Food Center Planned

A new food service center will find its place on campus soon, Mr. Johns, Comptroller, has announced. Construction will begin in November, if bids are accepted, and the weather is agreeable.

Cost of the food service center is approximately $1,075,000.

The building will be located between Monroe hall and the Industrial Arts building. The back of the center will be in line with the drive-way which presently runs behind Monroe hall. If this drive-way were a through street to Martin Hall, it would go behind the center.

If Eighth Street were a through street, it would pass in front of the building. At present, Eighth street is the street which runs by the east side of the Student Union building, and goes into the large parking lot.

The new food center will eliminate part of the large parking lot, but not all of it.

Compared to the new science building, the food service center will be about half as large. Actual floor space is 50,000 square feet.

DR. ROBERT SMAWLEY

RESEARCH DIRECTOR HIRED

Our campus officials have decided they want to know more about college and have hired an expert to study it.

The administrative and faculty staffs have been too busy with their other duties, lately, to aid the Board of Trustees in making campus decisions. Therefore, the office of Director of Institutional Research has been created and Dr. Robert B. Smawley has been selected for the job.

Dr. Smawley received his BA degree from Lach Haven State.

After teaching in the Pennsylvania public schools for three years he became the Director of Training and Quality Control there, for five more years.

He then worked as a statistician, in an aircraft plant before spending two years as a supervisor of apprenticeships for the Veterans Administration in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Smawley did graduate work at Penn. State University and became a research fellow at the University of Tennessee, where he received his Ph. D.

Dr. Smawley's role as Director of Institutional Research will consist of supplying the Board of Trustees with information, collecting data concerning projected enrollment, finances and unit costs, planning research projects on academic standards, instructional methods, student and faculty selection, withdrawals and drops, and other beneficial projects to EWSC as a whole.

"POP" HOLMQUIST

"Pop" Holmquist is dead. Hjalmar E. Holmquist was a favorite and much respected teacher at Eastern for over 27 years.

For most of these years, he was adviser to The Journal, The Easterner's predecessor. He taught both composition and journalism.

A versatile man, he once practiced law and was in the California legislature. While teaching at Eastern, he was also editor of the Cheney Free Press.

Mr. Holmquist came to this country as a young boy from Sweden.

Retired from teaching for the past 11 years, he was probably unknown to most of the present student body and faculty.

But the thousands of students and faculty members who were at Eastern between 1923 and 1950 will remember Hjalmar E. Holmquist for his kindly wit and amiable personality.

Yearbooks Are Here

The 1961 Kinnikinick is now out and may be picked up at the Kinnikinick office, SUB 204, starting at 10 a. m. Thursday.

Students who attended Eastern all three quarters last year have already paid for their yearbooks in fees.

Others will have to pay an additional two dollars for each quarter they did not attend.

HOMECOMING PLANS TAKE SHAPE

EWSC is slated for a gay old time next week with the beginning of the 1961 "Mardi Gras" Homecoming celebration.

The theme "Mardi Gras" will set the stage as the old grads come streaming back. As the theme implies, this promises to be one of the liveliest homecomings in several coon's ages.

This year's romp begins with the introduction of queen candidates Saturday at the Student Union after the Eastern-Western game.

The annual Homecoming dance, Saturday, October 21, will be held at the Isabella room of the Davenport Hotel and will climax the week-long celebration.

Other highlights scheduled are the AMS beard growing contest, the homecoming show, the Queen's coronation, and of course the homecoming game pitting our Savages against the always powerful Whitworth Pirates.

The 1961 homecoming schedule, which has just been released by this year's chairman, Paul Barton.

Student Personnel Visit High Schools

Kenneth K. Kennedy, admissions officer, and Al Ogdon, assistant in student personnel, visited several high schools, in six outlying communities, of the Inland Empire last week, to inform and motivate high-school seniors into coming to EWSC next year.

Last week they visited in Clarkston and Colfax on Monday, Kettle Falls on Tuesday, and West Valley high school in Millwood and Mead high school on Wednesday.

Thursday and Fridays the visits were to Rogers, North Central, Lewis and Clark, and Shadle Park high schools in Spokane.

