ASEWU president vies for City Council

Ken Dey
Staff Writer

ASEWU President Justin Franke is running for a seat on the Cheney City Council. Getting a need for better student representation, Franke is running against incumbent Councilwoman Ilene Wahl.

Franke believes that his experience as ASEWU President will be an asset to the Cheney City Council. "Who better to have on the council than your largest customer, the student?" Franke asked.

"The students have a pretty good population out here, and our voices need to be heard not only at the university level, but also the entire city level," he added.

Wahl is just finishing her first four-year term. She says the city tries to represent everyone equally, including students, but it can be difficult to pick out a specific group for representation.

"I would hope that all of us work towards helping with the students just as much as we do with the other segments of population," Wahl said.

Franke says his key to helping students at Eastern is to improve student life. And he believes that students have been targeted in the past by the city council on several issues like parking and noise ordinances.

"I don't want to have any problems with improving student life because of the city," Franke said. Franke hopes to bring some concerns and other events to Eastern, but to do that he needs the city to be "100% cooperative." The universe is not going to strengthen itself unless we get a strong base of events that will.

If elected to the Cheney City Council, Justin Franke would continue to serve as president of the ASEWU.

Feds investigate former EWU prof in child porn case

University agrees to keep silent as part of resignation agreement

Mike Ehrmanetrout
News Editor

A former EWU geology professor may face federal charges after police confiscated his computer and found child pornography on the hard drive.

Russell C. Boggs, 44, resigned in August after being suspended by the university, for allegedly using his university-issued computer for conducting personal business and downloading pornography obtained on the Internet.

Deputy U.S. Attorney Stephanie Johnson confirmed that her office is investigating the case. Johnson said Boggs is alleged to have received and possessed pornography depicting minors in sexually explicit situations, a violation of Title 18 of the U.S. Code: "I don't know where, or if, an indictment will be filed in the case," Johnson said. "The case is under active investigation."

Much of the material found on Boggs' computer is considered child pornography, some of which depicts children as young as 5 years of age in sexually explicit situations, according to court records.

If charged and convicted under federal child protection laws, Boggs could face up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

"We've got a pretty good case against Boggs," said Ron Sperber, EWU's director of public safety. He added that EWU police are working closely with the U.S. Attorney's office in the investigation.

University officials suspended Boggs on October 1993 that Boggs was using university equipment for his business ventures. Linda McCollum, head of the geology department, wrote Boggs a letter that month in which she instructed him not to use university equipment for personal reasons.

On April 14, 1995, Geology Professor James Stuck notified McCollum that he

While their offices are currently in a complete shambles (result of an unfinished summer remodeling project), the ASEWU Council conducted their first meeting of the 1995-96 academic year on Tuesday.

"Things may be a little disorganized around here, but it's important to get started," said ASEWU President Justin Franke. "It's been a hectic week for all of us; we're students too. But we have an obligation to the people that hired us."

After a meeting that was plagued with one procedural faux pas after another, the new council chair, Executive Vice President Terry Falk remarked, "I am in no way an expert at parliamentary procedure. I know now that chairing a meeting in a lot different than just sitting through one."

make the students want to come to Cheney," she added.

Wahl, who is a classified-staff member of the Eastern, also agrees that the city and the university need to work together. But she cautions that it isn't as easy as it seems because they are two separate government entities.

"I don't mean to not wanting to share our powers." Wahl says, "but there are a lot of things like where you get your money and how it's managed that make things not quite as easy as they would appear to be. But I think we need to work harder on that," she added.

Franke does agree that on the whole the city of Cheney is dedicated to Eastern and he stresses that he is not running for council just for Eastern, but for the city also.

"I'm running as a student because that is my background, and I'm in what my experience comes from," Franke said. "But I really want to be pictured as a student leader and it is one that can really add some valuable things to the council.

Franke believes that a big issue facing Cheney is expansion. "I think we need to annex some places because there is a demand to avoid growth," he said. "But other than that we need to open it up toward expansion with Spokane expanding and everything else going on."

The cost of having both a university police force and a city force is also another major problem in the city. "The fiscal conservatives are screaming and yelling that we are wasting money," Franke said, "and I don't think we need to compete Cheney with anywhere else." Franke said.

"I think a lot of citizens like having the police force at this level," he added.

Spending is also a primary issue with Wahl, she believes the city needs to work harder on fiscal responsibility. "I'm opposed to any new city staff until we get our finances all straightened out," Wahl said.

Another issue that is important to Wahl is the D.A.R.E. program. Cheney schools already have a strong program, but Wahl would like to see it expanded into junior high. She would also like to see the addition of other drug programs as well. "It's always better to work on it before it's needed," Wahl said.

The race for the council seat will be decided on November 8 and both candidates are busy campaigning. Wahl has had all her signs printed and hopes to begin seriously campaigning this week.

