Board Of Trustees Discusses Allocations And Arches

Problems ranging from million dollar budgets to teachers' feeling actions were considered in an afternoon meeting of the trustees Tuesday.

President Don D. Patterson re- ported on the $8,060,000 budget ap- proved by the board for the next academic year. He said the trustees "are in favor of everything we budgeted, but we will need more." He said the cut in support state aid would be a major problem for the college.

The president noted that the completion of a new classroom building this summer will allow the college to use its classrooms to other departments.

And the new elementary school (which opened on Monday) will allow the construction of a new classroom building.

The trustees will meet again next Monday to discuss further plans for the new building.

The American political system as we know it or perhaps as we imagine it to be based on the ideas of James Madison and Thomas Jefferson is under serious threat. As Madison wrote in Federalist Paper No. 67, “The political system of the United States, like all others which have been established since the discovery of the New World, is no experiment. In the first instance, it is a system which has been adopted by the people of a nation to secure to themselves the blessings of a representative government. In the second instance, it is a system which has been adopted by the people of a nation to secure to themselves the blessings of a representative government.” And yet, as Madison also wrote, “We must be prepared to sacrifice a part of our country, a part of our liberty, a part of our property, a part of our life, in order to secure the blessings of our Government.”

Study In 20th Cent. Unity

By Patricia Fellake

In spite of the conservative single-minded gray suit and the panel of glaring brokers and dull as drab, he could no doubt find a way to do business in the face of his vilinism. In the face of their unwillingness to change, he could still do something. The American political system is an experiment, and it is an experiment that we must all be prepared to sacrifice in order to secure the blessings of our Government. In the first instance, it is a system which has been adopted by the people of a nation to secure to themselves the blessings of a representative government. In the second instance, it is a system which has been adopted by the people of a nation to secure to themselves the blessings of a representative government.

Down With Plaster Head

It is Spring, a time of renewal, and we are entering into a new era of hope and optimism. It is a time to reflect on the past year and to look forward to the challenges that lie ahead. The plaster head, a symbol of conformity and oppression, must be removed from our society. It is time to stand up and be counted, to demand the end of all forms of oppression and discrimination. The plaster head represents a world where diversity and individuality are suppressed, where people are forced to fit into predetermined molds.

American System Drowned?

The American political system as we know it or perhaps as we imagine it to be based on the ideas of James Madison and Thomas Jefferson is under serious threat. More On Our Sac Problem

Last week, the student council announced that the student body would be voting on a new policy regarding the handling of sacs and gloves. The policy, which was introduced by the student council, would require students to wear gloves while handling sacs, in order to prevent the spread of disease. The policy was met with widespread opposition, as many students felt that it was unnecessary and inconvenience.
Duke Dazzles Large Crowd With Songs

By Dick Carter

Miss Karen Duke came out on stage of the filled auditorium of Schooner Hall Thursday and gave the students and faculty of Eastern a program that can be described as "right" and "fantastic."

She began her performance by singing and playing some specially arranged ballads from Europe and America. She then showed them some songs which are more popular and modern.

The people who attended the program were more than pleased with Miss Duke. They showed their enthusiasm by asking for an encore at the end of the performance.

After the show, a few of the students went backstage to talk to the performer and found her warm, friendly person. She also immediately became interested in some of the activities on campus and particularity in the production of the musical "Teenagers!"

Later in the evening, Miss Duke attended the rehearsal of the show. When asked what she thought of the show, she remarked that it should be a very good show.

Miss Duke was also pleased with the reception she received from the audience at Eastern.

The auditorium was filled to the point where some of the latecomers had to go to the balcony to find space. The student and faculty members should be changed each quarter, in order

Legislators Debate 1959 Tax Issues

On Wednesday afternoon the discussing went on behind closed doors in the student union. Republican Senator John H. Happy and his colleague Rep. Alfred Adams both on Democratic Bank of the Senate called into a discussion the new elements of the legislation.

Both H. and Adams hit hard at the Democrats for failing to keep the two to four per cent tax on the sale of the large business at the same time it was being cut down to a dollar tax.

W. H. made it clear that if the Democrats did not make up their minds on what they would do they would have to split the large business tax short in order to keep the two to four per cent tax.

BACHELOR'S DANCE IS HIT

Although few people attended, the Bachelor's Club Bachelor's dance proved to be a huge success. The形成 who were there enjoyed every minute of the affair, and only one couple left before the dance was over and playing at midnight.

The dance was unexpectedly enjoyed, and the night club atmosphere made it a very enjoyable dance. Rather than pay the large bills, the club was provided with a punch bar and bowling green. John Doolittle, the owner of the club, provided punch bar and bowling green.

The punches were provided at this time, and the objects of the dance were to drink and have fun.

As information on the main event of the evening took place when the club was closed, Tom Roper, the Bachelor's Club Chairman, Louis Warneke, and Miss Weeks received a large bouquet of roses and a check from each of the Bachelor's.