Kennedy and Ogdon counseled several hundred high school students as to what Eastern offers in the line of curriculum degrees.

High school students were given an opportunity to discuss the problems of admission and college life.

APPLICATIONS DUE

Bob Bruya, activities vice-president, has announced that the last date, for scheduling activities, for this quarter, will be 5:00 p. m., Wednesday, October 18.

Applications for winter quarter activities are also being accepted.

Dames Meet

University Dames' Club will meet next Wednesday in the Sutton Hall lounge at 8 p. m.

R. O. T. C. To Reorganize

Col. E. G. Nilsson Professor of Military Science announced that the Corps of Cadets has been reorganized to coincide with the latest reorganization of the Active Army's divisions.

The new Division will feature flexibility in its structure by providing three Brigade Headquarters to which combinations of Infantry, Armored and Artillery battalions are attached as needed.

The reorganization of the Corps of Cadets will provide for one Brigade Headquarters with two Battalions. The brigade will be known as the Cadet Brigade with the 1st and 2nd Battalions attached. Each battalion will have four companies. The reorganization will insure that EWSC Cadets are members of and are working with an organization that is similar to what they will find in the active Army.

Enrollment Reaches Record

Another record has been broken.

C. W. Quinley Jr., registrar, recently reported that the Fall quarter enrollment is at an all-time record—2,456 students. This is 130 more than the 2,335 student record set only last year.

In addition, more than 100 have had their admission delayed until winter or spring quarter because of low grade averages, and another 100 who might have entered were kept away because of lack of dormitory space.

by Bob Stevens

This year over half of the students on campus will be deprived of an opportunity to participate in Associated Student committee activities.

The above average freshman of today, and there are many above average, is vitally interested in self improvement. Along with this will for personal betterment comes a desire to contribute something to his college. Due to out-dated legislation within our Constitution, this urge is often suppressed in its earliest stages and the initial interest is often lost.

Our Associated Student Constitution states, in reference to standing committees, that in order to be eligible for such committees as Elections, Communications, Tri-College Relations, Activities Promotion, Homecoming and many others, a student shall have been in residence for two quarters and have a 2.25 grade point average.

Since all committees are organized within three weeks after the beginning of fall quarter, the freshmen are completely excluded from any such participation. Many freshmen come to us with previous experience in these areas that could be of benefit. By discouraging their participation, we are also discouraging their interest.

It is difficult enough to stimulate sufficient interest in student activities among the older students. Why then should we discourage an interest that the freshman has already developed? If freshmen were permitted on A. S. committees they could gain valuable experience in student affairs which later could be applied to more important positions.

This would also provide a more diverse committee composition as well as reduce turnover in committee membership.

A proposed amendment to this clause will be present in the next election, but it needs your support if it is to be put into effect. In order to pass, a measure of this type must have the votes of over 40 percent of the student body.

Remember, the freshmen constitute over half of the student body. They certainly deserve some voice in their own government.

BIG CHARLIE BURPS AGAIN

The crowd was silent as the quarterback prepared to try for the extra point. The hopes of a coach, a team and a student body rested on his accuracy.

One of the players had just limped off the field with a badly sprained ankle but his face wore a smile. He had just run 60 yards for a tying touchdown.

Amid the tension and stress of those final moments came a stream of laughter from somewhere in the stands. Big Charlie had just completed another of his off color jokes.

I'd better take a moment to tell you about Charlie. He's quite a prominent figure on campus. At least he thinks he is.

Charlie's very sophisticated you know. He feels that the only way to attend a ball game is completely marinated in alcohol. It seems to add to the spirit of things. Not that there's anything wrong with a little bit of refreshments, but you can't even light a match around that boy.

He usually arrives a bit late, but he always arrives. Charlie wouldn't miss a ball game for anything. It's his only opportunity to play the "big man" role.

Charlie never comes to a game alone. It's always Charlie and the boys, the boys, all appearing equally marinated.

Charlie must be on very intimate grounds with the cheerleaders because he's the one who always stands up and says "you tell 'em, sweetheart." Very impressive.

