the Cheney Chamber of Commerce blood drive committee. Some 178 pints of blood were donated by college students and Cheneyites. The plaque was donated by the Cheney Chamber of Commerce, to be awarded each year to the dorm having the largest percentage of its residents to donate blood. Hudson, with 30 per cent, was this year's winner.

Commencement Speaker Sees K. As Great Menace

"Khrushchev is not a country clown, but a formidable character, a combination of Genghis Kahn, Huey Long, Machiavelli, Joseph Goebbels all in one," Dr. Norbert N. Einstein told Eastern graduates at commencement exercises at the college Sunday.

Speaking before an audience of 2000 in the EWCE fieldhouse, Dr. Einstein, commentator on foreign affairs, spoke on "Interest in International Affairs—Necessity or Hobby?"

Mrs. Hazel Laughbon, Davenport, a member of the EWCE board of trustees, conferred diplomas on 142 graduates. Bachelor of arts in education degrees went to 89 students; 41 were awarded bachelor of arts degrees and 12, masters of education.

William Lloyd Rowles, head of Eastern's division of music, retiring after 31 years at the college, was awarded the honorary status of professor emeritus by Mrs. Laughbon.

9 Commissioned

Nine of the graduating seniors also received army commissions as second lieutenants.

Vets: Sign Now

Pay forms are waiting for veteran's signatures.

Veterans are reminded that two pay forms must be signed before the end of the school term. A pay form for the two-week period in June should be signed immediately.

Mrs. Win Glessner, veteran's clerk, reported many veterans are forgetting to perform this important duty and as a result are not receiving their checks.

She said that last Friday, which was the deadline for the May pay forms, close to 300 cards were still unsigned and some 30 pay forms for April were never signed.

Old Demerit Code Through At Senior

Senior hall women last week voted to abolish the dorm's traditional "demerit" discipline system, Roma Adams, dorm president, announced.

The new system which has been voted in will give added duties and income to corridor representatives, will establish a standards board to try all discipline cases, adds a week night campus for an accumulation of minor offenses and changes men's calling hours on Friday and Saturday nights.

A seemingly popular change in the rules calls for an accumulation of 15 minutes after the "blinks" time per quarter before the women receive a campus. A plan for setting up a mandatory study table for first quarter freshmen and students on probation was defeated.

Events In Spokane On Social Calendar

Garth Wheeler, activities coordinator-elect for 1960-61, reported that social events for the next school year to be held in Spokane have been planned in the budget.

"Activities in Spokane cannot be staged without people to plan and execute them," he said.

"For this reason I'm asking all interested persons who want to help with these social activities to meet today in the Koffee Korner room of the Student union building."

"Commuters are especially urged to attend, as this will directly affect them," Wheeler said.

"There were five reasons why Khrushchev acted as he did in Paris," Dr. Einstein said.

"First, his peaceful coexistence is opposed within Russia.

"Then, the red Chinese hindered and blocked the Kremlin from speaking for the whole communist bloc.

"Third, Khrushchev also thought he could bring down the image of Eisenhower in the world.

"And he saw in his action a chance to create dissension in the United States in an election year."

Policy Blunders

Foreign policy blunders have been bipartisan, Dr. Einstein said.

"At the end of World war II, no one in a responsible position realized that times had changed."

Speaking on education, Dr. Einstein said that the Russian Sputnik brought about a radical upheaval and reappraisal of education by the American people.

"The Russian principle of education, where the state commands the kind of education you will receive or else sends you to the salt mines, is not the American way," he said.

"We should never give up the economic system that made this country great, and the envy of all.

"The United States was forced into the position of being the world leader without wanting to be. America wants to be loved—but that is impossible. A great nation must either be envied or hated," Dr. Einstein said.

"It is ironical that we are going to other planets when we have been so unsuccessful in managing this one."

Fred Johns Named New Comptroller

Fred S. Johns, principal examiner of the state central budget agency, has been named comptroller of Eastern.

Mrs. R. R. Morrison, chairman of the EWCE board of trustees, said Johns will replace Dr. W. W. Force, who has resigned effective June 30, to accept a position as business manager and professor of business at Alameda State college, Hayward, Calif.

A native of Iowa, Johns holds a bachelor of science degree in economics from the University of Minnesota. He has done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin and at Minnesota.

Johns was formerly with the state personnel board and was budget examiner in the office of the governor before going to the state budget agency.

A veteran of World war II, Johns is married and is the father of a 4-year-old daughter.

What . . . Me Worry?