Franke says his campaign has been going wonderfully. He will be setting up tables in the PUB and going to residential halls to get students registered to vote. But he maintains he doesn't want to be elected just on the student vote. He insists that main goal is to register students to vote because consistently very few college students vote.

"I guess that I'm just stressing that it only takes two minutes to register," Franke said. "I would hope that they would come down and vote for me, but if they don't at least we will have registered students on a national level."

If Franke succeeds in his bid for the council seat he plans to remain Cheney to complete the four-year term. He says it will slow down his career plans, but he is willing to make that commitment. If elected he would probably go into a master's program at Eastern.

Franke also asserts that being a council member will not take away from his responsibilities as a student. He says he has a light academic schedule and is used to overloading.

If Franke is elected he will be the first student ever to serve on the Cheney City Council.

The decision to convene in an "executive session" conflicts with what Rob's Ruby Club, which state that such a session is intended primarily for "matters relating to discipline-par- ticularly trials." The decision may also be a violation of the Washington State Open Meetings Act.

Another factor contributing to the council chaos was the largest number of members for whom this was the first council meeting.

Joining the ASEWU Council this month are Karen Milovich, Legislative Affairs; Amy Hunter, Student Activities; Sean Hunt, Traditions and Philanthropy; Joshua Collins, Student Services; and Jamerly Clark, Council Clerk.

Those present soon began referring to Milovich as "council member Kay," after several mispronunciations of her last name. Milovich, a sophomore, is a Tacoma-area native pursuing a degree in organizational communication.

Amy Hunter, in her third year at Eastern, is from Vancouver, Washington. She hopes that an education degree will someday lead to a secondary education career in an inner-city area.

Joshua Collins is also majoring in education, with an emphasis in mathematics. A transfer student from the Central Community College, this area native decided to get involved in ASEWU with the notion that the needs of some students weren't being addressed.

"Things like class selection and availability affected me personally, as well as every other student. A lot of students simply complain about them; I hope to do more," said Collins.  Jameson Carter, a senior transfer student from Ritzville, made her way to Eastern via WSU. An aspiring developmental psychologist, she is looking forward to interacting with other members of this year's council.

During the meeting, council members assigned themselves to standing committees. These included Finance, Student Union Board of Control (SUBCO), and Review and Proposal (R&P) Council. Intern member Patrick Hakes, Academic Affairs, was elected speaker pro tem for this quarter. An idea put forth by Presi- dent Franke for council consideration would have the ASEWU to become a "busi- ness." It's possible [ASEWU] could take over a vending location and create and oversee a space that would help facilitate clubs' and organizations' fundraising activities," said Franke.

After some discussion, the council approved the concept and referred the matter to SUBOC to research its implementation.

After a prolonged discussion, council members decided to continue to hold ASEWU Council meetings every Tuesday at 5:00 PM in the third floor Council Chambers.

Higher ed panel created

Gov. Mike Lowey has established a special panel to find new ways to finance higher education.

The panel, called The Governor's Task Force On Higher Education, will be headed by former House Speaker Joe King. The group will be composed of legislators and education, business and labor representatives.

The purpose of the panel is to propose a new financing system that will help "preserve a strong higher education system through the year 2010," Lowey's office said.

Evicted from Hargreaves

University Police discovered an Eastern student who had apparently seen the Joe Pesci movie "With Honors" too many times.

In the movie, Pesci portrays a homeless man who sets up camp in the library at Princeton University. The student had allegedly made himself quite a comfy dwelling in the basement of Hargreaves Hall. He told police he had been living there for several quarters.

Health insurance rates hiked for Eastern employees

The Public Employees Benefits Board announced in August that EWS employees and all other state employees will soon pay more for their health insurance.

The announcement indicated that health care coverage for state employees will increase by 2.9 percent beginning Jan. 1, 1996.

Two SIRTI administrators promoted to full-time positions

Two Spokane Intercollegiate Research and Technology Insti- tute (SIRTI) administrators have been promoted from interim to permanent positions.

SIRTI's board voted on September 13 to hire Lyle Anderson and Terry Novak as full administrators. The two had been serving jointly as interim directors of SIRTI until a full-time director was found.

Anderson will be SIRTI's director and Novak, formerly an administrator and faculty member of EWS, is director of the Joint Center for higher education.

Both positions pay $94,000 per year.

legally found files pertaining to his private business dealings and an extensive collection of pornography on the computer hard drive. On June 5, McCollum met with Raymond Soltero, dean of Science, Mathematics and Technology, Mike Nelson, director of university internal audits and public records, and Wayne Trader, director of university information services. Agreeing further investigation was required to accurately assess the situation, the four officials again accessed Bogg's computer.

Two photos were printed depicting minors in a pornographic manner. One of them was reportedly of a naked female who appeared to be 13 or 14 years of age and the other a naked female who appeared to be 9 or 10 years of age. The records indicate the printed photos were not turned over to police until June 15, ten days later. Nelson said Friday that he had had given police only a photocopy of the photos. Asked where the original printed photos were, Nelson indicated he had retained the photos for his file on the case.

