VOLUME 10

CHENEY, WASHINGTON OCTOBER 21, 1959

NUMBER 3

HISS-S—You'll boo the villain and cheer the hero tomorrow night in Showalter auditorium when the Virginia City Players present "From Rags to Riches." Admission is free. The fellow above is the villain.

Virginia City Players Set Melodrama

"From Rags to Riches," one of the funniest hits the famous Virginia City Players have yet produced at the Virginia City Opera House, will be presented in Showalter auditorium Thursday evening, October 22.

Over the 10 years the Virginia City Players have been presenting 19th century entertainment in the Virginia City opera house and on the road their Gay '90s variety show has been applauded by thousands of audiences. Many of the numbers in the variety are better known among fans of the players than the latest hit tunes.

Full of laughs and complete with a sweet and simple heroine, a sneering villain and a poor but honest hero, the show is typical of the 10-20-30 melodramas of the last century. This type of show was so named because ticket prices were 10, 20 and 30 cents at theatres where they played.

Most members of this year's touring cast are well-known to northwest audiences. Bernard Tone, Harold Smith, Donald Pace, Victoria Anderson and Nancy Doyle were all with last year's tour and many fans will remember Judy Midyette who returns to the troupe this fall after an absence of several years.

Set in the New York of the '90s, "From Rags To Riches" tells the story of Ned Nimble, an Horatio Alger-type of hero who wins success and fame through honesty, pluck and, more pertinently, discovery of his real identity as a wealthy man's grandson.

The "Peter Fink Perceptions in Photography," an 83-picture exhibit went on display at Isle-land yesterday.

Fink began his career as an interior designer, but quickly turned to his avocation, photography. He has exhibited his photographs both in Europe and the United States.

The display of Fink's photos cover a wide variety of subject matter and should be of interest to all, especially to art and photography students.

Homecoming, the 35th in unbroken succession since the first in 1924, is underway at Eastern Washington College with a full schedule of events and activities programmed by Homecoming Co-chairmen Wally Kluver and Ozzie Rose and their staff for the pleasure of returning alumni and present students alike.

WSU Prof. To Be Third AMS Guest

A third speaker has been signed for the political forum to be held at Eastern Washington College of Education October 29. He is Dr. Cladius O. Johnson, professor of political science at Washington State university.

Dr. Johnson, author of numerous textbooks on national and state government will join Congressmen Robert Wilson (R-Calif.) and Stewart Udall (D-Ariz.) in the day-long forum on the EWCE campus.

Sponsored by the college's Associated Men's Students and the Spokane area Citizenship Clearing House, the political forum is the first of its kind to be held at EWCE. Paul Hooper, Walla Walla, president of the men's group, said it is hoped to continue the forum as an annual affair.

"National Security and its Conflict with Individual Liberties" will be the discussion theme.

That first Homecoming, 35 years ago, was staged on a campus much smaller than the one Eastern students enjoy today. Even the name, Cheney Normal, reflects the growth of Eastern from that time, particularly in the concept of EWC's role as a college gradually branching out to include much more than teacher training, however important that function continues to be.

Mr. Eustis

Even so, that first Homecoming was not in the least a "tiny" event; a Mr. Eustis saw to that. It took this Mr. Eustis three years of careful planning and hard work before President Showalter would give his permission. But once Eustis had it, he fired the students' enthusiasm, and together they produced a Homecoming that attracted nearly 400 alumni to their first reunion.

An ancient Cheney Normal newspaper summed it all up, "Homecoming Days were a big success . . . there was not a dull moment." Mr. Eustis must have been very proud.

Queen Candidates

The first major event of our present Homecoming was much in the tradition that Eustis established so many years (continued on page 4)

Eva Joseph, Walla Walla, Louise Anderson; Judy Miller, Spokane, Hudson, and Betty Muraoka, Whitefish, Mont., Monroe. One will be elected Homecoming Queen, and will be introduced at half-time at Saturday's football game between Eastern and College of Puget Sound. The Queen will be crowned at the annual Homecoming dance, being held this year in Spokane on Saturday evening.

Campus Traffic Squad Needed

The recent automobile accident which resulted in injury to one student and ticketing of another for negligent driving highlights a growing problem on this campus—traffic safety.

With approximately 900 cars registered on campus and an enrollment of more than 2000 students the congestion and confusion on the streets within and adjacent to the campus create a multitude of hazards.

