EASTERN SWINGS WITH JAZZ TRIO

By Phil Thompson

Friday, November 26, is the big day. The Joe Sharp Trio, now appearing at the Playboy in Spokane, will give a free-swinging jam session sponsored by Bachelor's Club, the presentation will feature Joe Sharp, drums. We hope this is the first in a series of "Jazz at 3" sessions on Friday afternoons.

Joe Sharp, originally from Chicago, is well-known to the jazz world as one of the outstanding jazz pianists of the Northwest. Originally from New York, he has been associated with the Joe Sharp jazz combo, which includes Billie Holiday and Lester Young, and he has played with Eddie Condon, Ben Webster, Nat Hentoff, Max Roach, and others. Originally from Hollens, Ben, by the way, is 16 years old, and his trio is the first in a series of one-nighters that the Joe Sharp Trio has announced this fall.

The drummer, Joe Sharp, is originally from Philadelphia but does not play "American Bandstand" style. Considered by many to be one of the best jazz drummers around, Sharp has played with almost every significant west coast musician. Joe Sharp's music will be performed at the Terrace room of the Playboy, on the Fourth of July and contemptuous advice have been attacked directly from the master pen of the gentleman's Bible.

The program will include a wide variety of music types, ranging from jazz to light classics. Soft music, in the appreciation of many, will provide a fine background for the night club setting. A famous band, Gary Tolefson, will be served in the Terrace room, which will feature classic light music, and Gary Tolefson will be the direct result of the evening's swing.

"Sophsiticated Playboy" is the theme of the semi-formal dance to be held in the Terrace room. Soft music, in the appreciation of many, will provide a fine background for the night club setting. A famous band, Gary Tolefson, will be served in the Terrace room, which will feature classic light music, and Gary Tolefson will be the direct result of the evening's swing.

The individual dorms have individual giving of members of the Alumni Association. Awards are made on the basis of recommendation of alumns to eligible students. In the 1962-63 year the Alumni Association will award 80 scholarships and grants-in-aid totaling $30,000. The increase in funds has been due to the individual giving of members of the Alumni Association.

Interested students should contact Mrs. Pat Whelan, selection committee, B403 B-1.

Another Chance To Get Eng. Clearance

The English Proficiency Examination will be given on January 29 from 8 to 11 in the Main Reading Room of Hargreaves Library.

Students who failed to receive a "C" or better in English 260 or who did not take English 260 may take this test to gain "English Clearance."

"English Clearance" is required before a student may enter the Professional Education Program.

Crash Victims Assisted By Gift

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gill, Eastern Washington students were recently presented with a check from the Ancient Order of United Workmen. Mr. and Mrs. Gill lost their home and all of their belongings by fire a few weeks ago when a spark from the air was crashed into their home.

The local lodge, headed by the Ancient Order of United Workmen, was the head of what is known as the "Laughter February 23" for the Nak-up Avenue Community Hall on Orchard Park Road in Spokane Valley.

Financially . . . They Look Good

By Chuck Plumb

Money is scarce for most of Eastern Washington State College, but for some it seems to present no serious problem.

W. Edward Betz, manager of the Cheney Branch of the North Pacific National Bank, said that 476 students have savings accounts in his bank. He said that there were 533 checking accounts.

From these figures it would seem that students are more interested in saving money than spending it.

Betz said that this saving tendency doesn't stop many even after they graduate and enter jobs someplace else. He said that students send money for housing from as far away as Alaska. They also are able to get hours by mail from Cheney's modern bank.

Betz said that more and more bank's that students are being handled by mail at the bank.

If this keeps going on pretty well able to.

Food Center Fails, Men's Dorm OK'D

A cloud of disappointment settled over an already somber campus during the EWRC Board of Trustees meeting at the Davenport Hotel Friday afternoon.

The meeting went into extra session as a word battle ended among the board members. Not present were Anson W. Haas, architect for the food service building. The final round saw the acceptance of the bills on new men's dorm, however.

The argument arose over the 29,000/000000 on the cost of the building. Smith said that he saw where money could be saved on the building. Said Smith:

"It's like writing home to father every time you run out of dough!"

Malcolm B. Voorhees, board member, answered, "I used to do this but I didn't always get the money."

The board had been informed earlier that the $20,000 extra could need for the projects was available. Another $175,000 was to be supplied from the college's building fund.

Smith objected to paying more than has been allotted for the project. He suggested that the bids be rejected and new plans made to come within the amount allotted.

At this point Funk was called in to hear the board's decision, and to possibly talk with him according to the finished plans. He brought out the fact that the dining hall was designed for future expansion. He said that more dining facilities could be added for about $75,000. The core of the building, which contains all the cooking equipment is designed so that any future expansion would make a low capital investment.

