The "Peter Fink Perceptions in Photography," an 83-picture exhibit went on display at Isla-land yesterday.

Fink began his career in an interior design, but quickly turned to his avocation, photography. He has exhibited his photographs both in Europe and the United States.

The display of Fink's photos cover a wide variety of subject matter and should be of interest to all, especially to art and photography students.

Virginia City Players Set Melodrama

"From Rags to Riches," one of the funniest hits by famous Virginia City Players have yet produced at the Virginia City Opera House, will be presented in Showalter auditorium Thursday evening, October 22.

Over the 10 years the Virginia City Players have been presenting 19th century entertainments in the Virginia City opera house and on the road their "Gay '90 variety show has been applauded by thousands of audiences. Many of the numbers in the variety are better known among fans of the players than the latest hit tunes.

Full of laughs and complete with a sweet and simple heroine, a meek, mild villain and a poor but honest hero, the show is typical of the 1870-80 melodramas of the last century. This type of show was so named because ticket prices were 10, 30 and 30 cents at theaters where they were played.

Most members of this year's touring cast are well-known to northwestern audiences. Bernard Woe, Harold Smith, Donald Pace, Victoria Anderson and Ronald Doyle were all with last year's tour and many fans will remember them who returns to the troupe this fall, after an absence of several opera seasons.

Set in the New York of the '90s, "From Rags To Riches" tells the story of Ned Nimble, an Horatio Alger-type of hero, who wins success and fame through honesty, pluck and more pertinently, discovery of his real identity as a wealthy man's grandson.

WSU Prof. To Be Third AMS Guest

A third speaker has been signed for the political forum to be held at Eastern Washington College of Education on October 9. He is Dr. Charles O. Johnson, professor of political science at Washington State University.

Mr. Johnson, author of numerous textbooks on national and state government, will join Congressman Robert Wilson (R-Calif.) and Stewart Udall (D-Utah.) in the day-long forum on the EWC campus.

Sponsored by the college's Associated Men's Students and the Spokane area Citizenship Clearing House, the political forum is the first of its kind to be held at EWCE. Paul Hoover, Walls Walls, president of the men's group, said it is hoped to continue the forum as an annual affair.

"National Security and the Conflict With Individual Liberties" will be the discussion theme.

Homecoming, the 35th is an undisputed success since the first in 1924, is underway at Eastern Washington College with a full schedule of events and activities programmed by Homecoming Cochairmen Wally Kliver and Ookie Rose and their staff for the pleasure of returning alumni and present students alike.

That first Homecoming, 30 years ago, was staged on a campus much smaller than the one Eastern students enjoy today. Even the name, Cheney Normal, reflects the growth of Eastern from that time, particularly in the concept of EWC's role as a college gradually branching out to include much more than teacher training, however important that function continues to be.

Mr. Eustis

Even so, that first Homecoming was not in the least a "tiny" event; a Mr. Eustis saw to that. It took this Mr. Eustis three years of careful planning and hard work before President Showalter would give his permission, but once Eustis had it, he fired the students' enthusiasm, and together they produced a Homecoming that attracted nearly 400 alumni to their first Homecoming.

An ancient Cheney Normal newspaper summed it all up, "Homecoming Days were a big success... there was not a dull moment. Mr. Eustis must have been very proud.

Queen Candidates

The first major event of our present Homecoming was much in the tradition that Eustis established so many years ago.

Additional Information

Eva Joseph, Walls Walls, Louise Anderson; Judy Miller, Spokane, Hudson; and Betty Muraoka, Whitefish, Montana, to be Homecoming Queen, and will be introduced at halftime at Saturday's football game between Eastern and College of Puget Sound. The Queen will be crowned at the annual Homecoming Dance, being held this year in Spokane on Saturday evening.

The Greater Show On Earth

By Bill Brophy

The current steel negotiations—or lack of them—illustrate many of the shortcomings of collective bargaining as it is presently constituted.

Aside from the lack of representation of public interest in those industries where such would be desirable, the practice of collective bargaining has failed to adjust adequately to the changing technology.

In too many instances it is a one-way street, with management doing all the bargaining and Labor collecting.

The usual practice is for labor to present its demands and file notice of its intention to strike if the demands are not met to the letter. Management will immediately respond with a counter-demand, and the representatives of labor to consider the problems faced by management over numerous other limitations, the situation has resulted in a gradual usurpation of managerial functions by labor through the medium of contract stipulations which strip management of some of their decision-making functions.

This has resulted in part from the relative power positions of the two sides, and in part from the attitude of labor. Most of the union leaders have interpreted “business unionism” to mean “get all you can get for the workers and let management figure out how to pay for it.” This attitude stems from the belief of most union people that there is a fundamental conflict of interest between labor and management. This may have been true at one time, but it is out of date now. There is a good deal more identity of interest today than either side realizes. As an industry prospers, so will its workers. If it fails, so will its workers fail.

In the current steel strike, the companies broke the pattern by presenting some demands of their own. They demanded more freedom for their plants, a conformance with local conditions and sound management practices. If the unions have not been able to recover from the shock of this radical departure from traditional practices, the fault lies with them.