We suggest that perhaps the time has come when Eastern should establish a student police system to enforce traffic and pedestrian regulations as is done on most other large campuses.

Such an organization would serve many ends: It would provide better traffic supervision on campus than can be provided by the Cheney municipal police. It would create some much needed campus jobs for students. And it would relieve the Cheney police of the necessity of devoting much of their time to patrolling a relatively small portion of the territory for which they are responsible.

We realize that there are administrative roadblocks in the way of such a program: The streets on campus are legally under the jurisdiction of the city of Cheney, not the college. The cost of such a program would probably have to be born by the students themselves.

We believe, however, that the jurisdictional problem could be resolved to the mutual benefit of all concerned, and we believe that the students would be willing to share in the cost of protecting their own health and property.

Homecoming Chairmen Speak 'A Savage Dream' Planning Discussed

Friends:

Homecoming is no longer just "A Savage Dream;" it is a hard-earned reality transpiring before our eyes. It occurs to us that our fellow Savages may, perhaps, feel very much as we do—that the 'thanks for a job well done' will be more encouraging and helpful to our associate chairmen and their many devoted workers now, when the pressure is on, than later, after all is over. We hope you will join with us in letting these people know—now, when it counts—that we appreciate them and the job they are doing.

Needless to say, an enterprise of this complexity just doesn't come off without hitches nor always to everyone's satisfaction. We don't beg off for the hitches, either for ourselves or for our staff; wherever any of us goof, we take full responsibility. We do assure our fellow students that all concerned with Homecoming are giving it the very best effort, and the very most, that we, at least, are capable of.

We sincerely hope that thoughtful students will note both our successes and our failures and that they will list these for us, with their suggestions, so that next year's Homecoming personnel may profit from this year's experience.

So, with thanks to all EWC students for your participation and encouragement—and especial thanks, no kidding, to our staff—we proceed into the events that are our way, and yours, fellow students, of telling our alumni, "Welcome Home, Grads."

The Greatest Show On Earth

Steel Unions Go Reactionary To Protect Their Power

The current steel negotiations—or lack of them—illustrate many of the shortcomings of collective bargaining as it is presently constituted.

Asside from the lack of representation of public interest in those industries where such would be desirable, the practice of collective bargaining has failed to adjust adequately to the changing technology.

In too many instances it is a one-way street, with management doing all the bargaining and labor all the collecting. The usual practice is for labor to present its demands and file notice of their intention to strike the industry if the demands are not met to the letter. Management is immediately on the defensive and must reason, debate, argue, and often beg the representatives of labor to consider the problems faced by management. This unfortunate situation has resulted in a gradual usurpation of managerial functions by labor through the medium of contract stipulations which strip management of some of their decision-making functions.

This has resulted in part from the relative power positions of the two sides, and in part from the attitude of labor. Most of the union leaders have interpreted "business unionism" to mean "get all you can get for the workers and let management figure out how to pay for it." This attitude stems from the belief of most unin people that there is a fundamental conflict of interest between labor and management. This may have been true at one time, but it is out of date now. There is a good deal more identity of interest today than either side realizes. As an industry prospers, so will its workers prosper. As it fails, so will its workers fail.

In the current steel strike, the companies broke the pattern by presenting some demands of their own. They demanded more freedom to manage their plants in conformity with local conditions and sound management practices. So far, the unions have not been able to recover from the shock of this radical departure from traditional practices.

Who is being reactionary now, Mr. MacDonald?

Playboys Looking For Mates

Ron Clayton announced recently that the Intercollegiate Knights plan to present another "Playboy" dance this fall. Last year's dance was a big success . . . and the "Playmates" were really terrific. Watch the Easterner for exclusive pictures of this year's Playmate candidates.

Things we never expect to see at Eastern: A new Sacajawea statue. Popular prices at the bookstore. An adequate wage for the instructors. Dr. Schultz running for office on the Republican ticket. Duane Traner laughing. Dr. Patterson growing a beard. Hudson hall replaced by a new men's dorm. Eastern's student picking up after themselves in the student union cafeteria.

Many of you have asked when radio station KEWC will be broadcasting. From what I've heard, it is doubtful that the station will be ready for the airways this quarter.

The Kinnikinnik will be available to the student body tomorrow.

