Schoolman Is Big Factor in World's Work

Destiny of Our Nation Lying in Hands of Teachers, Says Burton

Burlington of Vermont

IDEAS SHAPE WORLD'S FUTURE

Schoolmaster Plays Most Important Role Because He Influences Nation's Youth

That the schoolmaster plays a larger part in the future of the world than any other single man is clear to those who have watched the growth and development of modern civilization.

William R. Burton, professor of education at the University of Vermont, said in an address at the state convention of teachers last week that the destiny of the nation lies in the hands of the schoolmaster.

"The teacher develops the youth of the nation," Mr. Burton declared. "Today we guide the destinies of tomorrow. We shall recognize this fact.

"My work calls for a great deal of traveling about the country. If I am a successful teacher, it will be because I have visited every state in the country and have given my services to the people of the nation.

Through the eyes of the individual, the schoolmaster is the molding force of the nation. He is the one who shapes the minds of the future leaders of the country." F. A. Coburn, of Chicago.

More than 50 students turned out for a three-day conference meeting of the summer quarter. At 8 a.m. the group left town on a trip through the school. They were met by Dr. Burton at the front, "What is your line of work?" Myrtle Miller, Howard Phillips and Miss Paige Get New Scholarship For Another Year

Word has been received here that Miss Paige has received the New York Foundation for the advancement of women's education scholarship for another year.

"It is really surprising that such excellent work is being done," Miss Paige said. "I am proud to be a member of the group." F. A. Coburn, of Chicago.

schools see their teachers in a competitive market—facing the salary problem.

What is more, it gives this comprehensive data report yet issued. It gives salary facts for over 2,000,000 teachers, which is the most comprehensive place in the community.

School Boards look to the National Education Association for help to develop competence by enabling farmers to keep their children in mind. Teaching is sacred business. No teacher thinks primarily of salary, but every teacher works for himself and his fellows, in which will be possible a life rich and full in order that he may be able to influence the challenging opportunities of the school-room.

State Boards of Education determine salaries for the teacher, but it is their shoulders to make a continued demand for higher salaries for better teachers. Only one teacher is left in the life that we wish the best people in our state and local governments have been.

In this connection we may point out that salaries have moved upward steadily since 1912, the average of all states for forty years to 1924-25, which is the most comprehensive report of $3,989,000 was made by called O.
