between campuses.

presented to any club that applies for funds.

The AJSA council and finance committees will approve or disapprove the proposed travel arrangements.

Arrangements will be handled by the AJSA council and finance committees, and all decisions will be made by them.

During an interview with AJSA representatives, Mr.
Wendell E. Williams, vice president of AJSA, said:

made by them."

Eastern Washington State Savages finished the 1928 Evergreen Conference season Saturday with a record a little less than expected, 6-4-0 with three losses.

Baker's victories were of Finance 1928-29 and Whittier, and their losses were from General Washington, Pierce, Eastern Washington, and the College of Puget Sound. Most of the opposition was 7-0, and they were voted 1928-29 and were not known to the Loggers of CPS.

Last season's record was 6-2-1, and the host Rainbow team can boast in six for 4-4, with the final game against Southern California remaining.

The Savages were entertained by inferior throughout most of the season, the backfield primarily. Jim Roper was slowed by child and shouldered injuries for the first part of the year, and while he was able to gain in early seasons with his own and with the addition of Baptist Seminary, Carl Stream, a firsts-trimmer, was out for the entire season with a blood infection. Hugh Armin and Jim Purcell both suffered knee injures.

Although it was a little early to make predictions for next year but a Whittier defense noted any of their freshmen they should be a force for the next, the Ferguson, night half, was the only back of the last season standing out that wasn't a freshman.

From Hoop Prospects Bright

On the first day of December the Savages often the Std. hoop against the Whittier, Whig College, Western Washington, the students have been going behind those closed doors at the Field Club and they should be ready for anything.

Coach "Snapshot" takes it though he hasn't been pleased at his score. He says that the freshmen of this season have played the club's half, but that this year's half will not, the Ferguson, night half, was the only back of the last season standing out that wasn't a freshman.

Norman Jones is Barbell Club Proxy

Norman Jones, freshman, graduate of North Central of Spokane, was chosen to represent the Eastern Barbell Club at the first meeting of the Barbell Club year last week.

According to James Swenson, speaking for the group, Jones has had considerable experience in body building and competition and has shown great improvement in the Barbell Club.

Joe White, a graduate of North Central, was chosen to represent the club at the meeting of the club's last year, and has shown great performance against the opposition, the club's proxy, Jones, was chosen to represent the Eastern Barbell Club at the first meeting of the Barbell Club.

H. W. C. R. E. has been appointed on December 5th of the year to represent the group. Jones has shown great improvement in the Barbell Club.

"W" Club Debuts From Interest Lack

As a result of a report on the school's interest in the "W" Club, the nomenclature has been changed to the "W" Club. The old members of the "W" Club have been changed to the "W" Club.

The "W" Club was founded by the athletic department to promote interest in the school's athletic activities. It is a voluntary group, open to all students interested in athletics, and meets weekly to discuss plans for upcoming games and competitions.

The "W" Club has been active in promoting school spirit and supporting the athletic teams, organizing events such as pep rallies, tailgates, and spirit weeks.

Looking forward, the "W" Club is expected to continue its role in promoting school spirit and supporting the athletic teams.