Well thanx for listening to my troubles. I would take it cindly if you wont tell the draft-board where I am.

Effectiveness Of Festival Discussed

(Ed. note—Dave Sherman, senior political science major at EWCE, attended the seventh World Youth Festival in Vienna, Austria, as an unofficial observer. This is the second in a series of articles on his impressions of the festival.)

By Dave Sherman

To determine the effectiveness of a communist youth festival one should first examine the type of people who attend and their reasons for attending. I seriously doubt one could find a group with more diversified interests than the one with which I traveled. Although there were only 87 aboard the chartered airplane, we had a truly representative American group. Included were Negroes, Jews, Hungarians, and "died in the wool rebels." However, one could hardly say that it was a typical group of Americans as most of the members are graduate students.

In addition to the college students, there were also professional artists, musicians and entertainers.

The basic reason for their attending the World Youth Festival, and I found this true of people from other countries as well, was simply to meet people from other countries. Some wanted to exchange political ideas. Others wanted to stay in line with the theme of the festival and exchange only cultural ideas.

When one thinks of the participants in a world youth festival, one is inclined to picture in his mind a group of teenagers milling about, shouting slogans. Actually it is quite the contrary. The Soviet definition of youth includes young men and women up to 35 or 40 years of age, and those who are selected to represent different phases of Soviet culture are among the top people in their field.

Although many of the people attending from the non-communist countries were not party members, the delegates knew who were paying their way.

The act of giving a free trip to young people, many of whom could otherwise never afford to go abroad, as well as presenting them with an opportunity to gain prestige through "representing" their country, inevitably conditioned some impressionable minds in favor of their communist benefactors. Even if festival participants are not inclined to give positive support to communism as a result of their experience, their resistance to it diminishes.

After the festival was over the Soviets led "approved" representatives on free conducted tours through the countries of the Soviet bloc. The tours were much too short and glamorous for serious study and were arranged to show only what the communists wished to be seen.

Although the tours available for the Americans weren't free, they were so ridiculously low priced that one could hardly afford not to go. For $74 we were given the opportunity to tour Russia for nine days. This fee included our transportation from Vienna to Moscow, Leningrad, and Kiev plus our room and board. Because I was tabbed "antifestival" by the festival organizers, I couldn't obtain a visa.

Is this the product of a FREE youth festival?

(Another article in this series will appear in next week's Easterner).

More Buildings Planned As Campus Enlarges

Alumni returning to the Eastern campus this fall will find some impressive new buildings, with plans for more construction taking shape.

The new campus elementary school is now completed and in use and the addition to the student union building has been finished.

Adjacent to Martin hall, the former campus school, the new building is of revolutionary design where some 400 college students may observe elementary school classes from unique observation galleries. The galleries are separated from the classrooms by one-way glass, which blocks the vision of the children but gives college students a clear view of everything in the room.

Campus school children will still use the gymnasium and cafeteria in Martin hall, which connects to the new school by a corridor.

Martin hall itself has now become the location of the education division, with classrooms, faculty and administrative offices located there.

The enlarged student union building now provides greater food service area and larger Student government offices. Games and recreation rooms, and a faculty lounge are also in the student union building as are offices for the Kinickinick and the Easterner. Eastern's student radio station, KEWC also is housed there.

Plans are being drawn for a new $2,000,000 science building, to be located on the present baseball field. Construction on this building will probably start in the spring.

Econ Dept. Sends Four To Confab

Four members of the department of economics and business at Eastern Washington College of Education will attend the annual three-day meeting of the Northwest Universities Business Administration conference, in Portland, October 23 to 25.

They are Dr. Robert F. Bender, Russell L. Matuska, Russell J. Smith and Lawrence Threlkeld. Smith is co-chairman of the accounting section meeting to be held October 24.

Theme of the conference will be "How can schools of business contribute more to leadership in the economy?" Dr. Bender said.

Here's More About

ago. All eight living groups nominated their choice for Homecoming Queen candidate, Gloria Zitterkopf, sponsored by Garry hall; Betty Muroaka, Monroe; Marilyn Spencer, Commuters and Off-Campus; Eileen Cresswell, Student court; Eva Joseph, Louise Anderson; Judy (Oty) Miller, Hudson; Barbara Koch, Senior; and Janice Morgan, Sutton hall.