On June 9, Nelson sent a memo to Sperber asking police to confiscate Bogg's computer equipment. The equipment was taken that evening to the UW Police evidence room.

According to Sperber, Bogg's was not officially suspended until July 25, and he resigned on August 14.

Bogg could not be reached for comment.

He was transported to Fullam Memorial Hospital where he received stitches for his wounds.

UW student studies economic impact of Seattle Stadium

A University of Washington student has produced the only independent review of the proposed King County stadium for the Seattle Mariners.

Jeff Alliger spent two quarters researching the costs and benefits of the new stadium, as part of his senior thesis for UW's Economics Honors Program.

Alliger concluded from his studies that the stadium would not be as economically viable for the county as a King County executive task force had claimed.

Tuesday, King County voters went to the polls to decide whether the stadium should be built with taxpayer dollars. As of Wednesday, the vote was too close to call. Officials say no decision may be made by absentee ballots, which have yet to be counted.

Original editorial cartoons on the subject of AIDS produced by cartoonists from around the world will be on display in the PUB (lower Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 26 and 27) as part of Sexual Assault Awareness Week. The folks at Eastern’s Student Health Services, which is sponsoring the show, say there is nothing funny about AIDS, but that satire is a good way to educate, move and rally the public.

Also as part of Awareness Week the Women’s Studies Programs Center will be presenting videos, lectures and panel discussions from Monday, Sept. 25 through Friday, Sept. 29. All events begin at noon in Monroe 114. For further information call 599-2817.

Making sense of low-cost health care options

By Mara Parker

The new school year is upon us, and with it comes the stress of late night study sessions, exams, papers and general bad habits. That's why it's so important for students to stay healthy. It's important for struggling students to know what health care options are available to them, and how to get the most medical coverage for the least money. There are several relatively low-cost health care options currently available to Eastern students.

Now, before you rush out to the nearest health insurance broker, you should know there is basic medical care automatically available to full-time Eastern students. Eastern has contracted with Rockwood Clinic to provide outpatient medical care to all students taking 10 or more credits per quarter. In order to pay for this service, a $40 health fee is automatically added to the full-time tuition price. Many students are either unaware of what this fee provides or are unsure how to access this basic medical care. To access medical services at any one of the six Rockwood clinics, you need to make an appointment with one of Rockwood's primary care providers. A listing of clinic locations and phone numbers is available at the Student Health Office in Tawanka 101, or by phone (559-4279).

Rockwood previously charged $5 per visit after the third visit per quarter. However, that charge has subsequently been dropped. Students can now see a doctor as many times as needed per quarter free of charge. Continuing students can use the clinic year round. However, you must pay a separate $40 fee during summer quarter.

Rockwood treats most outpatient medical needs, such as illness and minor injuries. Doctors perform minor dermatological surgery, take X-rays and Ekg's, give allergy shots and immunizations and provide mental health services. They also offer some gynecological services. The school plan doesn't provide for hospitalization or emergency services, although two of the Rockwood clinics have urgent care facilities. It also does not cover dental care, eye exams, hearing aids, glasses or prescription drugs. There are several other exclusions as well. For more information pick up a brochure at the student health office in Tawanka 101.

The student health plan is more than sufficient if you have only a broken finger or a touch of the flu, but what if you break a leg, develop a chronic condition or must be hospitalized? There are two low-cost major medical insurance plans to consider: the Washington State Basic Health Plan (BHP) and the Student Injury and Sickness Insurance Plan (SIS). The best insurance buy seems to be the Washington State Basic Health Plan. The state has contracted with several health maintenance organizations (HMOs) to provide medical coverage and hospitalization for Washington residents.

Since this state plan is not offered through the university, there are no minimum credit requirements whatsoever. In fact, age (a minimum age of 9 years) and Washington State residency are the only requirements for eligibility. Once you've submitted an application, it takes four weeks to process. Once coverage begins you pay small monthly premiums, usually about $10. You are also required to make co-payments for some medical services.

The amount of your monthly premium and co-payments is based on a sliding scale. Many people, especially students, qualify for low, subsidized rates. Your monthly premiums and co-payments will be subsidized if you make less than $1,245 per month.

BHP offers extensive medical coverage superior to that offered through the student health plan. Coverage under BHP includes all doctor visits, some preventative care, emergency services, most prescription drugs, maternity and surgery. Children enrolled under the plan get added benefits such as free dental, mental health and eye care. They also receive free eyeglasses and hearing aids. Health Access Spokane is a low-income program offered in conjunction with BHP for residents of Spokane county.