With all the dishonest referees in this world, we'd never win a game without Charlie there to keep them in line. Oh, oh. There he goes again.

"Hey stripes, get the beer caps out your eyes, Bob."

Charlie is one of those wonderful guys who thinks that school spirit comes in a bottle.

Savages Scalped 35-0

The EWSC Savage football team ran up against their toughest conference foe last Saturday afternoon at Ellensburg in the form of a strong Central Washington College team and the Cheney lads came out second best by a 35-0 score.

Central, blessed with their strongest running team in many years, completely dominated the fourth quarter, scoring 21 points in the period, and ground out a total of 272 yards for the game.

Eastern played a stubborn defensive game for three quarters, with Paul Lerch and Harley Allen leading the way, but the Central defense was even more effective as the Wildcats held Eastern to a total of 97 yards for the game. Thus far in the season Eastern has yet to score a single point.

Dave Davis, Ed Laulainen and John Bass were the only Eastern players to be able to penetrate the tough Central line, as the trio gained a total of 112 yards for the game.

Eastern was able to complete only three passes out of 12 attempts as the strong Ellensburg wind, sometimes reaching gusts up to 50 mph was partially responsible for the ineffectiveness on completions and also the three Central interceptions.

Central scored early in the game as they drove 57 yards in their first 16 plays from scrimmage to score, culminated by a one yard plunge by Jack Capp. The strong Ellensburg wind blew the extra point attempt wide.

Central was held scoreless until midway into the second quarter when Wildcat ace, Phil Fitterer skirted Eastern's right end on a quarterback keeper to score from 10 yards out.

Central added two more points in the third period. A high snap from center Mike Hess sailed over the head of Savage punter Mike Macaulay, who was standing in his own end zone, to give Central the automatic safety.

The roof fell in on the Savages in the fourth quarter, and before the smoke cleared the Wildcats had scored three more times and had added another safety.

Jack Curtright, Wildcat half-back, hit paydirt for the first tally of the quarter on a seven yard run through the right side of the Savage line.

Central gained possession minutes later and began another sustained drive. Fitterer highlighted the drive with a 35 yard scoring pass to Wildcat end Wayne Hurt.

Tom Buckner, Hudson Bay Prep track star added the third tally on a three yard plunge. Central picked up their final two points of the game as the center of the Wildcat line blocked an attempted Mike Macaulay kick that rolled through the end zone for the final two points.

BUSINESS CLUB PLANS FUNCTION

A full, fall quarter program of social functions including luncheons, tours, films, and panel discussions was discussed at the October 5 Business Club meeting.

Ken Williams, president, explained the new point system towards earning scholarships given by the Business Club.

The possibility of becoming affiliated with a national Fraternity will be looked into.

The first meeting, mainly for freshmen in any business field, will be held October 17, at 7 p. m. in the Vashon room of the SUB. Upper classmen and transfer students will also be welcomed.

The agenda will be a panel discussion dealing with Business courses that majors and minors will be required to take during their course of study.

The presently small club would like to see a large turn-

Associated Student's Committee Vacancies

The following is a list of committee vacancies open to students with a 2.25 GPA and two quarters of residence:

Elections committee, National Students Association Committee, Finance Committee, Tri-College Committee, Communications Committee.

The above committees have one or two vacancies, and some have the required quota for function, but could be more efficient with more representation.

A newly elected Representative-At-Large may not return to Eastern this fall, leaving this post vacant. The qualifications for this post are two quarters residence, and a 2.25 GPA. If you wish to become eligible for candidacy for this position you must file for the post in the secretary's office, student center, before October 12, 1961.

EASTERN HAS NEW COACH

Al Hoptowit, Eastern's new line coach, is a veteran of nine years of professional football. This includes six years with the Chicago Bears of the National Football League.

Al twice earned all-coast honors as a guard in his undergraduate days at Washington State University. His senior year, in 1937, he was an all-American honorable-mention choice.

In 1938 he played in the East-West game. That summer he played for the College All-Stars against the Washington Red Skins.