The Queen candidates met the "Inland Empire" last Thursday, when chairman Wally Kluver presented them on KREM-TV. They will also be presented by KHQ-TV later this week. The new robe, crown and scepter, made especially for Homecoming by home economics students Dolores Jackson and the coeds were presented to the student body at a buffet dinner Sunday evening in Isle-land.

Entertainment was provided by Gloria Schlenker, soprano, and by a Kingston styled trio featuring Gary Owsley, Ed Barnhart and Ron Jones. Paul Barton was master of ceremonies.

Mixer Tonight

Students will have a further opportunity to meet and judge their Queen candidates at the mixer tonight in Isle-land lounge. Dancing will be from 7 to 9 p. m. with no charge for admission.

The co-ed chosen by EWC students as their Homecoming Queen will be presented at the Homecoming game half-time Saturday afternoon. However, she will receive her robe, crown and scepter and be officially appointed to her rule at the Homecoming dance Saturday night.

Balloting Friday

Students may vote for their favorite candidate all day Friday till 5 p. m. in Isle-land lobby. Runners-up will serve the Queen as princesses of her court.

Campus clubs and dormitories are busy planning and working out their interpretations of this year's Homecoming theme, "A Savage Dream." Ron Wolfe, decorations chairman, urges all students to make the rounds of the campus and see the ingenious turns the Savage imagination will take when properly challenged.

Three EWC professors will make a tour of inspection at 4 p. m. Friday to determine the several prize winners.

Men! or boys?

All the glory of Homecoming is not for the co-eds, however; the men on campus come in for their share also; that is, if they can exhibit a recognizable growth of whiskers as proof that they have outgrown the boy-soprano stage.

Prizes will be awarded to men for best beard, best trim, and best try Friday at 4 p. m. in Isle-land.

Wear Pajamas—or else!

The fun event of Homecoming is the Pajama rally Friday night. Everyone turns out for evening chow in pajamas, and the dorms vie with one another in original songs, yells, and (non-destructive) horseplay. Just in case the "group" lacks inventiveness, the cheer team and band will provide music and yells.

The pajama festivities will be continued after chow-time at a bonfire and serpentine outside LA dorm. A mixer will top off Friday's events at Isle-land from 9 to 12 p. m.

Parade Big Event

Saturday's Homecoming Parade in Spokane, featuring EWC's cheerleaders and band leading the EWC ROTC marching contingent and the student motorcade down Riverside will be one of the more important student participation events, according to the Homecoming co-chairmen, and they urge all students, particularly the commuters, to turn out.

The parade will leave the staging area at Division and Riverside at 10 a. m. and will proceed down Riverside to Monroe. Resident and off-campus students will form a motorcade at the student union at 9 a. m. Students with cars are especially urged by the Co-chairmen to attend and provide rides for other students.

Homecoming Dance

Grand finale of Homecoming's eventful week is Saturday's dance, 9 to 12 p. m. in the Silver Ballroom of the Spokane Hotel, at which time the Homecoming Queen will be invested with her crown, robe, and scepter and receive the Royal acclaim of all her Savage subjects.

Ralph Dickinson and his band will provide the dance music, and the Gary Owsley trio will sing during the intermission just prior to the investment ceremonies.

The dance, for which there is no charge, is semi-formal.

A Don Juan trophy will be awarded the men's dorm bringing the most dates (stags not admitted). Bachelor club members will check dorm residents in at the doors and will also pass out free programs to all couples.

Free punch will be served.

Patrons and patronesses of the dance will be President and Mrs. Don Patterson; Dean and Mrs. Daryl Hagie; Dean of Women, Miss Mary Robinson; Alumni Director Wayne Hall and Mrs. Hall, Student Activities Director Don Williams and Mrs. Williams, and Mrs. Sara C. Steensland, associate Homecoming adviser.

Alums To Be Busy

Homecoming, a hectic whole week for students, will begin and end with one day's activities for the majority of alumni; therefore, this one day—Saturday—has been crammed with events especially designed for their pleasure.

First, they'll be greeted and registered by six of EWC's prettiest new freshmen girls, who will then steer them to the lounge for coffee and their first opportunity to renew acquaintances with old friends.

Bowling Match

Next, at 10 a. m., they'll witness a team of alums take on a student team in a bowling match. Then, until game time at 1:30, when Ed Chissus' EWC Savages will tangle with a strong team from the College of Puget Sound (see Sports Editor Al Ruddy's comments on the sports page), there will be more coffee and conversation.