"Couldn't the building save a little less gaspess?" Smith asked.

"We could drop it down off the pilings and make it more compact," said Funk in the final. "But the board members, and not planners, would find the area that this would be difficult to make a stable foundation for the building." He went on to say that to change the building, they must change their program of future.

Then Harvey Erickson, chairman of the board, who had mostly listened throughout the meeting, said that the school is growing and that the future should be thought of.

"We know where we're headed," Erickson said.

Smith made the motion to kill the bids and to change the building design. No second was offered.

Funk said that he wouldn't take the job if he had to drop $291,000 from construction.

"No man can do it," he said. "It's too much to ask."

TO THE EDITOR:

Get Your Dishes or Pay More!

Last quarter, the students in the Hartley Dining Hall were threaten- ing that dishes had to be pick- ed up by the customers, or else face a rise in prices.

Some of you don't mind clean- ing up our dishes, but why do we face a rise in prices? The prices are already as much or more than comparable establishments in Cheney or Spokane.

Wages paid to employees are below the minimum wage set by Congress, which in this case is $1.90 per hour. This wage is high priced for a non-profit organization. Or is it a non-profit organization? How much of the net profit goes back to the school? Is this the answer we seek, and if it is, how long is it going to last?

Is there competition between prospective leases? What is the gross profit and expenses?

We, the students, would like to see an income statement, for the part month or quarter. The statement can be printed in the school paper. We want to know, and we demand to know exactly what is going on.

Sincerely yours,

Nathan Narrance

Dear Editor,

I have been the student paper for the last two years. At first I took the job lightly, but I have since learned that it is no easy task.

My project is to make the Easterner the best student paper in the country. I am determined to do whatever it takes to make this happen.

HISTORY
Frosted Fingers? Don’t Complain

So you think it’s cold.

Well, just be happy you do not have the manly, helpful duties of getting your education in the freezing, wintry climate of the North. While you are dressed in your flannel pajamas, they are hard at work in the heat of the sun, shaded only by the leafless branches.

The duties last all winter, according to Dr. Stewart, and the weather was nippy—for a time the temperature was as low as 20 degrees.

Cold weather will not stop them, and they will continue to work until the weather becomes more bearable.

Don’t Paint On Wall: Use Bulletin Boards

"Various bulletin boards have been provided for the students to display their work and events occurring in and out of the dormitories.

"Seals are always available for advertising important events and could be obtained from the Activities Director," said Dr. Voight. "All signs must be approved by the Student Personnel Services, and he has made a few rules about the use of the bulletin boards to make sure the signs are not a bother to the students and do not create any problems.

"Those signs that are not necessary for the dormitory will be taken down within 24 hours after they are put up.

HallAssistant
Positions Open

Virginia C. Dresler, acting dean of women, announced re- openings for positions as hall assistants in the women’s dormitories for the academic year of 1962-63.

The available openings are: 1. Five hall assistants for Louise Anderson Hall. 2. Eight hall assistants for the academic year of 1962-63.

Jen and parking application forms may be obtained at the Dean of Women’s office or the dormitory hall directors.

Selection will be made on the basis of personality, appearance, leadership, dependability, and their ability to work with the other students and hall directors.

The application forms must be submitted by the end of the academic year of 1962-63.
Swimmers Over And Under

The EWSC swim team pulled a big upset last Friday in dumping the University of Idaho favorites by a convincing 54-40 score, but were in turn dumped on Saturday by Western Washington 50-40 for the second straight week.

Claire McGee, Jim Strom and Larry Willman paced the Savages in their Friday victory. Claire captivated blue eyes in diving, the individual medley and was part of the winning 200 and 400 yard relay team. Strom won all specialties the 100 and 200 yard freestyle spurt and was also a member of the winning 200 yard freestyle relay team. Willman captured a victory in the 400 yard freestyle race, and helped both the 200 yard freestyle relay and 400 yard medley relay teams.

Dick Burger was also a big point getter for the Savages as he was a member of both Western's relay teams. Tim Sterling and Jack England were remaining due in the 400 yard medley relay team.

On Saturday, the Savages stayed in contention until the final two events of the day, but Western Washington depth enabled the Vikings to coast home with the victory.

Lanny Willman was the individual star for the Savages as he picked up wins in the 100 and 220 yard freestyle events and placed second in the 440. Other individual winners were Jack England who scored home in the 200 yard backstroke and Bill Loomis who captured his first win of the season in diving.

Bondball?

