Stravinsky Concert On Campus Friday Evening

Eastern Washington State college Concert Series will present the international concert pianist Soulima Stravinsky in a formal recital Friday, February 14, in Showalter auditorium at 8:15. Stravinsky, the son of the noted composer Igor Stravinsky, was born in Lausanne, Switzerland. He studied piano and composition in Paris at the Ecole Normale de Musique.

Since his debut at the age of twenty, Stravinsky's concert engagements have covered most of the European countries and South America.

He arrived in the United States in 1948 and since then has appeared with major orchestras and has given numerous series of recitals throughout this country and in Canada.

Stravinsky is widely recognized as one of the foremost interpreters of Mozart and Scarlatti. His French background and his familiarity with the great masters of that country give him equal authority in all matters pertaining to French music.

Since 1950 Stravinsky has been a permanent member of the University of Illinois faculty and the past decade has toured Europe and South and North America. In addition to being a concert pianist of international standing, his professional activities have led him to lecturing.

Meeting Set For Spring Teachers

Students who plan to do their Student Teaching spring quarter will be required to attend a general orientation meeting tomorrow, February 12, at 3:40 p.m. in the Martin Hall auditorium.

Five Music Faculty To Yakima Meet

Five members of the Eastern Washington State music faculty will participate in the annual convention of the State Music Educators Association in Yakima starting February 20.

Constitutional Amendments Will Appear On AS Ballot

Last week at Student Council meetings, Jim Nelson, present AS EVP, and Larry Snyder, present AS Activities Vice President, announced their withdrawal from the AS ballot for Executive Vice President.

This left Bruce Liebrecht as the only candidate for the EVP job. He will need only one vote to win the office.

After the meeting Nelson and Snyder explained why they originally submitted their names to the candidacy list. Bitterly Snyder said, "In the last day to file Jim and I signed up hoping to create enough interest to encourage students to become more aware of the upcoming election. How can they (the students) expect any kind of a job from the AS officers when only one out of 1,500 eligible students is interested enough to apply for the EVP's position?"

This left twelve students as candidates for the primary this Friday.

Four Students Appointed To Faculty Senate

With the approval of the newly formed Academic Senate the AS Council appointed four students to three of the Senate's councils last Thursday night.

The treasurer candidates have the same problem. Either Roger Clamer, Dave Rosing or Bart Smith will have to go in the primary.

The only "all girl" ticket, that of secretary, has Lynne Wilcox, Sharon Moses and Carol Monahan fighting to make the finals.

Campaigning will begin last Monday and will continue up through the primary this Friday, February 14. The finalists will begin campaigning next Wednesday, February 16.

Candidates began speaking to living groups last night, February 11, and will continue speeches tonight and tomorrow night.

Last night L.A. Hall and the first six floors of the men's dorm will host the speakers.

The last night to speak, tomorrow night, the candidates will visit Monroe and Senior Hall.

All speeches will begin at 10:15 p.m.

Five Councils to Form Academic Senate Policy

The academic senate at EWSC provides advice and counsel to appropriate administrations. It is divided into five Senate Councils. They are: (1) Faculty Affairs Council, (2) Public Affairs Council, (3) Undergraduate Council, (4) Graduate Council, and (5) Student Personnel Council. Listed below are the responsibilities of each Senate Council.

- Faculty Affairs Council: Salary, retirement, insurance, faculty advancement, promotion and tenure, faculty appeals, faculty loads.
- Public Affairs Council: Legislative liaison, public information, public services, speakers bureau, special programs, placement.
- Undergraduate Council: Curriculum, admissions, course approval, degree requirements.
- Graduate Council: Counseling, academic standards, academic counseling.
- Student Personnel Council: Housing, student welfare, personal counseling, student conduct, high school contacts, financial aid, foreign student advisement, commencement and student ceremonies, health service.

The major responsibility of each of the above mentioned councils is to provide advice and counsel to the appropriate administrative officers. All policies of these councils must meet approval by the Senate.

The Undergraduate Affairs Council meets twice a month—every second and fourth Wednesday. Any student on campus is welcome to attend these meetings.

Milk makes a meal

Pour a glass—tall and cold and fresh. How could anything so great-tasting possibly be good for you! But, then, that's Milk. No other food quite like it. A glass with every meal assures us the "instant energy" we need—while it builds strong bones and teeth, maintains bright eyes, and generally contributes to our well-being. What a refreshing stay to stay in good health!