More likely, the alums will take this opportunity to roam a campus which will certainly be a vista of new splendors for many of them who haven't seen the new Student Union, LA Hall, the Fieldhouse and swimming pool, and the Hudson-Garry barracks.

Alumni Banquet

The Third Annual Alumni Banquet, honoring the classes of 1959, 1949, 1934, and 1909, will be at 4:45 p. m. Saturday, in Isle-land. Banquet tables will be decorated with floral arrangements by the home economic students of Mrs. Steensland.

Following a welcome address by Alumni association President Merrill Smith of Chewelah, the presidents of this year's honored classes will be introduced.

New Dean Speaks

Dr. George Kabat, newly appointed EWC Dean of Instruction, will review EWC's developing program of future expansion and improvements. Alumni Director Hall will then discuss the Alumni's role in the expanding program of American colleges.

Finally, campus activities ended, grads, young and old, will take refreshed memories of Eastern Washington College home to cherish for another year.

Geographers Elect

The Geography club held its first meeting on Wednesday, October 15, for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year.

Claude Lakewold and Dick Hoffman were elected co-chairmen, Tom Gay, secretary-treasurer, and Darrel Peterson, activities chairman.

IR Club Sponsors Yuletide Card Sale

The International Relations club of Eastern Washington College will sponsor the UNICEF Christmas Card sale again this year, club president Paul Hooper announced recently.

Cards will go on sale November 1, and will be available through November and December. A booth will be established in the student union to accommodate those who wish to buy.

The sale has been well received in past years and is expected to set a record this year.

All proceeds from the sale of cards go to the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund for the relief of needy children all over the world.

Choosing a new name for the "Artpress" was one of the major subjects discussed during the meeting of the writer's group last Thursday night.

Other items discussed were distribution of the "Artpress," and ways of contacting those students who are interested in creative writing.

Members again vetoed any idea of club dues or formal membership and decided that meetings would be open to any and all persons who might be interested.

The group made plans to hold its next meeting at HB on October 29 at 7:30 p. m.

LOOKING UP

With Al Ruddy

Another week of football has given the Evergreen conference a new complexion, with only one team, Pacific Lutheran, still undefeated in Conference action.

Whitworth, starting the season with four straight wins, was shutout last week by John Heinrich's Puget Sound Loggers. Central, which had beaten CPS 14-13, and lost to Whitworth 19-0, tied the Pirates for second place in the standings with an 18-12 victory over Eastern. Both the Pirates and the Cats have marked 2-1 records in league play.

Pacific Lutheran found a much improved University of British Columbia squad when the two clubs engaged last week, with the Thunderbirds stopping the Tacoma eleven 22-18.

A brand new outlook has apparently been developed at UBC towards intercollegiate athletics. So far this season the Thunderbirds have gone undefeated, certainly a great achievement concerning their past records.

It seems to be the consensus with the coaches around the league that joining the Canadian association has been the deciding factor. They contend that on entering this league they have brought new interest to the program. Some have said potential talent existed that was not being developed, and since they have dropped from the Evergreen conference more interest has been developed, and that potential talent has become real talent. This operates on the theory that athletes just didn't care to play on a team that continually loses to American teams.

Only a few coaches have seen the Thunderbirds in action so there is no real first hand information as to the strength of the BC squad, but at least those fans who venture to Woodward Field to view the Savages and their opponents may have a chance to see a team that has come a long way from their usual last place performance.

Saturday will be the next to last home game of the season; let's, for a change, get out and see some lively football and support the Savages.

Central Wins On Eastern Miscues

Eastern Washington College's football team, once again a victim of their own miscues, lost a heartbreaker to an outplayed Central Washington team last Saturday by an 18-12 score.

Central scored first early in the second quarter when Mike Macauley missed the ball when attempting to punt from his own 15 yard line. Central recovered, and three plays later Dale Skolisky crossed the goal line to make it 6-0 Central.

Eastern then took over the ball the rest of the half, scoring on a 20-yard pass from Macauley to Stan Rhodes with just 50 seconds remaining. The conversion attempt was missed, as were all of the rest of them during the afternoon.

After the second half kickoff, Eastern marched 70 yards to take the lead. The counter was made by Tom Meier on a 10-yard blast over tackle.