Al played the next two years for the Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League. He was all-Canadian in 1939, playing tackle and defensive end.

He decided to try professional football in the United States in 1940. After serving a one-year apprenticeship on a farm club, he joined the Chicago Bears in 1941.

During his six years with the Bears they were world champions three times.

He has three years of coaching experience. In 1947, he was an assistant for the Bears' Newark, New Jersey farm team. After two years of line coaching at Washington State University Al retired from football.

This year he came out of retirement to coach the line at Eastern. He was hospitalized September 13 with a leg infection, but is expected to resume his coaching duties soon.

Sounding Board

Dear Editor,

At the performance of Judith Anderson, last week, you must agree that the conduct of some of our student body was in very poor taste.

Many people came to her concert out of a genuine interest in literature and drama, but were unable to fully enjoy the activity due to the interference and noise caused by apparently uninterested persons in the audience.

People were forced to stand in the aisles and others were turned away at the door, while these ingrates occupied seats which they rudely abandoned during the performance.

This was rude not only to the people standing, who rightly deserved their seats, but to Miss Anderson.

Very seldom are we so privileged as to have the opportunity to witness performances by such outstanding international personalities. In the future let us hope that these individuals on our campus will develop better public manners or stay away from such events.

Thank you for letting me express my disappointment in these members of our campus. They were definitely a minority but this should not excuse them.

Commuters Win Academic Trophy

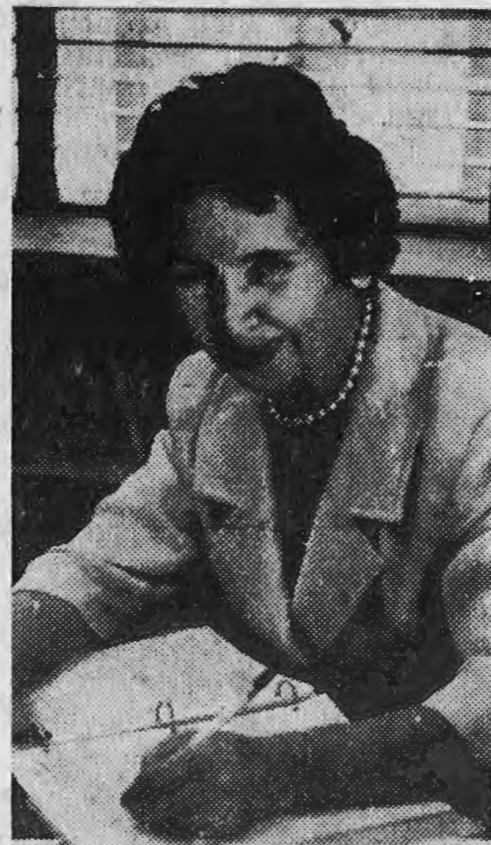

For the first time in the history of the A. S. Scholastic Trophy, the commuters group, with a gpa of 2.63, won the award for the spring quarter of 1961. The trophy is awarded by the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity to the living group with the highest average gpa each quarter. The trophy is displayed in the window of the Book Store.

The idea for the trophy originated with the Blue Key in 1957, and was first awarded in the spring of that year. The commuters, composed of all students who are not registered in a dormitory, were included in the tabulations for the first time in the winter of 1961. At that time, they were third to Senior hall and L. A. hall in that order.

Very close behind the commuters 2.63 was L. A. with a 2.62. The other halls and their averages were Senior 2.56, Garry 2.49, Sutton 2.48, Monroe 2.41, and Hudson 2.35.

The Blue Key, a national honor fraternity for junior and senior men with accumulative gpa's of 3.01 or above, were also co-originaors of the policy of honoring graduating seniors of high academic standing with a leather-bound book of their choice, and a certificate of achievement.

With their advisor, Dr. George J. Kabat, Dean of Instruction, they are looking ahead to such things as a policy for honoring sophomores and juniors who excel academically, getting more and better scholarships for outstanding students, and attracting more of the areas top high school graduates to our campus.