Election Issues

From The Desk Of Reece Kelley

One certainly doesn’t need an acute audio or visual sensory system to detect that this week and next week is election time for Associated Student officers and various other “causes”.

The student union has taken on the aura of a political convention, and issues and opinions are to be had for the asking or, more probably, for the listening.

Having been in office for nearly a year, I can help being very concerned with what will finally emerge as the campaign issues. Therefore, I feel a responsibility to extend an effort to bring the campaign discussion and debates to focus on what my experience in student government has shown me to be the real issues facing our student government.

Before I move on to a more positive delineation of the issues, I would like to make clear what I feel is not a major issue. Some people feel that dissipation with the National Student Association should be an issue because they claim, it is costing us money and our campus isn’t getting anything out of it. I question the motivation of the group of “leaders”—if you can call being drug back to the Middle Ages leadership—of this movement. Across the nation there has been a tremendous effort on the part of the ultra-conservatives to discredit and destroy N.S.A. because it has taken liberal stands on some issues. In fact, one of the ways to become the bright star in the sky of local conservativism is to be able to brag, “I got rid of N.S.A. on my campus”.

I know of no one that has taken a sincere interest in and that has actively worked with N.S.A. that would advocate dissipation. Some have constructively demanded that N.S.A. become more active in fields of endeavor closer to home, or that N.S.A. be re-structured so that it would be more effective.

In summation on this point, the N.S.A. needs constructive criticism, sincere and dedicated leadership, and an accurate sensitivity to student opinion; however, dissipation is not the answer nor should it even be a major election issue at this time.

As I see them after a year’s involvement in student government the real issues: 1. Planning the physical facilities of and the methods for financing a new student union.

2. Effectively exercising our rights to participate in college policy formation that has been accorded to us by the Academic Senate.

3. Establishing a more effective and professional manner of administering our ever growing financial responsibilities by possibly hiring a professional business manager.

4. Maintaining the rapport and respect that exists between the students and the administration by continuing to effectively and responsibly govern ourselves.

Let's Keep NSA

Although there are 12 candidates seeking AS positions, the two running in the tightest race are Curt Leggett and Bob Clark. They both have shown an active interest in student government and are doing a good job as AS treasurer this year. He has established a solid image on campus. Students have seen unselfish projects of the owner of the Pix Theater. Anyone caught removing these posters will be charged with vandalism, and the theater posters have recently been disappearing from their glassed doors. The owner has threatened legal action for the damage caused.

Doomed?

To the Editor:

What is this thing that can fall in another? What is this ungodly creature that can make you cry, laugh, hate, hate, love, at the same time? Can a reader of newspapers ever forget the high seas or the dense jungles of a far-off land? Can a creature of one thing make the wives of men forget their homelike duties during those long winter nights. Or fathers of small boys forget their sons on that day of Holy Sunday, Sunday. What is this thing that has become the center of our lives? It is our TV. It is "too late" to save ourselves from the influence of this supernatural creature that is moving into our homes and communities, and that can have an impact as to take our families apart from one another. Where, soul from soul." It is too late to save ourselves. This Frankenstein of the 20th Century technology. It must be destroyed before it is too late. Let us all move together with the strength of a determined hand and heart to that certain corner, that electro-technical center of our poor perverted lives, and with a heart that will save and end our "fear of terror," pull the plug on that damn television set.

To the Editor:

In response to the accusations of my friend Mr. Snyder it is certainly not hard to respond to the hope of Larry's remarks, since there is none there.

Is it for the sake of his prestige that he has to remark on every issue on campus? Our open mind, well planned activities vice-president, my dear friend Mr. Snyder, has a problem. He cannot see too far ahead.

Whether he believes that our student body is ignorant, apathetic, irresponsible, is not the question. But I wonder if he believes we have a democratic government, and not an oligarchy.

A clean political criticism is as pleasant as an honest one. According to Larry, there are people who can sign petitions and those who can't. Whether or not this is constitutional, depends on the above question.

I wonder if my memory helps enough to remember that the question of foreign student representation has been brought up prior to the question of blazers. Maybe he can explain how a non-voting member on the Democratic Council can provide a double representation of that member?

