Decisive 26-0 Victory Breaks LONG, LONG Losing Streak

by Mike McAtee
College of Idaho, out manned and outnumbered from the opening kickoff, to the final fourth quarter touchdown, were handed a 23-0 setback by the Eastern Washington State Savages last Saturday night in Cheney.

The victory, the first for Eastern since November 12, 1960, was no doubt a product of several hard fought, but bitterly disappointing losses earlier in the season.

For the second weekend in a row the Eastern offense, under the direction of first year coach Dave Holmes, completely dominated the statistics, but it was apparent from the outset that victory was not to be denied the Savages this week.

Although Eastern did not score until the second quarter they seemed to be able to move the ball almost at will throughout the first stanza. The first score came on a one yard plunge by halfback Mel Stanton.

The Savages drove from their own 27 yard line in 17 plays for the score that would have been the deciding margin in the contest. Stanton, the highly heralded sophomore formerly of Lewis & Clark High School in Spokane, and the W.S.U. freshman football squad was personally responsible for 36 yards rushing in the Savages first scoring march. He proved to be a thorn in the side of the Coyotes throughout the contest as he carried the ball 32 times for 137 yards and a 3.4 yard average.

The lone touchdown by Stanton was the only scoring in the first half as Eastern carried a slim 6-0 lead into the dressing room at the intermission.

The games turning point came midway into the third quarter when Eastern linebacker John Later intercepted a Coyote pass on the C. of I. 35 yard line. Four plays later quarterback Lee Grichuhin hooked up with John Aslett with the first of two scoring tosses from six yards out making the score 13-0, and virtually putting the game out of reach.

Quarterback Lee Grichuhin has reached mid-season form with a rush the last two weeks He completed 11 passes in 16 attempts, and two touchdowns against the Coyotes, and has completed 20-31 (Continued to Page 4)

Concert Monday
Vicki Fraile, noted night club singer will be on campus Monday, October 27. Accompanied by The Arnle Caruthen Trio, they will present a concert in Showalter auditorium at 3:00 p.m. All seats will be reserved and sold on a first-come, first-served basis. Admission will be fifty cents to students and friends of Eastern.

Stanton is dropped after a good gain. Arriving too late to help is Jundi (72) while Doug Cox (79) and Langum take care of the pursuit.

The banquet will be held in the Terrace room of the SUB and the program includes a speech by Dean of Students Daryl Hagie.

JA Conference Will Be Held

The Eastern section of the Washington Industrial Arts association will hold its annual Fall Convention in the Ball-lounge, Saturday, October 26. The conference is held on this campus every third year. All students and faculty are invited to participate.

The program of the convention will include, "Education for Work", moderator George Bybee; "Perkins Bill", moderator Richard Morgan and Dr. Wooldridge; "Technician Manpower Conference Proceedings", presented by Dr. Vandeberg; "Discussion of Coman's Remarks on Education", moderator Mr. Horndell; "Public Relations Presentation"; moderator Allen Stollar; "Shop Swaps Discussions", moderated by Industrial Arts teachers.

The conference begins at 9 a.m. recesses for lunch at 12 noon, and completes its program from 1 until 5 p.m. Students interested in majoring in Industrial Arts are especially invited to attend and become acquainted with the program in action.
New Men's Dorm Promises Residents "The Good Life"

by Steve Powell

Many questions exist in the minds of Eastern's men students about the new dorm "silo" looming skyward from the extreme western side of the campus. This architectural feature greatly changes the scene of Eastern and demands a feature article.

After living in this new dorm for a day you will say that plush Sheraton plaza couldn't be better.

Entering through aluminum framed glass doors from the south, you will set foot on deep pile carpeting and see long curved wooden planters growing tropical vegetation.