Campus Traffic Squad Needed

The recent automobile accident which resulted in injury to one student and ticketing of another for negligent driving highlights a growing problem on this campus—traffic safety.

With approximately 900 cars registered on campus and an enrollment of more than 2000 students the congestion and conditions on the streets within and adjacent to the campus create a multitude of hazards.

We suggest that perhaps the time has come when Eastern should establish a student police system, to enforce traffic and pedestrian regulations as is done on most other large campuses.

Such an organization would serve many ends: It would provide better traffic supervision on campus than can be provided by the Cheney municipal police. It would create some much needed campus jobs for students. And it would relieve the Cheney police of the necessity of devoting much of their time to patrolling a relatively small portion of the territory for which they are responsible.

We realize that there are administrative roadblocks in the way of such a program: The streets on campus are legally under the jurisdiction of the city of Cheney, not the college. The cost of such a program would probably have to be born by the students themselves.

We believe, however, that the jurisdictional problem could be resolved to the mutual benefit of all concerned, and we believe that the students would be willing to share in the cost of protecting their own health and property.

Letters To The Editor

Reader Is Insensitive

Bill Brophy

Most of the readers of your paper don’t see me in class. I do not go to your college. But I hope some of them might be inter-Want to no when I think about your paper and some of the people who write letters to it.

I don’t spell so good, as you can probably see, but I think I can pride myself on being as good a writer as the person who scents a letter to the editor last week.

This person didn’t seem to care for some of the remarks made by you. You were picking a little fun at some people and he got mad.

Well know minor editor, I don’t see many people where I live, like here at the Cheney city dump. But I can tell you that you have got a rite smart paper. I have been hidden from the draft board since the big war started in ‘41 and I can tell you that I enjoy your paper very much.

I would like a little more nu as. When is the big war going to end? Of course little things like this dont really make a paper. But I would like to no.

Now when I read your paper and see some smart alek make nasty words to you, I just get mad all over.

I might have different viewpoint than him. It is much nicer and cleaner here than where he lives and sabe he has a nasty mind.

Mabe he don’t know good literature when he sees it. I can say that your paper is the smartest paper. I have been hidin from other “Playboy” dance this fall. Last year’s dance was a big success . . . and the “Playboys” are really terrible. Write the Editor for exclusive pictures of this year’s playmates candidates.

Things we never expect to see at Eastern: A new Sacajawea statue. Popular prices at the bookstore. An adequate wage for the instructors. Dr. Schulte running for office on the Republican ticket. Duane Triner looking. Dr. Patterson growing a beard. Modern halls replaced by a new dorm. Eastern’s student picking up after themselves in the student union cafeteria.

Many of you have asked when radio station KEWC will be broadcasting. From what I’ve heard, it is doomed to live on air for this quarter.

The Kinesisk will be available to the student body tomorrow.

I bet I ever zapped my feet in.

Well thanks for listening to my troubles. I would take it as a sign if you wont tell the draft board where I am.

Effectiveness Of Festival Discussed

By Dave Sherman

To determine the effectiveness of a communist youth festival one should first examine the type of people who attend and their reasons for attending.

The basic reason for their attending the World Youth Festival, and I found this true of people from other countries as well, was simply to meet people from other countries. Some wanted to exchange political ideas. Others wanted to stay in line with the theme of the festival and exchange only cultural ideas. After the festival was over the Soviets labeled "approved" representatives on free conducted tours through the countries of the Soviet bloc. These tours were too short and glamorous for serious study and were arranged to show only what the communists wished to be seen.

Although the tours available for the Americans weren't free, they were so ridiculously low priced that one could hardly afford not to go. For $74 we were given the opportunity to tour Russia for nine days. This fee included our transportation from Vienna to Moscow, Leningrad, and Kiev plus our room and board. Because I was tagged "antifestival" by the festival organizers, I couldn't obtain a visa.

IR Club Sponsors Yuletide Card Sale

The International Relations club of Eastern Washington College will sponsor the UNICEF Christmas Card sale again this year, club president Paul Hooper announced recently.

Cards will go on sale November 1, and will be available through November and December. A booth will be established in the student union to accommodate those who wish to buy.

The sale has been well received in past years and is expected to set a record this year.

All proceeds from the sale of cards go to the United Nations International Children’s Emergency Fund for the relief of needy children all over the world.

‘Image Of Man’ Is Lecture Subject

One of a series of lectures, sponsored by the United Student Christian foundation, will be presented tomorrow night in the student union building at 7:15 p.m.

Miss R. Jean Taylor will present the psychological image of man as found in Sigmund Freud and Erich Fromm.

There will also be a review on the effect of psychological findings on the attitudes of man and his religious beliefs.

Names Confused

New Name Sought For Former Artpress

Choosing a new name for the “Artpress” was one of the major subjects discussed during the meeting of the writer’s group last Thursday night.

The group met for the first time this quarter in room HB of Hargreaves library building. Other items discussed were distribution of the “Artpress,” and ways of contacting those students who are interested in creative writing.

Members again vetoed any idea of club dues or formal membership and decided that meetings would be open to any and all persons who might be interested.