A basketball game between local teachers and Cheney townpeople is scheduled for 8 p.m. on January 30. The contest will be held in the Cheney High School gym, and proceeds will go to support publicity for the up and coming school bond issue.

Price of admission is fifty cents per person.

Alumni of the Week

Dr. Abram W. VanderMeer, class of 34, has recently been named dean of the College of Education at the Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. VanderMeer has served on the faculty of Penn. State U. for 11 years in the department of Education. He has been associate dean of the College since 1957.

Born in Lynden, Washington, Dr. VanderMeer received a bachelor of arts degree from Eastern (1936) and from the University of Washington (1939). He taught science for five years in the Toppenish public schools.

His master of arts degree in education, was completed in 1941, and his doctor of philosophy degree in 1949, both by the University of Chicago.

Dr. VanderMeer was named instructor, professor of education at Penn. State in 1936 and two years later was promoted to associate professor of education. He was named provost of the University of Idaho in 1932 and has been chairman of this department while serving as associate dean of the College.

The Eastern alumni has specialized in the study of psychology, sociology and materials of instruction and in 1949 he was elected the first president of the Pennsylvania Association Visual Education of the National Association for Teacher Education. He was honored in 1958 by the Nebraska Alumni for his work in this field.

Voted a grand champion of the U. S. Critics of Education, Dr. VanderMeer has been given an opportunity to do research studies to discover production techniques which will improve the effectiveness of certain forms of motion pictures and film strips at teaching. He is also conducting research on programmed materials, utilizing pictorial and graphic stimuli materials in the classroom.

Dorm Story

Again the motion was made and again it was not seconded. Richardson suggested they call in Carroll Martell, architect for the new dorm.

Martell brought up several suggestions for lowering the cost of the men's dorm, all of which meant additional maintenance problems. The subject of telephones caused some consternation between the board members but they all agreed that construction had to be completed on the telephone center beneath the dining halls, as the building would be necessary for future expansion.

"I have talked with some of the students in this dorm," Mr. Don Patterson, EWSC president, said that installation of phones in rooms would provide good study conditions along with the ability to find the person calling. Dr. Alston said he wanted to call the phones installed and would pay for them.

"In final action the board voted 2-1 in favor of rejecting all bids for the food center," said." Low bidders on the dormitory were H. Halverson, Inc., $49,200, general contractor; Warren, Little Island. $50,906, mechanical and Maxwell's Electric, $50,000.

Although the decision was made to reject the food center bids, EWSC President could help wonders. With $300,000 extra today to build a building that could be added cheaply rather than to construct one that would require an entire new floor plan, the future of the facility was not so promising and did not possess any outstanding knowledge of same. I do believe, however, that a sum of $200,000 for the addition of two dining rooms on the new center is far less than the million or more it would cost for building a completely new dining hall.

15 Enter Public Affairs Internship

Fifteen Eastern Washington State College students are participating in a public affairs internship program sponsored by the Citizenship and Clearing House (Spokane area). The program is designed to give students at EWSC, Gonzaga university and Whitworth College with major industry, labor and government organizations in the Spokane area.

Conducting the program for EWSC is Dr. H. Kenneth Hosom, chairman of the business administration department.

This year six students are being placed with labor organizations, two with government agencies, one with a political action group and one with a community agency.

Each student will work 20 hours a week in his assigned agency for a period of 10 weeks.

Peace Corps Exams Slated

By Mike Lehan

A small boy in Iran will learn how to add numbers instead of sitting at home. A poverty-stricken family in Spain will learn American Agriculture techniques of setting down to an empty dinner table. A disease-stricken community in South America will be treated by modern clinical treatment instead of seeing next-door neighbors drop off one by one due to cholera.

All these are just some of the many advantages the world will receive, thanks to President Kennedy's Peace Corps. Peace Corps Exams will be given in Spokane at the Federal building, Room 21 on Saturday, Feb. 17.

The tests are divided into two groups: The General Exam and the Secondary School Teachers Exam. The Secondary School Teacher's Exam is for everyone who wishes to teach at a university level or in secondary schools. A baccalaureate degree is necessary for all secondary school teachers.

Though a teaching certificate is not required of some foreign countries, Peace Corps students will be given at 8:30 at the above address and will be concurrent. The tests are designed to get a profile of the persons are not competitive—there is no passing or failing in this test.

(Option) This writer feels that the Peace Corps is one of the most significant factors working toward the ultimate goal of all nations on this globe-space. This is exactly what the Corps is trying to do—further the relationships between nations and peace. Only with a full understanding between the people of the world can nations begin to work out the problems of today, difficulties of world peace.