The Savages held the Wildcats on even terms for the rest of the quarter and had possession when the fourth quarter started. With three minutes gone in the quarter George O'Day intercepted a Macauley pass and scampered 43 yards to pay dirt.

That looked as though it was going to be all of the scoring, but with just 50 seconds left quarterback Jim Black eluded several Eastern tacklers long enough to spot Skolisky in the end zone. That was all for the Savages as time ran out before they could get things underway again.

Eastern's chances to muster enough thrust to grab off its second win of the 1959 grid season are slim when they meet the Loggers of the College of Puget Sound in the annual Homecoming contest Saturday.

It will be the second meeting of the two teams this year. The previous game, Eastern's second of the season, was won by the Loggers in Tacoma 27-7.

Last week, while the Savages were losing to the Central Washington Wildcats, the Loggers were credited with one of the big upsets of the season, downing the Whitworth Pirates 6-0.

Containing CPS quarterback Jerry Thacker will be the Redmen's toughest assignment. Thacker, in his second season as starting field general for the Tacoma squad, has shown himself to be the top quarter of the Evergreen conference. He scored the winning touchdown against Whitworth last week, and has been one of the top passers in the loop.

The CPS defense, which shut out the Pirates with four goal line stands, is not the high point of their game. They are considered to have the most wide open offensive attacks in the league, running from a winged T with flankers and split ends.

According to Ed Chissus, head mentor, the Savages will spend the week concentrating on defense.

"They have a tough game to defense. One that will need to be played man-to-man by our defensive half backs, and that's something we haven't had much success at," said Chissus.

"Our game has been getting better with each game. And we even had Central beaten for better than three quarters. Then we made a couple of bad mistakes that cost us the game. If we had better bench strength, we might have been able to save that one," the coach explained.

Two starters who missed action against Central are expected to be back in uniform for Saturday. Gary Fuller should be at right end, and Dave Crowell at tackle. Bob Nance, who was a defensive standout in the Savage lone win over the Western Washington Vikings, is expected to be off the injured list.

Seniors Lead Jayvee Team

This year the junior varsity football team is being coached by a pair of seniors, and fine football players themselves.

They are Dick Watson, and Don McGee. These two men spend many hours on the gridiron priming the younger, less experienced players to be ready for varsity action. As a reward for their efforts, Watson and McGee get only experience, as this is a non-paying job.

McGee was a fine lineman for Ed Chissus in 1954 where he gained his varsity letter. Watson earned two letters at Everett junior college, but was ineligible last year, and couldn't turn out this year because of a heel operation.

So far this season the junior varsity is winless in games against Columbia Basin and Yakima junior colleges. Their next encounter will be against the Spokane Rams at the Spokane Fairgrounds Thursday night.