If your income falls significantly below the federal poverty level, you may be eligible for Health Access Spokane and receive free medical care. To qualify your income must be below $9,541 per year. Under this plan, you do not have to pay any monthly premiums or copayments. But you will receive the same coverage offered under BHP. There is one drawback to BHP/Health Access Spokane. You must see a physician associated with a BHP contracted HMO, and if you require hospitalization you are restricted to contracted hospitals in your area.

Tips for travel:

If you are traveling out of town and need emergency care, go to an emergency room or call for a physician association with a BHP contracted HMO. Before you leave town, you should have a complete list of all medications you take and any allergies you have.

Eastern ranked 15th best educational buy in the West

By Steven Grasser
Feature Editor

Nearly every student at EWU expresses disgust and distress about seemingly endless tuition increases, and some question the quality of education delivered.

But according to "Money Magazine," there are only 14 colleges in the West, (not in Washington) that offer better value for your money.

While various organizations have ranked schools on different bases for years, "Money" says they have taken the process one step further by also factoring in costs, coming up with a total value rating.

"Money's" formula includes tuition and fees, room and board, four- and six-year median student earnings, two- and four-year GPA of entering freshman classes, ratio of students to faculty, graduation rates, institutional budget, student service budget, freshman retention rate, percent of graduates who went on to professional or graduate school, etc.

When compared to national averages and the two in-state schools that finished higher in the regional rankings (number two University of Washington and number 14 Washington State) in a couple of key areas, EWU does relatively poorly. Eastern's course load is actually more than the national average, and EWU's cumulative four-year graduation rate is 40 percent (national average 14-1). But other factors were favorable enough that the school is deemed a pretty good deal.

It should be noted, however, that the magazine compares non-resident tuition so students can consider all colleges in the nation; and this tends to skew the results for resident students. The University of Oregon non-resident tuition, for example, is much higher than EWU's, but resident tuition at the two institutions are relatively equal. So while EWU made the "Top 15 List" and UW was not included, most would be hard-pressed to argue that EWU is the better buy for resident students.

The "Money Guide to Best College Buys" is currently available at newsstands for $9.95.

EWU Dental Clinic eats time but spares wallet

By Steven Grasser
Feature Editor

You're a struggling student with little time and less money. Your Ultra Brite smile is actually more on the order of mellow yellow and your last visit to the dentist was right out of "Little Shop of Horrors."

So who's going to call? Your best bet may be the professionals at the EWU dental hygiene department's downtown Spokane clinic.

While they can't save you an arm and leg from a dentist — they promise to help alleviate your physical, financial and mental pain.

According to Gayle Orton, department chair, the clinic has become a popular, low-cost alternative for many residents who lack dental insurance and live on a limited budget. Cost, she said, run about one-third to one-half less than those you would experience at a private practice.

But Orton stressed that there are other reasons to use the clinic. Many who can afford the costs incurred at private clinics have become long-term clients at the EWU clinic because they feel the work they have had done is of exceptional quality, and they haven't been rushed through assembly line style as often happens elsewhere.

While from all reports the students doing the work at the clinic are quite gentle, nitrous oxide is offered for those who feel they might panic.

The one downside to the clinic is the amount of time you will be required to spend there. Because the work is done by students in their final year of dental hygiene studies, an instructor has to check on the quality of the work after each step, which can be time consuming. Therefore, appointments are made in three-hour blocks.

The prices are definitely reasonable. X-rays run from $5 to $20, minor fillings start at $30, and a basic cleaning, which includes an examination and fluoride treatment, is only $55.

The EWU dental hygiene department is located on the second floor of the Putham Building, Riverside and Washington. Phone: 624-4747. The clinic is open to the public, ages 6 and over.

Take the bus, save big bucks

By Steven Grasser

Taking the bus to school has always been a sensible idea that too many of us have rejected because of perceived hurdles. But now the folks at Spokane Transit Authority and ASEFWU have sweetened the pot to the extent that it almost seems silly to consider any other mode of transportation (with the possible exception of car pooling).

The new route systems at STA make it possible to board a bus at park 'n rides as far east as Liberty Lake and as far north as Fairwood and remain on the same vehicle all the way to the FWSU.

And each quarter ASEFWU and STA make bus passes available to Eastern students at the bargain basement price of $60.

Just how good a deal is this? A little arithmetic makes it readily apparent that it's one offer that truly is too good to refuse.

We often tend to think of the expense of a car trip as the cost of the gas and insurance. In reality, fuel is only a small part of the overall price we spend on our gas-guzzlers. Expenses also include tires, oil, depreciation, repairs and a host of others. The latest figures cited by the American Automobile Association peg the average cost at $1.5 cents per mile. The AAA figures include fixed expenses such as insurance etc., so for the sake of argument let's assume the average FWSU student spends only 20 cents per mile commuting to Cheney. And while many have a much longer drive, let's further assume a 40 mile round trip.

That amounts to $8 per day, $40 per week, $140 per quarter, meaning the student taking the bus saves $160 per quarter or a staggering $1140 per school year.