I imagine that most college students have, at some time, wondered as to the real value of student government. Further, I imagine that the majority of this group has concluded that such government is little more than an outgrowth of its socially oriented, high school counterpart, and thus something of minute educational value.

In other words, student government is a social framework filled with a few ambitious people, and one void of any serious responsibility. In any case, the predominant student attitude is one of confidence that the affairs involving student government and will be handled by some authority, and any need for themselves to play an active role in such a determination is needless. Past results appear to substantiate this conclusion.

Expanding to the national scene, it seems that a comparable situation has existed for the past few years. While the United States citizenry may not regard their government with contempt, they have relegated most of their responsibilities as citizens to a few civic and governmental leaders.

In both cases, it seems that a near crisis must arise before any significant portion of the population becomes aroused enough to be effective in policy determination. Even then it is apparent that the American public, including the college student, has to have something taken from them materially, a major privilege removed or a serious threat of either before they can arouse themselves to concern. Luckily this group has fared well so far and has suffered little—but for how long? The leadership may not always remain so benevolent.

What would this nation be like with a drastic curtailment of civil liberties, with all policies directed by an unpopular elite and with people regarded as numbers rather than individuals? To further this point, how would you like Eastern without a SUB, without any social or athletic program and yourself without one iota of personal choice concerning the school's policies?

These drab conditions are what democratic government prevents, and they are what you might very well have without such government. Yet you are losing these very things because our government depends upon popular support to exist and you are not lending these products—neither at Eastern nor across the nation. As a result, a governmental change or dissolution are the alternatives facing you.

Therefore it seems logical to suggest that it would behoove you and your fellow citizens to accept the responsibilities of citizenship within the organization to which you belong or prepare to watch their nature change.

Still such a change will not occur "over night." There are many interested minorities who strive to keep these organizations functioning, but they cannot do the majority's work forever. Also, minorities have, in the past, been famous for their lack of honorable motives.

Aside from other considerations for the time, I sincerely feel that the preceding description is representative of a majority of the United States citizenship. This is not to suggest that man is basically lazy or irrational but only that he is a product of times—the times he created and the times he can also change.

Unfortunately Eastern is no exception to this condition and her students face the same choices whether they realize it or not. One fifth of the students voting in an all school election and student council representatives who stay away from scheduled meetings in such numbers that a quorum can't be obtained, are examples of the support student government has at Eastern. If this is the support you wish to lend, I am afraid you will suffer the consequences in the future.

A strong and good national government protecting the welfare of her peoples depends upon an interested and active citizenry—something that is impossible if there is little or no previous training. By ignoring these training areas such as student government, America's youth are, in effect, destroying the foundations of liberty and democracy.

It's not too late for anyone to realize this fact but it may be too late before enough people do realize it. I hope the students will consider this message—and the far-reaching consequences of their choice.

Campus School Wins National Award

Pictured above is an exterior shot of Eastern's campus elementary school which was named winner in competition for the award for better school design. Overview magazine announced the award in its June issue. George M. Rasque and Son of Spokane designed the structure which was finished last fall.

This observation section, where future teachers can observe the classroom work, is an unusual feature of the school. The school houses grades from one through six and has a total capacity of 240.

Here is a typical campus school classroom showing the one-way glass at the front of the room. The total cost of the school was $376,000.

Reinbold Beats Handicap

RECEIVED BA DEGREE SUNDAY

A tragic accident that has confined him to a wheelchair for life didn't deter Raymond C. Reinbold from getting a college education.

Reinbold, who lives at N5621 Milton in Spokane, graduated from Eastern last Sunday with a bachelor of arts degree. He majored in accounting.

Although confined to a wheelchair because he cannot use his legs, Reinbold has had little trouble traveling around campus. Passersby have volunteered whenever he needed help, such as going up and down stairs.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Reinbold, Marshall-area dairy farmers, he was graduated from Cheney high school in 1953. He worked in a Cheney service station for two years while attending Eastern part-time, then in 1956 enrolled as a full-time student while still working as a service station attendant.

It was in June, 1957, when tragedy struck. Reinbold, at the wheel of a convertible, fell asleep. The car rolled over near the outskirts of Cheney, and he suffered a broken back and spinal injury.

Six months in St. Luke's hospital in Spokane followed.

In Cheney his part-time employer, Norval Holmes, and Mrs. Earl Moos started a movement to collect funds for his medical care.