MRS. GRETA LARSON, a graduate of Eastern, is a new member of the Language and Literature division here at EWSC. Mrs. Larson has written "Business English Essentials," which is in its 2nd edition, and has taught at the Fort Worden Diagnostic and Treatment center, at Port Townsend, and at the Kinman Business University, in Spokane. She is now teaching English composition here.

ROLAND J. KEEFER, a new member to Eastern's division of science, is instructing analytical mechanics, engineering physics, atomic and nuclear physics, and slide rule this year.

He is a graduate of Montana State University with a BA in math, physics, and chemistry. He also attended Eastern Montana College of Education, before returning to MSU where he received his MA degree in physics.

M-N-M Drive In

Book Store Investigated

BY CHUCK PLUMB

Whoever said that books are the Fountain of knowledge should have to buy them.

The W. W. Isle Union Book store has been the object of many remarks since school started. "We're being cheated!" "Prices are too high!" "I can get things cheaper in town!" and "Where's all the money going to?" are just a few of the statements I have heard around the campus.

I got curious. Since so many people think this way, is there really anything wrong with our store? To find the answer, I went to see Fred Hineman, student union manager.

Hineman welcomed me to his office and settled back into his chair. Then I hit him with the ponderous question of "What makes the book store tick?" He thought for a second and said:

"I can best answer that by saying that the purpose of the store is to supply as much as we can for as cheap as we can."

Granting that this purpose is adhered to, why the gripes? One of the store's most pressing problems, Hineman said, is that of keeping the supply of books in line with the demand. It is rather disconcerting to many students looking for a book right before a big test to find the shelf ominously bare. However, he continued, this is not necessarily the fault of the book store.

He began rustling through a pile of papers on his desk. He picked one out and handed it to me.

"Faculty members are responsible for ordering the number and type of textbooks and supplies they expect to use during the year. If they should have more students than books ordered then naturally there will be a shortage." Hineman took the paper back, and continued. "When a shortage is noted, we immediately wire or phone the publisher for more books. If the publisher has plenty on hand we get them within two or three days—if not it may take weeks."

I nodded in agreement, remembering some time back when an order of books came in a week before our final exam.

"But we're beating around the bush," I said. "What about the financial part of this operation?"

He thought a moment and then handed me an invoice for an order of books. On it was the list price or the prices the books will cost you. Alongside of that was the amount of discount the book store gets on the list price. Most publisher's give the store 20 per cent discount. In other words, on a $10 book the store pays eight dollars.

Hineman handed me another paper. It was the breakdown of last year's book store operation. Last year, our "little" bookstore did a total gross business of $148,000. The store however, paid out a total of $128,000 for supplies. Another $2000 went for freight and postage.

This leaves a gross profit of $18,000. This seemed like a lot to me until I looked further and found that the operating expenses came to $18,000! Approximately $15,000 of this went for wages.

On the payroll are the bookkeeper, two clerks, Hineman and maintenance people. About 94 per cent of Hineman's wages are paid by the book store, 10 per cent of the maintenance people's, and all of the clerk's and bookkeeper's.

What I am trying to get at is that the book store broke even last year. No apparent graft has taken place and no body has gotten together to take our money.

The other $3000 left in operating expenses went to advertisements, retirement, insurance and telegrams and telephone calls.

As Hineman settled back, a contented look on his face, I remembered a friend who had bought an article in town for $2.00 less than in the book store. Why?

He sat up, scowling. "Students should take more of an interest in the store," he said. "I like to hear of cases on cheaper prices in town because then I can check into it and if possible take advantage of those prices. But if I am not told of this then I cannot take action on it. In many cases, the instructors request that we stock a certain named item."

Although I still am not satisfied with the publisher's prices on books, I came away satisfied with what I had heard and seen.

One problem still exists, however, and that is the high price of articles being stocked in the store. This problem can be overcome by bringing up the difference to Hineman.

Take an interest in the book store—it may save you some money.

BY DON DRESSEL

Rin-n-n-g, Rin-n-n-g; Oh no—what's this? An alarm ringing at six in the morning. They said it couldn't be done, they said nobody could do it, but lookee here, classes are starting at 7:40 in the gosh awful morning! It shouldn't happen to a dog, but it has happened to the commuting EWSC students.