All But Their Lives and the Car
EWS Student Couple Loses Home
And Belongings in Plane Crash

By Joan McCallum

"We feel worst about the books." Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gill said last week, summing up the Christmas vacation catastrophe which altered their lives. Dale and Kay Newland Gill, students at Eastern, escaped their lives and car and little else when their home was destroyed in the crash of an Air National Guard jet plane in Spokane December 25.

"We were very lucky," Dale understated, explaining that a tree in the yard was cut down by the plane's wing and fuel splattered the area. Their home for a year was a total loss, except for a personal file which Dale managed to retrieve from the burning house. The Gill's were cut off by flying glass and Mrs. Gill, who is expecting a baby in March, was cut on the foot.

Baby clothes, wedding and Christmas gifts as well as four years' accumulation of books were destroyed.

Mrs. Gill was a resident of Los Angeles when she met her husband, a marriage about a year and a half ago. She has dropped out of this quarter of college due to the loss and hopes to return soon to complete the last two quarters' work for her degree in German. Dale, in the Air Force band will graduate in 1962 and plans to teach. They both learned a trade and completed their service before beginning school.

Right now the two are living with Kay's parents, but hope to move soon. They are spending their savings to live while completing detailed forms which will be submitted to the Air Force. That in itself is a job requiring a great deal of effort. They will work with Kay's parents, and it is their job to list the items in their three-room house and estimate the value, something they're trying to do down to the last pencil," as Kay says.

Ramblings...

Another week rolls by and I still have my scalp. Writing this column is beginning to be a lot of fun. Last week a student wrote to me and got me thinking of the study of psychology. I have heard, He said it was "the study of the id by the odd." Besides,

Pretty, perky Jeannie Ninneman recently came up with the statement that she thought she would not get any change that she felt was part of the study of the German romantic writers. "I'm already romantic enough as it is," she added. (Bragging or complaining Jeannie?)

This week's tip of the hat goes to Sue Rehfield. She is by far the best routeor the Savages have at any of their games. She jumps, kicks, and yells, as she is supposed to, Sue never to do a job half way, even makes faces at the opposing players, Sue, I think your good looks will do more to distract them than those horrible faces.

ATTENTION ALL BUSINESS MAJORS and anyone else who wants to be successful during his lifetime. A book has finally come out you shouldn't miss.

How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying (Ballantine Book, FS58, 50c, 148 pages) by Shepherd Mead, is a book devoted to the young man or woman who is protesting trying or trying to try to make the top.

The title of this very funny book more than explains itself. This book is for those who play that is currently standing Broadway on its ear.

Such topics are dealt with as:

How To Apply For A Job: "Choose the right company. It must be big and should be in a big city."

How To Rise From The Mail Room: "Press at all times as though you were attending an informal wedding or tea dance: conservative—but well-cut-lounge suit, the best white linens, carefully knotted four-in-hand from the good, well-boned boots. Do not be concerned with expense."

(That last line sounds like the college student motto—if his parents are footing the bill.)

How To Write Memo: "Never come straight to the point."

How To Keep Money: "Many useful services are deductible if properly explained.

"On, Mr. Finch, how do you explain this deduction of $500 a week to a Miss Yvonne Schultz at 470 Park Avenue?"

"Research, market research. She does it for me on a personal basis. Frighteningly efficient girl, earns every penny."

And so the story goes, racy book by guy to the top, well, I can only let the reader be the guide but as a funny book that one will certainly enjoy, I will bet my bottom dollar on that.

Finally heard what I consider the answer to the Cuban situation. We're too big to fight Cuba, so we'll let Florida do it. If Florida wins, fine and dandy. If she loses, too bad, we'll be a State.

Did any of you hear the joke about the two grasshoppers? First: "Say, don't they know they named a drink after you?" Second: "A Harold?"

Now, aren't you sorry you did?

Well until next week I leave you with this thought "Keep Smiling—and everybody will wonder what you've been up to."
Is There Hope For U. S. On The Common Market!

Based on an Interview with Dr. A. A. Dayton, Head of Division of History and Social Studies

By Gerald Cox

One of President Kennedy's requests to Congress this year is for presidential power to reduce tariffs. The reason for this request is the Common Market, an economic pact between 11 countries.

Currently members of the Common Market are: East Germany, Luxembourg, Holland, France, Italy, Belgium, with Enland soon to join.

The Common Market is an agreement between the above countries whereby they will remove trade restrictions by lowering or erasing existing tariffs to promote trade.

By increasing trade they will also increase their own prosperity. A member nation's high cost or inefficient industries will give way to those industries that can produce at a greater efficiency.