Reinbold went from St. Luke's to the G. F. Strong Rehabilitation center in Vancouver, B. C. Here, with funds provided by the Washington state rehabilitation program, he was given therapy to enable him to care for himself.

It was here that Reinbold met his wife, the former Kathleen Mori of Vancouver. She, too, had suffered a spinal injury in an automobile accident, could not use her legs and was confined to a wheelchair. They were married in August, 1958.

When he returned as a student to EWCE, Reinbold changed his program of study. Before his accident he was majoring in biology, intending to become a medical technician. He switched to accounting, where his handicap would make no difference.

Reinbold drove himself between Spokane and Cheney each day in a car with special hand controls.

For the past year he has been working part-time for Richard M. Ireland, a Spokane certified public accountant, and will continue in this position now that he has graduated.

'W' Club Picks Hilty, Plans Active Year

The "W" club climaxed the year with the election of officers and the setting of plan for the coming school year.

New officers are Rich Hilty, president; Ted Paterson, vice president; Darwin Springer, secretary; Fred Ekholm, treasurer; Bill Palmer, sergeant-at-arms, and Leroy Seth, activities chairman.

Hilty said he plans to institute a number of new projects with the onset of the coming year. Among them are the erection of a large "W" on campus, erection of a permanent roll of "W" club members in the field-house, an award for the year's most outstanding athlete, and a varsity ball.

OVERCOMES HANDICAP—Raymond Reinbold was able to graduate from Eastern last Sunday despite being confined to a wheelchair as a result of a tragic auto accident. Reinbold, who received a BA degree in accounting, will continue on as an employee of Richard M. Ireland, a Spokane certified public accountant.

Industrial, Labor Relations Internships To Be Offered

This year's internships in industrial and labor relations will become political science 390-391 for the winter and spring quarters of the 1960-'61 school year, Dr. H. Kenneth Hossom, professor of political science, announced.

The internships include weekly conferences with prominent officials of Spokane's major industries, labor unions and government agencies. Interns will study industrial and public relations in weekly seminars and conferences on campus.

Preference in admission to the program will be given to students with junior class standing and with good grades in their introductory courses in the social sciences. Students wishing to enroll should make application to Dr. Hossom not later than October 30, 1960.

This program, the only one of its kind on the west coast, according to Dr. Hossom, will include work with Kaiser Aluminum's Mead and Trentwood plants, Standard Oil company, General Telephone company, Pacific Telephone company of the Northwest, and possibly a few more.

On the labor front, the steelworkers, woodworkers, building trades, teamsters, warehousemen, meatcutters and retail clerks unions will be in the program.

If this sounds like an interesting program to you contact Dr. Hossom or one of this year's students who took part in the internships.

This year's students included Kenneth Appling, Neil Callahan, Walter Hartman, Lonnie Herington, Gerald Losh, Jerry Maley, Creed Morgan and Larry Plummer.

In addition, Richard Sandall, Greg Smith, John Sprenger, Darrell Varnier, Robert Varro, Gary Hundebly, Terry Evans, Joe Dieni, and Tom Ennis also took part in the program.

SAVAGE MEN TO NATIONALS—These three Eastern tracksters, left to right, Leroy Seth, Clyde Carpenter and Gary Fuller, were chosen by the coaches of the NAIA to represent the Evergreen conference in the national small college track meet held at Sioux Falls, S. D., last weekend. Seth tied for third in the high jump; Carpenter finished fourth in the 1500-meter run, and Fuller took fourth in the 110-meter high hurdles and fifth in the 200-meter lows.

Illness Strikes 3, PE Dept. Hit Hard

Three EWCE faculty members have been absent from their classes recently because of illness. The women's physical education department, it appears, is hardest hit by the loss.

Dr. Virginia Hoffman, assistant professor of physical education, is reported to be recovering satisfactorily after being released from the hospital following surgery. She is now staying with friends at Fairchild air force base.

Another P. E. prof, Mrs. Kathryn McCulloch, was called to Ohio a short time ago because of the death of her father, and after arriving at her mother's home, she became ill and entered the hospital near Grafton, Ohio. No information has been received since her operation last week.

Dr. Eugenia Clark, associate professor of home economics, broke the bone above her ankle in a recent fall. She has returned from the hospital and expects to resume her teaching duties for the summer school.

Reese, Killin Named To Evergreen Staff

W. B. (Red) Reese, at Eastern since 1930, was elected president of the Evergreen conference in a recent conference meeting at Ellensburg.

Orland Killin, assistant professor of industrial arts, was named secretary-treasurer for the group.
