England's Gangs Noted by Teacher

By Billie STANLEY

The subject of Mods and Rockers was one of the several topics discussed in a recent interview with Dr. Donald F. Pierce, associate professor of history.

Dr. Pierce, who has just returned from a year's study in England, observed that England's two most popular teenage groups are the Mods and the Rockers. He pointed out that both groups have undergone major changes over the last few years. The Mods, for example, are more popular with older British youth than they were in the early 1960s, while the Rockers have become less popular among young people in recent years.

Papoose Packer Draws Attention

By Patty COX

"Oh, my, what a handy way to carry a baby," is the comment usually made regarding the Papoose, a baby carrier that was developed by car. Dr. Pierce, an elementary education major who first heard about the Papoose when he was in England last year, said that he was impressed by its widespread use among young women in the United Kingdom.

The Papoose has been designed to provide comfort and convenience for parents and is relatively inexpensive. According to Dr. Pierce, it can be used until the baby is one year old and is cheaper than many other baby carriers on the market.

The Papoose has drawn a lot of attention on campus since it was sent to a friend in Great Britain, where they attended the University of Edinburgh. It has been used by many students, and has become a popular item among young parents.

Dr. Pierce observed that promotional efforts have focused on the use of Papoose-style carriers in various parts of the world, including the United States and England. The carriers are also used in a variety of settings, including homes and schools.

The Papoose is a popular item among young parents who are looking for a convenient and comfortable way to carry their babies. It is a product that is easy to use and is a valuable addition to any family with a baby.
It takes courage and concern to voice disapproval through the paper.

A graduate student has faced possible retaliation to urge a change in classroom proceedings. She feels oral reports are overwork.

Sometimes a thing must be said, regardless of the consequences.

Possible retaliation in this case, on some campuses, would take the form of heavier assignments or a lowered grade point.

Eastern has always had the reputation of being willing to listen to a just complaint and then change its ways when necessary.

The Easterner believes this complaint to be legitimate. We'll be watching to see if our faith in good old EWU is justified.

Coalitionists Violate Trust
Don't Re-elect Demo-Reps!

By TOM WOOD

In what way can a citizen insure himself of the integrity of his political representative? One way is to compare his representative's voting record with the platform on which he was elected and if they conflict regularly, change your vote.

Some of our fellow Washingtonians found that when the last session of the State legislature convened, their Representatives had taken it upon themselves to switch their loyalties from being Democrats to being "Demo-Reps"--hence a confusion of nomenclature and legitimacy to their actions. It is not for these elected officials to account for their actions, but the platform to which they pledged themselves. However, regardless of which ideals Bellingham and, last but not least, Robert Perry from King County, hold, they may use to account for their actions, Perry's voting record with the platform on which he was elected this fall on the Democratic ticket.

To put it another way, a portion of our legislators desecrated our trust in federal government to provide what the state fails to provide. If this requires the use of federal power, then use them. Furthermore, I think it would be the prerogative of the federal government to determine when and how the forces are to be employed.

By Bill Goodworth (Sophomore): Yes, anytime the state can't or won't provide adequate protection for the people in that state, I think it's the federal government's job to do so. These civil rights workers go to Mississippi knowing the risk involved, but does that mean the state's job can be reduced if possible?

H. Goodworth (Junior): No. Three little boys were killed in Chicago. Schools and children should be protected by federal power.

Richard Runnen (Junior): Yes, I feel the local authority in Mississippi is not capable of protecting these workers. It seems a shame that this would be necessary, but it is a change we need.

Bill Goodworth (Sophomore): Yes, I think the local police can't take the law into their own hands and desecrate these laws, but does the state or the federal government have the authority to do this?

Richard Runnen (Junior): Yes, I feel the federal government has the authority to do this.

By Bill Goodworth (Sophomore): I don't feel that the local police can protect these workers or that the state can protect these workers, but does the federal government have the authority to do this?

A prominent liberal recently suggested that, for a fee, he would write a FAKE PARKS for Congress button.

We offered him the twice the amount not to.

Edmonds, Stevens Present Recital

Dr. Edmonds, assistant professor of music, and Jean Stevens, a former EWSC faculty member, will appear together in their second duo-piano recital tonight at 9:15 in Showalter Auditorium.

Dr. Edmonds and Miss Stevens performed together at Eastern for the first time last March when they presented an outstanding two-piano recital.

Tonight's program will include Bach's "Sheep May Safely Graze" and "Second Sonata in C Minor," Brahms' "Variations on a Theme by Haydn, Op. 56b" and Arensky's "Suite for Two Pianos, Op. 15."

Long Beach Prof Visiting Campus

Only the experts will get passing grades in Audio Visual Arts this summer. Sound tough? Not to Dr. Frank Gorow, visiting instructor from Long Beach State College.

Dr. Gorow's approach to A.V. is directed to the needs of each class member and when they've mastered their needs, then they're experts self-defined.

As an instructor the personable professor feels that students need less spoon-feeding and more problem-solving, research situations.

He also feels that A.V. provides resources that need to be exploited and not simply splashed upon the wall.

Dr. Gorow and his wife Lee are not strangers to Washington as he has 14 years teaching experience in the state including one year as director of Washing­ton State College's A.V. service.

Dr. Gorow states that his free time is being used to compose a book on measures which is being developed. All the ingredients for making a quick omelet or a variety of scrambled eggs are packed in a box.

Utilizing the new freeze-drying process, and a new method for making dehydrated eggs, the Horden Company has preserved the savory features of fresh eggs in a light, easy-to-prepare package that requires no refrigeration. This makes the new line of Instant Omelet Mixes excellent for boiling, camping or fishing trips, as well as for family parties.

Available in four varieties—Ham, Mushroom, Western and Cheese—the omelet mixes are easy to prepare. And you don't have to use aluminum foil, cooking oil, or dicing and cutting ham, onions or peppers. Each package contains two envelopes—one with dried white egg solids inside, then freeze-dried foods used as flavorings. Both are combined with water just before cooking. Cooking takes about 5 to 10 minutes. Each package contains enough for two omelets, or one large omelet or two small omelets or two 4-inch omelets. Also available are omelets and sandwich bars made at home, too. A supply on the pantry shelf will assure you of a variety of quick, tasty late evening snacks.