Since World War II the rate of economic growth and per capita income is the highest in the history of the Common Market. A division of these countries, however, lowered their tariff rates and prosperity would not have been possible.

President Kennedy's purpose in asking for authority to consider and study the economic situations in and with the rest of the world is to assure foreign trade policies that do not lead to depression or total economic failure.

It is the purpose of the President to negotiate further tariff reductions with the Common Market countries which would stimulate our exports to this large and prosperous trading area, at the same time increasing our flow of imports from this area. America's efficient industries, particularly American agriculture, would prosper from larger and growing markets. At the same time American consumers would have a large choice of goods to buy at lower or more favorable prices.

The foundations for sustained economic growth within the United States and our allied countries would be substantially strengthened. President Kennedy recently stated in his "State of the Union" address to Congress that the United States is not abandoning her traditional most-favored nation foreign trade policies which would mean that our friends in Latin America and elsewhere would benefit from any new tariff regulations negotiated by the United States government. Our neighbors south of the border would be in position to sell more of their surplus products abroad and to import more goods which they so urgently need.

Another argument for participating in the Common Market is the political situation in the world. Communism does not appeal to the prosperous people. If the benefits of the Common Market can be extended to the whole world, at least the non-Communist world, thus creating international prosperity and stability, we have a good bargain. At the same time, money the U. S. is using to combat Communism will be freed for useful purposes in other areas.

If the U. S. is to continue as a great world power, this program must be supported by the entire nation. If not, the future appears to be much less bright.

Support March Of Dimes

Two members of Epsilon Pi Tau, Industrial Arts honorary, put finishing touches on children's furniture which helped boost their club's treasury during the holiday season. The 18 member campus group is selling chairs and tables to raise funds for a statue or fountain for the Industrial Arts building.

5 Students' Plan Study Abroad

On June 28, five EWSC French majors will leave New York, on the Netherlands liner Zuidpolder, as an all student ship with passengers ranging in age from 18 to 30, to go for one year of study in French colleges and universities. The ship will have not only recreation for the traveling student but will provide classes for him on board.

On their arrival in France the students will go to different parts of the country where they will live in private homes as exchange students.

Mrs. Bridges and Miss Dickenson, are French instructors arranging the trip for the students here at Eastern. The requirements are a high academic standing and personal recommendation. So far Dawn Nagy, Geri French, Sandra Rix, Doug Brown and Paul Stokes are the students planning to go.

"Turn The Tables"

Most campus clubs find it a major task to keep their treasury out of the red, but Epsilon Pi Tau, the industrial arts fraternity, put themselves well into the black last quarter with a highly successful fund raising project.

It happened about two months before Christmas when they decided to build a statue or fountain that would be representative of the Industrial Arts department.

The club didn't decide on the size, design, or material for the statue, but one thing was certain: a statue was going to be in front of the industrial arts building by next year, and they needed money for it.

After the 18 members aired their views on how to raise the money, they decided to build tables and chair sets for children.

Prices were set, designs were decided on, sales promotion taken care of, and the project began.

Although the club members soon found themselves behind schedule on the building end, most parents didn't need to be prodded to take advantage of the good bargain that was offered. A table with two chairs sold for $4.95. The same thing costs $10.00 downtown.

Bernard Merrifield, secretary of the club, said that the 18 sets sold so far that the club was going to do the same thing this coming Christmas. "It should be easy to top the $45 profit of 1961 if we can get an early enough start."

Three views of an average, healthy girl

LESSON 1 - How to recognize a girl

It is not surprising, in these days of constantly changing fashion standards, that girls are often mistaken for men.

Certain popular items of apparel, such as slacks, baggy sweaters and boxy suits, contribute to this unfortunate situation. Therefore, we suggest that new students of girl watching start with the fundamentals (see above diagram). As you can see, girls are easier to identify from the side. However, even the beginner will soon achieve proficiency from front and rear as well.

Advanced students can usually tell a girl from a man at five hundred paces, even when both are wearing asbestos firefighting suits. (You might try offering the subject a Pall Mall, but you won't prove anything. It's an extremely popular brand with both sexes.)

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

NOW WE ARE...

...Enlightened

Hail to thee, great thief among thieves not only for robbing the "Encyclopedia of Sexual Behavior" in Harper & Brothers' reference room, but for reading the Easterner. Since your show of literary taste you cannot be considered without merit. Therefore we pass on to you this age-old proverb, "Honesty is a virtue" and hope you have won your way. Only one question remains: "Did you learn all you wanted to know?"

Intramurals

Sutton A-1 and Sutton A-11 are tied for first place in the intramural basketball league after two weeks of play. Both won four and lost one.