If you look to the left from the lobby, the lounge area stretches forth equipped with modernistic chairs and tables. This area extends southwest from the main superstructure in glass-front windows. Adjacent to the lounge is the recreation area with vending machines. This area is connected to the lounge with sliding glass doors. Also stretched out in a curved pattern on the main floor is a ping pong room, television room, built-in counter, and separator interesting notices up on the wall without causing any damage and study space and will accommodate more people per floor than you can in the same area in the Eastern Village. This architectural feature greatly changes the scene of Eastern and demands a feature article.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs steadily on the rise, more and more undergraduates are looking into the student loan plan. If you are one such, you would do well to consider the case of Leonid Singson.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed beach gazer in Straight-Eyed Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college but his father, also, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but he needed speed, also, was not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only one athletic skill—jumping for beaches with his toes—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches. And—then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installment after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana Col-
Lou Gottlieb, (right) one of the Limeliters and a performer in Hootenanny '63, "climbed under" one of the signs used in picketing his performance Monday night and said he fully supported the cause of the pickets (see story).

Gottlieb Grabs Sign, Joins Pickets
by Carol Foss

Students picketing Hootenany '63 Monday night received some unexpected support in their protest effort. Lou Gottlieb, a member of the Limeliters folk singing group and one of the performers at whom the picketing was directed, took one of the signs asking them to join a group to "Ban TV's Blacklist" and marched back and forth with it for nearly fifteen minutes.

The pickets, led by Jack Hickenman, an Eastern English major, were protesting the television network ban on folk singer Pete Seeger, widely regarded as America's finest and most accomplished singer of folk songs. Seeger has been blacklisted by the TV industry and kept off all network shows. Indeed, they say, Mr. Seeger's contributions to American folk music, that "Ban TV's Blacklist" remains to be seen, first at least on the Eastern campus the picketing has served its purpose when "the encyclopedia of American folk music," Dr. Lou Gottlieb, has joined in the march.

Miller Named New Chairman

Dr. Vergil Miller, chairman of the department of business at Eastern Washington State College, has been named chairman of the research committee, Spokane chapter, of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association.

It was once said that "fences make good neighbors" and this may be the case in an era where privacy and personal space are valued. However, in our modern society, fences may not provide the same level of privacy as they once did. In fact, fences may even be considered a symbol of division and separation.

In recent years, there has been a trend towards open-space living. This trend is due in part to the rise of social media and the desire for transparency and authenticity. People are becoming more open about their lives and are sharing more of their personal information on social media. This has led to a decrease in the use of fences as a means of separation.

In addition, there has been a shift in the way people think about property and ownership. In the past, people were more likely to own land and build their homes on it. However, in recent years, people have become more comfortable with renting and sharing spaces. This has led to a decrease in the use of fences as a means of defining property boundaries.

As a result, fences are no longer as common in our society. This may be a good thing, as fences can create a sense of isolation and separation. Instead, people are finding new ways to create boundaries and define personal spaces.

In conclusion, fences may not provide the same level of privacy as they once did. In fact, fences may even be considered a symbol of division and separation. Instead, people are finding new ways to create boundaries and define personal spaces.
Krebsbach Named Advisor to EWSC Student Council

Raymond Krebsbach, Associate Professor of English has been named the new advisor to the Associated Student Council.

The advisor's job is to give any advice that might be requested by the council. He must attend the weekly meetings of both the Council and a sub-committee the Finance committee.

Mr. Krebsbach said that he felt his job was, "To help the council promote and maintain good student government."

The council's faculty advisor is chosen by the council itself. The Executive Council, made up of the officers, chooses several faculty members who have the time and qualifications and presents their names before the entire council. After the choice is made, President Patterson must confirm the appointment.

Mr. Krebsbach was introduced to the students at the President's convocation. He replaced Mr. Darrell Morse who is on leave.

Dames Invite Married Women

There will be a regular meeting of the Dames Club on Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 8:00 p.m. in Sutton Hall Lounge. The program will feature a panel of faculty wives speaking on "Your life as a Professional wife."

All married women students or wives of students are cordially invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Blood Drive Successful But Breaks No Record

A total of 224 pints of blood was donated by the students of EWSC in the recent annual blood drive held on October 18, 1963. This is three pints less than last fall's 227 pints, but the drive was "real good," considering the flu viruses that are going around now. No records were broken in this past blood drive.

Major Darrell B. Irvin, Department of Military Science, remarked that these annual blood drives "are to serve the student body and faculty, and the blood bank account is opened under their names." There are two drives a year, one in the fall and the other during spring quarter.

According to Major Irvin, there are approximately 400 pints of blood in EWSC's blood account at the present time, and the purpose of these drives is to "keep the account up so there is enough blood in the blood bank for emergency use for EWSC's students and faculty members."