Spurs Sell Flowers

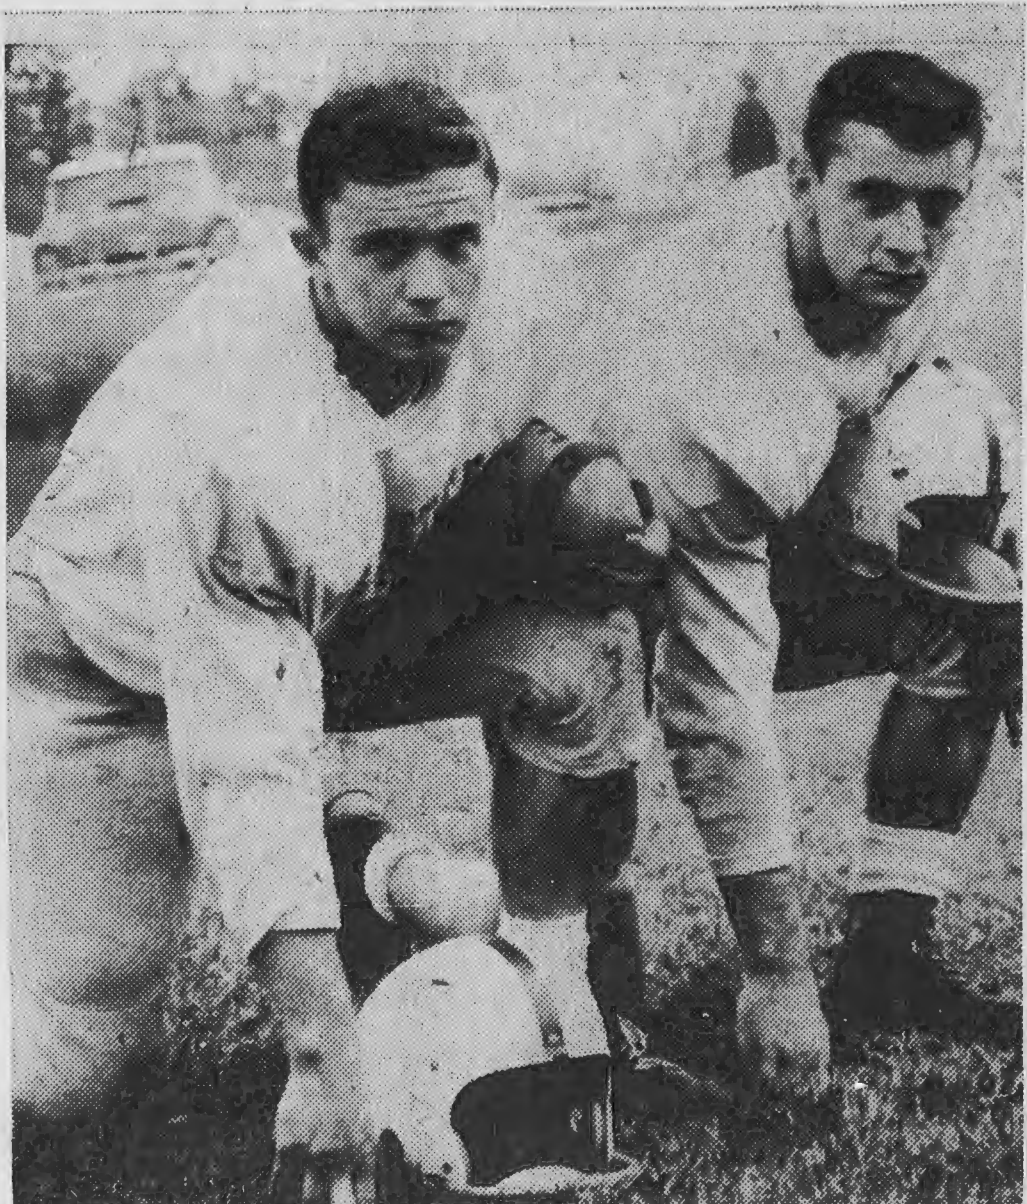

Chrysanthemums, with a red "E" in the middle, are now being sold by the Spurs for one dollar in connection with Eastern's Homecoming celebration. Advance order for the corsages may be made today between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. in the Isle-land. Orders will also be taken by any Spur member and they also will be sold at the game.

FINNEGAN IS PICKED

Eastern's traveling students, the Commuters, have elected Mike Finnegan as president and Carol Hurt as secretary-treasurer.

Sherman To Speak At Convocation

Dave Sherman, a senior student in political science, will speak to a convocation on Thursday, October 22, at 10 a. m. on the 1959 Vienna Youth Festival.

Sherman visited the festival as an observer, and, since his return, has been speaking and writing extensively about his experiences and observations there.

The Easterner is currently featuring a series of articles by Sherman. Today's article is on page 3.

EWC Candidates Rank High In Tests

Eastern Washington College of Education candidates for the master of education degree ranked high in national standardized tests given graduate students throughout the country, Dr. Walter L. Powers, acting director of graduate study during the summer session, reported.

Of 61 EWCE students who took the tests, 74 per cent scored above the national average, Powers said. One third of the EWCE students were in the upper quarter of the test scores, which are based on national norms for first year graduate students.

Demo's Pick Dr. Hossum

Dr. H. K. Hossum, associate professor of political science at Eastern Washington College of Education will serve on a committee on public education to be established soon by the Spokane County Democratic central committee. The appointment was announced recently by Mr. Willard Roe, central committee chairman.

The committee will prepare a pamphlet on the duties and functions of precinct committeemen, which will be used in a training program to be instigated soon by the central committee. It will also engage in other public relations activities on behalf of the democratic party.

Other members of the committee include Mike Green, a senior at Eastern, who worked through the summer as assistant to Luke Graham, chairman of the State Democratic central committee.