This bare bones calculation of savings is based on a very low estimate of costs which doesn't include the aggregation and costs of parking, the occasional traffic ticket that raises your insurance or the fun to be had by cleaning up a charging a tire in the snow or sitting in a cold, dark, deserted parking lot with a car that won't start.

So if you're an independently wealthy person who doesn't much care about the environment or the depletion of fossil fuels, keep on truckin'. But if you aren't wealthy, or you have to care for yourself and Mother Earth will both profit when you bus.

Bus schedules are available at the PUB and the STA Bus Plaza in downtown Spokane. Discount bus passes are available at the cashier's office in the bookstore and the BUS Plaza.

Winterize your car at free clinic

By Steven Grasser

October is National Car Care Month, and with winter just around the corner, various Spokane agencies are sponsoring a Car Care Fair that will offer owners a free check-up.

Trained automotive experts will inspect fluids, belts, tires pressure and CGs, leaks of air conditioning. They will also do an emissions screening and replace exterior light bulbs.

The free clinic will be held Saturday, Oct. 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the University City Mall parking lot.

Food and prizes will also be offered.

Since an ounce of prevention is still worth a pound of cure, it would be wise to take advantage of this free clinic; you might save a lot of time, money and aggravation.

And the Spokane County Air Pollution Authority, one of the event's sponsors, wants to remind you that an automobile running at peak efficiency will help make our often unhealthy air more breathable.

Scenes from Hemp Fest ‘95

Hemp Fest ‘95, taking place on the Seattle waterfront last month, was a sight to behold. It was a place where one could sell a buckeye for five bucks, see a ten foot clown, or get berated by the local authorities.

An estimated 50,000 turned out for the festival that sparked three days of music, munchies and mayhem.

After the last few performances on Sunday, the leftovers and victims of the storm of human activity surrounded a small campfire. And as the sun, partially obscured by fog, evaporated a blaze of orange glory, they played their drums and called for the night to come.

The drums subsided into a minor key, marking the evening into an increasing thud silence. Winds, leaves and buttons bustled about the land, chaos of human creation meeting with nature, the ultimate chaos (or order). Still a frozen moment in time, lasting a lifetime in the minds of the participants, but yet a millennium in a broader perspective. It was a chance to bury your mind, drown away from a world so typically filled with sights.

So, uh, somebody stole your bike?

Alternative Rock - Oldies
Whittaker gets rave reviews

Kathleen Warring
Entertainment Writer

The audience didn't hang from the balconies or throw underwear on the stage, but an enthusiastic crowd packed the Spokane Opera House last Monday for...Roger Whittaker!
Whittaker's distinctive voice crosses a variety of musical lines. He performs primarily folk music, but is equally adept at Cajun, spiritual, and country, as well as popular songs. His voice works well in almost every category. He performed a cover of a tune made popular by Whitney Houston. "I'll Always Love You," and made the song sound in his own way. But "Wind Beneath My Wings," first recorded by Whittaker and later recorded by Bette Midler on the soundtrack to the movie "Beaches," did not quite suit his style.

Some of Whittaker's songs, such as "The Other Side," illuminate his Kenyan roots, and others reflect his decades of musical salaried and respect for different cultures. Whittaker opened the show with two songs that best utilize his richly reverbating voice, which invariably adds a haunting quality to already poignant lyrics. "New World in the Morning" and "I Don't Believe in If Anymore" pulled at the heartstrings, and now linger in the memory.

Whittaker involved the audience by attempting to teach them to whistle. The crowd as a whole failed miserably but had a lot of fun trying. Whittaker was forced to settle for the audience singing "hey, hey, hey," at an appropriate point in one of his whistled tunes.

However, audience members responded to this request with enthusiasm, and the result was an almost military precision (if somewhat less than perfect harmony). The same effect was achieved later when the audience sang along to "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Whittaker's ability to roose and entertain a crowd made up for the hokey humor in between songs. The strength of his lyrics is refreshing; they enable him to communi cate a cornucopia of human feeling. Through Whittaker's art, the audience experienced sorrow, happiness, love, fear, and in the case of one number ("Should Hav Had Dogs"), laughter.

The peak of the concert was a rendition of Whittaker's most famous song, "Born Free...Live Free...Let Beauty Surround You..."

Whittaker closed the show with a rock and roll tune. The audience response was rowdy and good-natured. Nope, it wasn't a garish convention at all. It was good fun and wonderful music, well worth the two encore and standing ovation. Not bad for an "old fogie"...not bad at all.

Off and flying, Eagles win two

The Eastern Eagle football team squeaked by Cal State Sacramento last Saturday night in front of a 3,872 screaming fans. The 21-18 victory pushed the Eagles record to 2-6.

On paper, the battle at Woodward Stadium had all the earmarks of a blowout. Eastern was coming off an impressive victory at Southwest Texas State (64-10) and Cal State Sacramento had been soundly defeated by the Lumberjacks of Northern Arizona by a score of 62-7. Adding the fact that Eastern had beaten CSS in three previous meetings, prospects seemed very promising for another Eastern victory.