Now this new adaptation at the hallowed halls of Cheney should certainly coincide with other trials and tribulations that the majority (commuters) of the Eastern student body have to put up with.

This majority group feels put-upon and down-trodden as its members contemplate a 20 mile drive in the gray darkness of early, early dawn. Where's the sun? Has the paper boy been by yet? And in the backs of tired minds are nightmare visions of the pitch-black and chill winter mornings to come.

The trip through the golden autumn landscape is made. The car is parked, in a hurry, and commuters rush to beat the 7:40 gun. The blackboards haze over before red-rimmed eyes. Instructors appear twice life-size. One must sternly remind oneself that they, too, have left warm beds for the rigors of neon lights, wooden desks, cold chairs, and far from alert students. Voices of ordinary tone grate on the ear like a well-worn Elvis Presley record. Even the pretty coed is far from radiating glamor and charm before eight a. m.

But we will come, grumbling and griping, bleary-eyed and exhausted, to join our on-campus comrades in exploring the mazes of higher learning from morning's lower depths.

FOOLS FOOL WITH PA

Students are asked not to fool with the Student Union public address system, Fred Hineman, union manager, said Friday.

"We have had to fix it three times so far and it's broken down again," Hineman said.

He stressed that only student officials are authorized to use the system.

Speak Week

"Speak Week" begins today.

EWSC's Bachelors' Club is again sponsoring a "Speak Week" on campus this year. The benefit beginning today will end Friday night with a dance in the Isle-land Bali at 9 p. m.

"Speak Week" name cards will be on sale at the information booth in the SUB. Funds collected from these sales and from tickets to the dance will go to an orphans' home in Spokane.

Activities which the Bachelors' Club sponsors include a football game and dance.

The following is a letter which Dr. Patterson, president of EWSC, sent to last year's Bachelors' Club president, Mike Materie:

"I want to compliment you and your club on its extended acts of kindness toward the boys of Saint Joseph's Children's Home in Spokane. This is one of the most thoughtful and generous acts it has been my pleasure to see on a college campus. I am proud to be connected with a college where club members of one of our major groups will give so much of themselves to youngsters who are in need of warm friendship from individuals like yourselves. You have, my deepest appreciation for this generosity of heart and spirit."

Very cordially yours,

Don S. Patterson

Dame Judith Jolts Campus With Genius

By Tom Paddock

Long before the house lights dimmed and the curtain went up, one was aware of a certain expectancy. The crowd arrived two hours early.

The people waited patiently. Finally the houselights did dim, the curtain parted, William Roerick strolled out on stage, introduced himself, the program, and finally the woman who was to win the hearts of the standing-room-only crowd, Dame Judith Anderson. Dame Judith opened her concert with the outstanding scenes involving Lady Macbeth, from Shakespeare's play Macbeth. To say Miss Anderson's portrayal of Lady Macbeth was convincing would be to minimize this great woman's work; she actually involved every person in Showalter auditorium.

The scenes presented included the Messenger scene, the Murder Scene, and the celebrated sleepwalking scene.

The versatility of Mr. Roerick, Dame Judith's leading man, was clearly shown with his renditions of the messenger, Macbeth and finally the doctor.

The second half of the first part of the evening's show was the famous monologue scene from Robinson Jeffers' play, Tower Beyond Tragedy.

Dame Judith, portraying Clytemnestra, did such a masterful job that the audience had no trouble seeing an imaginary spear just miss her or being fully aware of the teeming crowd that the Queen was addressing.

The second half of Dame Judith's concert consisted of the major parts of Medea. With Mr. Roerick playing the parts of Creon and Jason, Miss Anderson played Medea as a woman who once loved as no other had loved, and now hated as no other could. The range of emotions presented ranged from utter cunning to complete, unadulterated hatred.

So masterfully was Medea done that at the end, the audience was aware of the complete story of this great villainess.