Juniors Will Meet

There will be another big Junior class meeting tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. in Ball lounge. Officers will be elected from those juniors present.

Evergreen Conference Prestige Is Growing

An over-all sketch of the strength of the Evergreen Conference, with respect to other northwest colleges might well be gained after a review of the six non-conference games held last weekend throughout the Northwest.

A final tabulation finds the Conference gaining the nod by winning four of the six contests. The only glaring non-conference loss was P. L. U.'s 62-67 loss at the hands of Lewis & Clark, of Oregon.

Other action saw Eastern down College of Idaho 26-0. Whitworth soundly defeated Whitman 38-7. University of Puget Sound topped Willamette University 27-20. Central Washington remained the only undefeated team in the state by beating Pacific of the Northwest Conference 20-3, and finally Western Washington was turned back by a strong Linfield College elevation 16-0.

Pardon me if I sound as if the executive position I've landed deals with the whole future of the world.

It does.

Certainly, there's no organization today conducting more vital business than the business of the United States Air Force. And very few organizations that give a college graduate greater opportunities for responsibility and growth.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team—with good pay, a 30-day paid vacation each year, educational opportunities. How can you get started? For many, the best way is through Air Force ROTC. But if you missed out on AFROTC, or if there's no unit on your campus, you can still apply for Air Force Officer Training School. This three-month course leads to a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

For more information about Air Force OTS, see your local Air Force representative.
Walt Burnett (54) kicks-off as Savages race downfield to make the tackle.

(Continued from Page 1) in his last two outings for a .650 percentage. He now ranks second in the Evergreen Conference in passing, and is among the leaders in total offense.

The final two scoring drives by the Savages in the fourth quarter not only added a decisive point to the contest, but it also pointed out the reserve strength of the Savages, a factor which has been a glaring weakness in years past.

With the score standing at 19-0 midway through the fourth quarter senior quarterback Rich Robertson went to the helm and moved a fired up reserve unit 80 yards in 10 plays for the final score of the evening. During the final drive Robertson completed three passes in three attempts, with reserve back Dana Dueweke going the final eight yards to pay dirt.

The final statistics only serve to emphasize the over-all dominance of the Eastern outfit as they outgained the Idaho eleven 399 yards to 141 yards, including 23 first downs for the Savages, to eight for the Coyotes.

On Second Thought
By Mike McAttee

Victory—Football’s Finest Hour

Saturday night’s football victory not only brought a decisive end to a losing skid that had almost become a way of life at Eastern, but it also pointed out beyond a doubt that “quantity” as well as “quality” is essential to a college football coaching staff.

Saturday night the well drilled outfit that literally overwhelmed an otherwise successful College of Idaho football squad, was the product of no less than five “Heads of State” who have been more than moderately instrumental in getting Eastern back on the winning path.

The point here is not to dwell in the past, but to reflect the fact that it has been realized that a two or three man coaching staff will not produce effectively.

Eligibility Questioned

The word was out on Mel Stanton even before his stellar performance this last weekend. Pacific Lutheran University has personally questioned the sophomore status of Stanton. They claim two years participation while attending W.S.U. would leave him a junior and only one remaining year of eligibility. However, a check with the W.S.U. administration left no doubt of Stanton’s sophomore standing.

Backcourt Action

Christmas in October and the opening practice session of the “63-64” basketball campaign before we have reached the midway point of the conference football schedule are no doubt direct attributes of our fast pace society, but they nevertheless are facts with which we have become accustomed.

On Monday, October 14, about the same time the first Christmas lay-away brochures hit the mail, Eastern’s head coach W. B. (Red) Reese, led a squad of candidates for this years basketball squad onto the courts for their first practice session.

Reese can look ahead with a certain degree of optimism when he scans the list of returning lettermen from last years squad. Joe Allen, Alex Woods, Dar Monasmith, Jim Tutton, and Vince Jarvins will make up the nucleus of what should prove to be a well drilled Evergreen Conference entry.

Grant in Aid Distribution

The question of aid to athletics at Eastern is a subject that has been debated from the halls of Sutton to the gathering spots downtown, but in actuality let’s look at Eastern’s grant in aid program as allocated by the Athletic Council for 1963-1964.