Too bad things don’t always work out as expected. With 42 seconds remaining in the game and CSS on the Eastern 14-yard line, CSS quarterback Tony Cobin dropped back for a pass and threw a perfect strike to Eastern sophomore middle linebacker Derek Strey for an interception.

Senior tailback David Lewis scored the first points of the game with a 69-yard touchdown run on the second play. It took EWU just one play in their next possession to push the lead to 14-0. Quarterback Brian Schneck hit Jerrod Jackson for a 69-yard touchdown reception. Eastern finished off their scoring in the second quarter. Sherick connected with Jackson again for 21 yards and a score of 21-3.

In the second half EWU couldn’t get the proverbial car started again. The offense only mustered a total of 110 yards, ninety of which was in the air.

For the Eagle defense, senior inside linebacker Dion Alexander was “Timed Prime.” Alexander had a career high of 15 tackles, four of which were during CSS’s final drive.

When asked about CSS’s defense in the second half, Kramer admitted, “They shut down the counter, the trap, the draw, the zone, the zone wide, the pitch - they shut it all down. Our longest run was a play that we had never run before. We actually drew it up on the sidelines, and put Tim (Cruger) at tailback. We actually went in and tried to run it up the middle and got like six yards.”

For the Eagle defense senior inside linebacker Dion Alexander was “Timed Prime.” Alexander had a career high of 15 tackles, four of which were during CSS’s final drive. (He is currently fifth in the all-time tackles list, with 222.) Strey’s interception ended the game.

Junior wide receiver Jerrod Jackson had a career high of 12 yards on six catches and two touchdowns. “I didn’t think that it was going to be that close. Everything was clicking at the beginning,” said Jackson. “We learned a good lesson. I’m glad that we got the W instead of the L.” Jerrod currently owns Eastern’s career record for average yards per catch at 18.5.

Eastern’s quarterback Brian Sherick finished the game having completed 26 of his 32 passes for 267 yards and 2 touchdowns. Sherick is currently ranked third in the Big Sky Conference for passing efficiency, ahead of Montana’s Dave Dickerson, two-time conference MVP and Walter Payton candidate (the 1-A-A’s Heisman Trophy).

Senior tight end Jesse Hardt had five catches for 46 yards. Hardt was recently named to the Successful Farming’s All-American Farm Team. The award seeks to recognize the important roles that young people from family farms play in the world of college football.

David Lewis finished with a game high of 121 yards on 25 carries. It was the sixth 100-yard performance of his career.

Game Notes:
This is the first time since 1980 that Eastern has started the season with a 2-0 record.

Eastern is now 5-0-2 in home season openers.

The attendance of 4,872 made last Saturday’s game the largest home opener at Woodward Stadium.
Eagles out-rally “show me” visitors

Dan Garcia
Sports Writer

The Eagles Volleyball team took three straight games from Southeast Missouri State in last Sunday’s home opener at Reese Court, to take the match. This was Eastern’s third win of the new season.

Eastern dominated the first game with great net play by Kellie Glaus and Kim Exner. Both teams rallied intensely, but Eastern managed to build a 10-6 lead. Then kills by Katrina Carlson, Glaus, and Jill Carbon put Eastern at a 14-6 lead. Missouri’s Suzie Thompson tried to ignite a late SEM rally, but they couldn’t pull any closer than 14-10. Kim Exner spiked to seal the Eagle victory in Game 1.

SEM jumped ahead by four early in Game 2. But then EWU’s Stefanie McCall served up two aces and Angela Frederick executed a monster kill to even the score at four apiece. SEM’s Thompson and Ann Mitchell went to work for SEM, earning their scholarships, and handing SEM a 4-9 lead. After that, it was all Eastern. Missouri wouldn’t score another point in Game 3. A bevy of kills by McCall, Exner, Glaus, and Frederick sparked the Eagles to score 11 unanswered points and take Game 2 with a game-winning shot from Jamie Dotsen.

SEM raced out to an early lead in Game 3, but again Eastern battled back against the favored team from Missouri. Frederick killed, putting Eastern up 4-3, but then Eagle errors led to SEM opportunities, and they capitalized. SEM’s Suzie Thompson caught fire and SEM pulled ahead 5-8. Then Kellie Glaus and Katrina Carlson heated up. Carlson showed her stuff with a great kill on the outside. Glaus followed with three straight kills to make the score 7-8. After two SEM errors, Eastern led 9-8. Tiffany Schrinn delivered an ace and SEM hit a ball wide, boosting Eastern’s lead 11-8. Once again, Thompson came up big for SEM with a huge hit that led to two Missouri points. But yet another Katrina Carlson kill stopped the run. Thompson then came back with two straight kills coupled with an Eagle error to give SEM the lead 11-12. The Eagles crept back into a tie with an ace from Kim Exner. Carlson and Frederick scored on an ace and a kill and Eastern regained the lead 14-12. SEM had a big sideout, then the “Big Red Storm” rained down on them. Kellie Glaus had a monster kill to sidewall the Eagles. Then she dropped back to serve and dinked a special soft serve on SEM for a game-and-match-winning ace. Kellie “Big Red” Glaus gets Player of the Match honors from us for her outstanding performance.