The group made plans to hold its next meeting at HB on October 29 at 7:30 p.m.

Central Wins On Eastern Miscues

Another week of football has given the Evergreen conference a new complexion, with only one team, Pacific Lutheran, still undefeated in Conference action.

Whitworth, starting the season with four straight wins, was shutout last week by John Heinrick's Puget Sound Loggers, Central, which had beaten CPS 16-13, and lost to Whitworth 19-0, tied the Pirates for second place in the standings with an 18-12 victory over Eastern. Both the Pirates and the Keyes have marked 2-1 records in league play.

Pacific Lutheran found a much improved University of Puget Sound team at Tacoma, however, when the two clubs engaged last week, with the Thunderbirds stopping the Tacoma eleven 22-18.

A brand new outlook has apparently been developed at UBC towards intercollegiate athletics, for this season the Thunderbirds have gone undefeated, certainly a great achievement concerning their past records.

It seems to be the consensus with the coaches around the league that joining the Canadian association has been the deciding factor. They contend that in enlisting in this league they have brought new interest to the program. Some have aid potential talent existed that was not being developed, and since they have dropped from the Evergren conference more interest has developed, and that potential talent has been added through the programs. It appears to be the theory that athletes just didn't care to play on a team that continually loses to American teams.

Only a few coaches have seen the Thunderbirds in action; so there is no real first hand information as to the strength of the BC squad, but at least those fans who venture to Woodward Field to view the Savages and their opponents may have a chance to see a team that has come a long way from their usual last place performances.

Saturday will be the next to last home game of the season; let's, for a change, get out and see some lively football and support the Savages.

Central Wins on Eastern Miscues

Eastern Washington College's football team, once again a victim of their own miscues, but a heartbreaker to an outplayed Central Washington team last Saturday by an 18-12 score.

Central scored first early in the second quarter when Mike Macauley missed the ball the rest of the half, scoring on a 20-yard pass from Mike Macauley to Stan Rhodes with 50 seconds remaining. The Keyes, which had beaten Central Washington 22-18, scored both touchdowns, and Alt added four points with a field goal and a point after touchdown.

Central's chances to muster enough thrust to grab off its second win of the 1959 grid season are slim when they meet the Loggers of the College of Puget Sound in the annual Homecoming contest Saturday.

It will be the second meeting of the two teams this year. The previous game, Eastern's second of the season, was won by the Loggers in Tacoma 27-7.

Last week, while the Savages were losing to the Central Washington Wildcats, the Loggers were credited with one of the big upset of the season, downsing the Whitworth Pirates 4-0.

Controlling CPS quarterback Jerry Thacker will be the Redmen's toughest assignment. Thacker, in his second season as starting field general for the Tacoma squad, has shown himself to be the top quarter of the Evergreen conference. He scored the winning touchdown against Whitworth last week, and has been one of the top passers in the loop.

The CPS defense, which shut out the Pirates with four goal line stands, is not the high point of their game. They are considered to have the most wide open offensive attacks in the league, running from a winged T with flankers and split ends.

"They have a tough game to defend. One thing we need to be played man-to-man by our defensive half backs, and that's something we haven't had much success at," said Coach Chissus.

"Our game has been getting better with each game. And we even had Central beat for better than three quarters. Then we made a couple of bad mistakes that cost us the game. If we had better bench strength, we might have been able to save that one," the coach explained.

Two starters who missed action against Central are expected to be back next week. Gary Fuller should be at right end, and Dave Crowell at tackle. Bob Nance, who was a defensive standout in the Savages win over the Western Washington Vikings, is expected to be off the injured list.

Seniors Lead Jayvee Team

This year the junior varsity football team is being coached by a pair of seniors, and fine football players themselves. They are Dick Watson, and Don Mc Gee. These two men spend many hours on the grid-iron priming the younger, less experienced football players themselves. As a reward for their efforts, Watson and Mc Gee get only experience, as this is a non-paying job.

Mc Gee was a fine lineman for Chissus in 1954 where he gained his varsity letter. Watson earned two letters at Everett junior college, but was ineligible last year, and could not turn out this year because of wheel operations.

So far this season the junior varsity is winning in games against the Western Washington Wildcats, and Yakima junior colleges. Their next encounter will be against the Spokane Rams at the Spokane Fairgrounds Thursday night.

Spurs Sell Flowers

Chrysanthemums, with a red "E" in the middle, are now being sold by the figures for one dollar in connection with Essex's Homecoming celebration. For the coriages may be made today between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. in the Idealan Dairy, and also taken by any Spur member and they will be sold at the game.

Ancient City

By John Ditton

"Mycenae" the ancient capital of Greece was the topic of Dr. George E. Mylonas in his recent presentation. Dr. Mylonas presented some very interesting facts and colored slides on this ancient city.

"Mycenae" is one of the few ancient sites or cities that attracted the western world. It is now known that the city was at war with the Mycenaeans were conquered and defeated by their enemy and the great metropolis of Greece was the topic of Last Wednesday, according to Dr. Wallace B. Pecky, choral director.

Dr. Mylonas stated that the archaeologists now know more about Mycenae and the people of that time than King Agamemnon did while he was ruling the city.