When asked backstage what part she enjoyed playing the most, Dame Judith Anderson replied, "Medea, by far. She is a dedicated woman and the part is much fuller than that of Lady MacBeth, and of course one must realize that it is also a much longer part. The famous sleepwalking scene in Macbeth only takes about three minutes to perform."

Because of the physical stamina involved and the range of emotions created by the character, Dame Judith believes Medea is technically the hardest role in her repertoire.

Many consider her the queen of the stage, but Miss Anderson points to Edith Evans as her nomination as the greatest female on the stage today.

When one meets this woman back stage she appears frail, soft spoken and very understanding. On the stage she is just the opposite.

It is easy to see why Dame Judith Anderson so justly holds the title of "the greatest living actress."

Dr. Stevens, head of the dramatic department, announced that tryouts will be held October 11th for the first play of the school year, "Fashion."

The play, written by Anna Cora Mowatt, is a five act comedy requiring eight men and five women.

Dr. Stevens emphasized that positions were also open on the stage crew as well as costumers, make-up artists and advertising personnel.

Stressed was the fact that experience is not necessary. Tryouts for the variety numbers, which will be presented between the acts, will be announced later.

THE OPTIMIST

Blessed with their finest defensive play in several years, the EWSC Savage football team is still searching for a single win. Thus far in the young season the offensive unit has yet to hit paydirt.

However, this may not be as bad as it sounds because the three foes the Savages have faced this season boast some of the best defensive lines on the West Coast. Humboldt State, perhaps the best small college defensive team in the nation has had its goal line crossed only once in its first three contests. Central held the offensive-minded Whitworth College Pirates to a pair of tallies as it was picking up five. UPS upset another offensive power in Willamette University and held them to three tallies.

If the Savages can get their offensive guns to explode and can continue to play tough on the defense, upcoming Eastern challengers may have their hands full.

While we're on the subject of defense, let me give a salute to the unsung hero of the Savage defensive corp. He is Paul Lerch, perhaps the toughest defensive end and line-backer in the league. Paul never seems to hit the headlines, but for the past two years has personally been responsible for more opponent gray hair than practically any man on the squad. Paul, a midget for the college circuit at 5'11" and 170 pounds, seriously injured his knee at the end of last season but finished the season heavily bandaged. Back this year after having the knee operated on, Paul has been averaging nearly 10 tackles per game in the first three Savage encounters.

Another Savage defensive ace is Harley Allen who returns to college football after eight years of inactivity. Harley, who returns at the ripe old age of 26, played for coach Ed Chissus at Eastern in the 1953 season, and seems to be just as active as ever. He has certainly added some depth in the center of the Eastern line.

Next weekend the Savages tangle with the tough Western Washington College Vikings on Cheney's Woodward field. Last weekend the Vikings upset Eastern conquer, the University of Puget Sound by a 13-0 count. The Vikings appear to be a two or three touchdown favorite, but the way upsets have been snowballing so far, it would be fool-hardy to say they were a shoo-in. Eastern with several new plays added for the contest could be a real surprise to a lot of people.

The following week the Savages will play arch-rival Whitworth College in Eastern's big homecoming tilt. From advance notices, the game could be a real thriller, and will be the highlight to the expected greatest homecoming in Eastern history.

CIARDI TO SPEAK HERE

John Ciardi, the poetry editor of the Saturday Review, will speak at a convocation at 10:30 a. m. in Showalter Auditorium Thursday, Oct. 12.

The talk is entitled "The Longest Walk in the Universe" and deals with Dante, the Italian poet. Dr. Ciardi is acknowledged as an authority on the lyricist.

In addition to his position on the Saturday Review, Dr. Ciardi is a professor at Rutgers University. He is also the author of nine books of poetry, some of them for children.

He has compiled an anthology of mid-century American poets and authored an introduction to poetry.

Dr. Ciardi is noted for his translation of Dante's "Divine Comedy."

The first of the three parts of the book, The Inferno, was published, in 1954, and only this month the second part, Purgatorio, was released to the public.

A graduate of Tufts College, Ciardi was awarded a doctor of literature degree by his alma mater in 1960.

He has taught at the University of Kansas City and at Harvard University, as well as at Rutgers.