MATH TEST SET

The Mathematics clearance tests, necessary before a person is admitted into the professional education program, will be given Wednesday, October 28, at 3 p. m. in the Guidance center, SH 209A. The tests last about one hour.

NSA To Sponsor UN Birthday Party

The National Student association committee of the student council will sponsor two films to be shown at noon in the Capri room of the student union, October 21, and October 23. The films will be shown in connection with United Nations Week.

Titles of the films are: "This Is The Challenge," and "Miracle In Java." The latter film will be narrated by Ed Murrow, and deals with the work of the UN in Java.

The committee will celebrate United Nations Day, Saturday, October 24, with the presentation of a UN birthday cake in the Louise Anderson hall cafeteria during the lunch hour.

EW Lab Planning Nearing Completion

Plans for laboratory equipment for Eastern Washington College of Education's new $2,000,000 science building are nearing completion, Dr. Dana S. Harter, science division head, reported.

Engineering for laboratory desks, cabinets and equipment is being done by Guy V. Sweet, district engineer, Hamilton Manufacturing company.

Completion of the engineering drawings will enable the architects, George M. Rasque & Son, to complete working drawings for the building.

Construction on the EWCE science building is slated to start next spring.

Handels 'Messiah' Scheduled For Dec.

Presentation of Handel's "Messiah" has been scheduled for December 6 at Eastern Washington College of Education, Dr. Wallace B. Pefley, director of choral activities at EWCE, announced.

An organizational meeting and first rehearsal will be held at the Eastern music building October 26 at 7:30 p. m., Dr. Pefley said.

The College-Community chorus and the EWCE Collegiate Chorale will be joined by the Ritzville high school mixed choir conducted by Mrs. Marjorie Elkjer. The EWCE orchestra, directed by James C. Rickey, will accompany the performance.

Choirs of several Cheney churches will join the singing group, Dr. Pefley said, adding that any individual interested in participating in the "Messiah" is invited to attend the first rehearsal. Musicians, and especially string players, are also needed, Dr. Pefley added.

Hammond To Speak

Capt. Chester L. Hammond, procurement officer for the sixth army medical service corps, will be at Eastern's ROTC department on October 30 according to Lt. Co. Erwin G. Nilsson, Eastern ROTC commander.

Capt. Hammond will speak to the M. S. III and the interested M. S. IV. The Medical service corps program of the army, especially pharmacy, supply and administration will be the subject of his talk.

Ancient City Discussed

By John Ditton

"Mycenae" the ancient capital of Greece was the topic of Dr. George E. Mylonas at the convocation October 15. Dr. Mylonas presented some very interesting facts and colored slides on this ancient city.

"Mycenae" is one of the few ancient sites or cities that attract the western world. It was at one time the art and culture capital of the world.

It is now in the process of being restored to the majestic beauty that it once was. Archaeologists are now carefully restoring the city to the best of their knowledge and ability. Restoring it is a very long and delicate task and must be done with the greatest patience and care.

The city was at war with the Dorians in 1150 B. C. At this time the Mycenaeans were conquered and defeated by their enemy and the great metropolis of "Mycenae" was destroyed and burned down.

In 1876, a western archaeologist uncovered what was said to be the grave of king Agamemnon and the royal family. This discovery aroused the interest of the western scholars and they began trying to find out the truth of this ancient site. Since that date many interesting and factual things have been dug up around the city. Graves were uncovered and many valued items were found.

Dr. Mylonas stated that the archaeologists now know more about Mycenae and the people of that time than King Agamemnon did while he was ruling the city.

Crooner Is Prexy

Gary Owsley was elected president of Eastern's Collegiate Chorale last Wednesday, according to Dr. Wallace B. Pefley, chorale director.

Other officers elected were: Edward Barnhart, vice president; Faith Mason, secretary-treasurer and Janice Morris, business manager.

Short, treasurer; Lt. Col. Edwin G. Nilsson, commanding officer of Eastern's ROTC unit; Douglas Cresswell, vice president and Armand Boatman, president.

Evans Voted Outstanding

Terry Evans, a political science major, was named outstanding Intercollegiate Knight pledge at a recent meeting.

Terry led the class with the highest number of accumulated points and outstanding achievement during the pledge period last spring.

Along with Dale Gill, Evans is a Castellon in the service honorary. The Castellons are in charge of the "Gedunk" stand at the football field. The Intercollegiate Knights run the concessions stand at every home football game.
