New Student Teaching Program

The Intercollegiate Knights' chapter in Washington, Oregon and Idaho has been investigating, EWC's president, Dr. Don S. Patterson said.

The program, which includes possible uses of the high school building for student teaching, student assistance, and an observation of the facilities by EWC's officials, Dr. Patterson said.

The program is being conducted to see how the building can be used to its full potential. The program will include various activities such as observation sessions, class discussions, and other forms of student assistance.

The program will be evaluated in the fall at a cost of about $125,000. It was built for an enrollment of 250, but more than 400 students are currently attending.

The building has a full bell schedule and there is no available property nearby that could be used as an addition could be built.
Editorials Or Words! — A Choice

"Afghanistanism" is a type of writing used by some college editorial writers. This is the practice—at this college for instance—of dealing with some event that is further removed than the city limits of Cheney, or with a subject more profound than a campus parking problem.

It seems that most people who talk of this practice are against it. They say, "Why should people write about trouble in Nashville, Cuba or the Middle Eastern states? Whatever is written in The Easterner editorial columns won't effect what happens in those places.

They say, "Sure, these areas are important, but why isn't some thing said about the prices in the bookstore, or the lack of parking places, or something else that the people at EWU could do something about if they were stirred up?"

The answer to this last statement is simple. Actually, what difference does it make if a person must pay $1 more or less for a book, or if a person must walk one-half block further to a class because he can't park his car any closer?

It is submitted, on the other hand, that man's inhumanity to man as displayed in the integration-segregation troubles, the infiltration of left-wing influence in Cuba and the age-old conflict between Arabs and Israelis as well as the suppression of basic human rights in Algeria are things that do matter.

If serious thought is not given to these problems, if they are met head on in the editorial columns, at the coffee table, and in the newspaper, then these supporters of anti-Afghanistanism may see the mundane problems that are the concern of isolationists, may see the mundane problems that the writer is forced into the position of becoming either more important, in political circles where something can be done about them, then these supporters of anti-Afghanistanism, then the writer is forced into the position of becoming either more important, in political circles where something can be done about them, then these supporters of anti-Afghanistanism, then the writer is forced into the position of becoming either more important, in political circles where something can be done about them, then these supporters of anti-Afghanistanism...

I would like very much to see the play again. That is after the cast had about six or more months practice in the dramaturgic historic elements of the theater and some leading dominos was to come in and correct the dramatistical errors.

The melodrama was high-lighted with scores of "fools" with interspersed melodious sang-froid verse. The melli­fious melphomene played so gallantly by the orchestra would certainly put a person into a state of somnolence if one were to hear it as an entity.

Horse-Around Day
Bemuses Hudsonians

The first annual Horse-Around day was held in Hudson hall last Wednesday, with competition being held in three events—jacks, hopscotch and most stylish pajamas.

John Droz gave Al Smith a close run for his money in the jacks competition, but Smith came from behind in the rubber band to defeat Droz in a grand sweep by taking tenlies, while Droz was only on sixes. Morris Krigbaum won hands down in the hopscotch event by shutting out the old master, Ed Meyer, in a sudden-death play-off.

There was no question as to the winner in the pajama competition. Clay Henderson won by a vote of 17 to 10 nothing. Henderson won an ensemble of white shorties decorated gaily with pink, red, purple, and blue polka dots.

Max Hatch was official score keeper, head linesman, coach and referee.

News S-H Center Still Undiscovered

In the event that there are still some students who have not yet discovered it, a new social sciences-humanities reading room was opened recently in the library, Dr. Graham Conroy, associate professor of humanities, said.

This reading room, known as the Socio-Humanities Center, has study space for 72 students and a collection of several thousand volumes in the fields of history, sociology, economics, political science and anthropology.

Under the heading of philomathy, there are books on religion, languages, literature, arts, music and the theater. This collection is made up of basic books in their fields, to which new acquisitions will be added from time to time.

Although there will be dic tionaries, a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica and other "ready reference" books, the main reference collection will remain in the upstairs reading room.

Books in the S-H may be read in the center or borrowed, but no reference materials will be issued for the regular library services.

It is hoped by spring quarter, more students will be acquainted with the S-H habit," Dr. Conroy said.

Dancing Classes Set

In spring quarter a new idea will be introduced to the campus in the form of dancing lessons to be given by Warner Shuh. A preview of these lessons, which are sponsored by the ASB social promotion committee, will be presented at the registration mixer intermission.

Wally, a talented freshman majoring in chemistry, halls from Seattle. He was employed the past four years by the Boeing Aircraft Corporation of Seattle, and therefore feels he is fully qualified for this project.

While he was with Boeing he attained the enviable position of head janitor on the graveyard shift.

Wally feels that the knowledge he learned there makes some ingeniously technical and key position will pay off when the actual construction takes place.

Wally plans out cutting down his academic load slightly the first go-around technical and key position will pay off when the actual construction takes place.

The promotion committee, will be in charge of this coming spring quarter.

Tom Ennis, ASD president, application forms for this seminar may be obtained from him or Paul Hooper. Ennis said any student is eligible to apply, and that the student body will help to defray expenses of the trip.

"Especially those students who have an interest in interdepartmental cooperation, I feel that the student government can do in this instance what I have requested to apply," Ennis said.

Westrick Wins Award; Voted Outstanding Player

Vern Westrick, Eastern sophomore, won the first annual Gene Lyonnais memorial award, presented in memory of Mr. Lyonnais, who for many years was active in both Spokane basketball and amateur baseball.

The award, to be given annually, is based on the conduct of a Spokane softball league player both on and off the field.

Westrick was awarded a jacket and plaque for his outstanding play on the Pacific Northwest Alps team in the 1959 state softball tournament, held in Yakima.

Westrick, a pitcher with the Dishman Merchants team during the regular season, was picked by PNA for the state tournament. He had a 10-1 record with the Dishman team, which was highlighted by a no-hit, no-run game in which only one player reached first base, that on a walk.