Eastern will open Big Sky competition by hosting the hated Boise State Broncos (0-3) on Friday, and Idaho State on Saturday.

Missouri was the “show me” state!

New arena: a cool place to be

San Jose Sharks play hockey in Spokane's new arena.

Dennis Lunstroth

Last Sunday night, after years of voter rejection, the new Spokane Veterans Memorial Arena opened for business with a crunch and a thud. The NHL's San Diego Sharks took on the Vancouver Canucks. The Canucks won the tilt 5-4, largely because of the two-goal, one-assist performance of Canuck

Roman Okesata. But the sell-out crowd really only cared about two things: The return of two former Chiefs, Ray Whitney and Pat Falloon, who were stars on the Chiefs Memorial Cup team several years back and returned as teammates on the Sharks, and, of course, the opening of the new arena.

According to former Chief Whitney, the new facility rivals several NHL facilities where the Sharks play. "With 5,000 more seats this is an NHL arena. It is much nicer than the facilities in Winnipeg, for example."

The new arena opened with mostly rave reviews from attendees; they praised spacious seats (complete with drink holders) and great sightlines. Even though the hockey match was the first event at the new arena, it came off with very few hitches. Long lines at the concession stands that interfered with the flow of traffic along the outer concourse and low water pressure at some of the water fountains were the only problems encountered.

Acoustics are still untested in a concert setting, but not for long: On Sunday, Boys II Men will be the facility's first concert. The p.a. system's performance during the hockey game signaled that reflected sound may be a problem at some of the louder concerts.

Regardless of the acoustics, Spokane finally has a venue that will attract the best acts in the nation, and this reporter is looking forward to seeing who comes to town.

Garcia's picks for the 1995-96 football season

Dan Garcia
Sports Writer

After ripping Sonoma State (4-5), Idaho will have the weekend off. They are playing great defense (they're ranked number 1), but are still last in total offense. Their one loss this year was at the hands of Div I-AA Oregon State (14-7). Idaho will again be one of the top teams in the Big Sky, and will look to regain the Big Sky title they shared with Eastern in 1992. Weber State picked up its first win of the season last weekend against St. Mary's (19-14) and are looking to improve on their 1-2 record. The Weber defense needs to improve; it has been giving up an average of 27 points per game. QB Bryan Martin is showing his stuff on the field, he is number 2 in total offense behind Boise's Tony Hilde. As soon as the other members of the Weber team follow Martin's lead, Weber will be able to win some ball games against other Big Sky opponents. The Big Sky will be a fun league to watch this fall. Boise State, Idaho, Montana, and Eastern are all looking to win the league title. The other teams are all trying to have a Cinderella season or play spoilers. Come out and watch the fun.

Next week's Eagle football game against Portland State University (1-2) will be broadcast live on Prime Sports Northwest at 3:07 p.m. This is the first of two home games that will be covered on PSN from Woodward Stadium. Don't forget to wear Eagle red and bring your signs! The Big Sky Conference has named Dion Alexander as Defensive Player of the Week. Alexander is one of only 24 current and former Eastern football players to receive the Big Sky player of the week award. With a victory next week Eagles head coach Mike Kramer would even out his career record at 7-7.

The Big Sky Conference looks extremely competitive again this year. Three Big Sky teams from Montana, Idaho and Boise State are in the Division I-AA Top 15. Boise State is coming off of a big win over Div I-AA Utah State and an impressive victory over San Houston State. QB Tony Hilde is putting up big numbers, and the Bronco defense has been improving with each game. Look for ISU to be one of the top contenders for both the Big Sky and National Titles. Eastern Washington is off to a 2-0 start and things look good for the Eagles. RBs Joe Sewell and David Lewis are both averaging around 98 yds per game, and QB Brian Scherck is number 5 in passing efficiency in the Big Sky. Eastern will contend for the title that they captured in 1992.

Idaho State is off to a good start behind a strong scoring attack. ISU has averaged 40 points in their first two games. The ISU defense has also stepped up; they are currently number 2 in the Big Sky for total defense. Idaho State will play good football and shake thumps up this year. Montana looks toward another great year. QH Dave Dickson will lead the Griz as one of the best offensive performers in the Big Sky. He is the two-time returning Big Sky MVP and a candidate for the Walter Payton Award (Div I-AA's Heisman equivalent). Their only loss this year was to Div I-A Washington State. The Griz defense has to play better if they expect to knock off Boise State for the league title. The Montana State Bobcats will have a great defense this season, but they need to find a way to get into the end zone more often. That way may be Junior QB Matt Engleking. He is the leading rusher so far this season in the Big Sky averaging 158 yards per game. QB Jeff Tuss is young and will have to adjust quickly for MSU to become a contender this year.

