built. It is the foundation on which all the other systems of education are built.

If three are people who can be relied on to tell you the truth, it is these three people — the normal, the high school, and the college. And if there be any truth to what they say, then you have the truth.

In speaking of the quality desirable for training, Dr. Turner said that there are three people who can be relied on to tell you the truth — the normal, the high school, and the college. And if there be any truth to what they say, then you have the truth.

D. H. Felch and Miss Augusta Burner were sent out from New England to Benjamin P. Chene y to be the first teachers in the academy. Mr. Felch resigned his position as principal within two years, and subsequently Miss Burner married Walter Fore of Lewiston. She has been dead for many years. Mr. Felch died in 1928.

During the first three years of the existence of the academy there was a merger between it and the school district. A certain sum of money was raised by taxation within the district and this was turned over to the academy as compensation for the instruction given to the children of school age within the district. Louis Walton was the school director in those years, subsequently became a member of the first board of trustees of the State Normal School at Cheney.

The first board of trustees of the Cheney Academy was composed of General J. W. Sprague (in honor of whom the town of Sprague was named), the Rev. George Henry Atkinson, and D. P. Fear gival. General Sprague will be remembered as a prominent official of the Northern Pacific railroad at the time the Pend Oreille division was being constructed, the Rev. Atkinson as one of the most devoted clergymen sent by the General Board of Missions to the Pacific Northwest, and Mr. Ferguson as one of the early settlers of the Cheney district.

The man referred to in a preceding paragraph as "School Superintendent" was A. J. Stevens, who was elected superintendent of schools in Spokane county in 1886. While serving as county superintendent Mr. Stevens conducted schools, at different periods, in Cheney and in Moscow. Subsequently Miss Burner married Mr. Stevens, and he was the school director in Cheney just before the merger between the Cheney Academy and the Cheney school district was made.

In 1890 the Cheney Academy was donated to the state of Washington on condition that the state would locate and maintain in Cheney in perpetuity an institution for the training of teachers. He was the last director of the school in Cheney just before the merger between the Cheney Academy and the Cheney school district was made.

John Pickering, Former Police Chief, Dies at Pullman

John C. Pickering, age 83, died Thursday, April 2, at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Allen, two miles east of Pullman. Death ended a period of illness, which followed a serious automobile accident that he sustained about two weeks ago at a hospital in Spokane, where he was spending several weeks at a Spokane hospital.

Mr. Pickering was born at Clay­burn, Pa., in 1869. The following year his parents moved to Roche­ford, and there remained until his early manhood when the mar­itime port was of little moment. During the war, returning, he returned to the school high school course at Lincoln High school, and later went to the University of Washington in Seattle, where he received his degree in 1892. He married Matilda Barta, who survives him, and they lived in Chicago, Ill., for many years. They are the parents of two sons, Mrs. J. C. Allen and Mrs. J. J. Allen.

The funeral was held at the University Church on Friday, April 3, and was attended by friends and relatives from many parts of the country. The service was directed by Rev. J. F. Kinney, and the eulogy was delivered by Rev. W. A. Harper.

For your attention is the program committee. As usual the committee is composed of the most active members of the Phi Mu Kappa. The program consists of a monologue, "The Shepherd," presented by Hal R. Rye and Honorable Mrs. W. C. F.

Henry Hymowitz, one of the eight grade students, had his tackle removed Monday and was unable to attend classes after vacation. He is expected to be in school Tuesday. So far there is no word on his condition. His friends wish him a quick recovery.

The fourth A class was rounding up a blacksmith shop Friday, April 3, both in their half of their shop. The class was working on a tractor half under the supervision of their teachers and members of the class who wish to thank Mr. Tague, head of the art club, for his help in arranging for the necessary equipment. The boys plan to continue their work this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Saunders of Lewiston are planning to return to Maine by April 22. They have returned to the right of three months after their visit to the last evening at which the decoration, set, and signals of the Art Club in appreciation of the presence of Mrs. Mary G. Steiner, director of the Art Club, left them a lasting impression. Mrs. Steiner also gave a lecture on the corner of the theatre after the show, telling the students about the art of painting and the history of art. She also talked about the different types of art, including the art of the past and the art of today.