Northern Arizona is on a two-game win streak. Their defense is ranked third so far, their offense is ranked second, and they are emerging after destroying Abilene Christian College 62-0. QH Jeff Lewis is the number 1 passer so far with 8 TD passes and a QP rating of 167.7. NAU is averaging 48.5 points per game and their defense is giving up 17.3 points per game. NAU will have the opportunity to surprise some teams this year.

One team that won't be a surprise is the Idaho Vandals.

EWU in need of men's center

April Strader

April The EWU Women's Center, located in Monroe Hall, is hosting events for Sexual Assault Awareness Week to encourage women to protect themselves from the most common type of rape - date rape. (Contrary to what many think, it is estimated that at least 80 percent of rape victims know their perpetrators.)

If you've read Eastern's 1995-1996 Annual Course Announcement, you're left to wonder why we even need an awareness week. The catalog states that there were only two reported rapes on campus between 1991-1993. And university officials say there were two reported rapes last year with only one arrest. But how accurate are these figures?

At the Easterner's first editorial meeting, the staff heard reports that at least eight rapes occurred last year, and Carol Vines of the Women's Center estimates 8 to 9 on-campus incidents.

The Women's Center is sponsoring a defense course to teach women how to protect themselves from that segment of the male population apparently suffering from a pathology one could call an 'entitlement' disorder. This disorder allows them to view women as objects to be controlled, humiliated and conquered.

According to Vines, about 20 percent of the male population commits 80 percent of the rapes. On Eastern's campus, those most often targeted by perpetrators are new students and international students, said Vines.

The campus police are currently considering alternative methods of gathering rape statistics, if instituted, the system would paint a more realistic picture for students. According to Ed McNair of campus security, the university police only began gathering and reporting statistics from third-party sources, such as the Women's Center, the dean of students and resident advisers, as to the number of rapes on campus.

Currently campus police only release the number of rapes that are directly reported to them. For many reasons, including self-blame, date rape is one of the most underreported crimes. Consequently, services like the ones provided by the EWU Women's Center are designed to change the cultural perception that unless brutally assaulted by a stranger, the rape victim is somehow at fault. But this is not enough.

What an Easterner is a man's center, not one grounded in chauvinism and machismo or new-age ritualism, but a place where men are taught simply that "No" means no, that passive behavior does not constitute consent, and that women are not responsible for men's sexual arousal. In other words, just because he's turned on does not mean she has an obligation to get him off.

Considering where Coroner Dexter Amend's head has been lately, do you think the retired urologist's true calling may have been proctology?

What's with all this Styrofoam EWU's food services is saddling us with? Has Spokane County suddenly developed a massive shortage of landfill? Is OPEC forcing us to buy so much oil that we have run out of storage for it? Or do our campus food gods just not care all that much about Earth's sustainability?

What do you suppose the optimum number of kiddie porn pics to download would be if your wife was doing a research project? Would the number be the same if she was a student?

Why do they have interstate highways in Hawaii?

Is Mark Fuhrman just a misunderstood "great story-teller," as Sandpoint's mayor alleges? Or is he the white supremacist, sexist bully that the tapes indicate? Do you suppose the mayor invites all prospective citizens of his community to stay at his house, as he did Fuhrman, or is that privilege reserved for clients of the mayor's real estate salesperson?

Considering what typhoid Mary was doing a research project? Would the number be the same if she was a student?

Why do most "Rush is Right" bumper stickers decorate $500 junkers? Do the owners of these cars really believe their interests parallel the Rushmyster's?

Is cornbread harmful to your mental health?

Or is it just a coincidence that County Commissioner Steve Hasson now tests GOP positive? And where does the commissioner hang out now that they've closed down Sam's Barbeque Pit and Drug House?

Do you agree with the idea being floated that justice would be best served by reopening Alcatraz, with Fuhrman and O.J. Simpson as its lone occupants — other than, perhaps, a film crew so Fox Network and The Prison Channel could pick it up?

Can you think of a better reason for voting for city-county consolidation than the argument that we would finally be rid of our clueless city council and our "Terrific Three" county commissioners — Phil "Badger Boy" Harris, Steve "Where's the Window" Hasson and George "Blow Me" Mariton?

Wouldn't it be nice if they made student identification cards just a smidgen narrower so they could fit in the same wallet compartments as drivers' licenses and credit cards?

Since many of Sandpoint's citizens have been quoted as saying they wish we "outsiders" would leave them and their "good neighbor" Fuhrman alone, do you think it would be fair to do just that? Would the Chamber of Commerce mind a boycott of their fair city?

Just wondering...