Respectfully,

Jamshed Khulli

We Tried!

Letter to the Editor:

Concerning the previous issue of the Easterner stating we were running for election to the position of Executive Vice-President of the Associated Students. It was correct in listing our names as among those persons who are campaigning for offices in the upcoming student election. At the time you went to press we had no oposition, but at this time seeking election to that office or any other position in student government. However, Lecreche who was the first to file was also the only person with the expressed desire to become E.V.P. Only this past time filing deadline. It was a very close contest that competition in healthy in student government is only one of the many learning processes a student can participate in while attending college. Also, it is one of the more important areas a student can become involved in and receive a real sense of achievement and personal satisfaction.

We are gasoline and fuel to all of you who have come to us to ask for help. We believe that student government should be maintained and controlled by under-graduate students, they can not gain more valuable personal experience personally, but also they will be closer to the problems of the students. (3) Competition is healthy in many forms, but in the case of our running for an office it would be construed as a form of pseudo-competition, or plainly, competition for the sake of competition and it will now our belief that this would not contribute to, nor benefit the concept of student government. At this point we would tend to be critical of the attitude of the majority of the students toward student government and the inability of the present student administration, ourselves included, to bring about a full participation and interest of the Associated Students in effecting the work of student government. We have seen a definite improvement in the last two years, but it did not reflect itself in the filing for an A.S. offices this year. If most students and individuals did not make a decision to participate, this year may be 25% of the more important areas a student can become involved in and receive a real sense of achievement and personal satisfaction.

We sincerely hope that during the second semester of this school year we can impress upon the students that this is their school and more students and individuals must take an active part in its government.

Sincerely,

Jim Nelsen

To Snyder From Smith

Dear Mr. Snyder,

When you always read your column, your current one is of special interest to me. In it you spoke about "speaking at Eastern. And, I felt the usual, tedious ho-hum of being mentioned in your "Saying Remark." There are certain opinions and charges contained, thereby Larry, that although, I believe were thoughtfully arrived (Continued on Page 7)
In 1947, European students were convinced of the need for international student understanding and cooperation. A meeting was called for to be held in Prague, and it was titled "World Student Congress." It was intended that this congress be the first international convention for an inter- national student organization.

At this time America did not have a student organization representing American student community. However, a delegation was chosen from American colleges by existing student organizations.

In August, 300 students from the United States went to Prague for the meeting. It soon became apparent that the majority was in control of the meeting. The United States, along with other countries, voted in the minority.

When the American delegation returned to this country they were convinced of the need for a forum of national student leadership. In the international representation could be found one body that could raise the level of understanding of national and international issues on every college campus.

The returning delegates, backed by the students at home, decided to sponsor a trip, sent out invitations to every college in the United States, and called a National Student Organization within the American educational system. The NSA was formed to become a member of the United States Congress and other major organizations of college students (The National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, and the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators) noted:

"The United States National Student Association, a national organization of students representing their respective student governments on hundreds of campuses throughout the United States, is a representative, democratic, national student organization. It is not interested in any particular organization on the American scene."

The United States National Student Association, a national organization of students representing their respective student governments on hundreds of campuses throughout the United States, is a representative, democratic, national student organization. The NSA does not appear to be in danger of becoming communist or leftist. It has spearheaded and led the American movement of college students against international communism. The NSA has been doing and continues to do a most effective job of educating the world in the dangers of international communism. The NSA recognizes the great value of student involvement in international politics, and the international connection of the educational process. While recognizing that a student should be an active participant in all aspects of his academic program, the NSA urges student participation in legitimate social and political activities. The student should be an active, informed, responsible participant in the democratic life of the campus, local, state, national and international communities. The NSA student should seek with interest and responsibility to become concerned not simply with the local problems of the college, but to the academic community, as well as with those great problems that affect all humanity, all national and international life.

"You sign mine and I'll sign yours." Everyone start a petition! All you need is a complaint or excuse and an emotional reason to back up your crusade. You noticed I stated emotional, not rational. A rational reason might have been less effective if not completely unconvincing. As it stands now, we have two emotional examples circulating our campus. The first, the sympathy of the Lebanon prisoners, and the second, the sympathy of the anti-Vietnam protesters.

The first petition considering the question of the National Student Association on campus. This petition was initiated by the Easterner on Wednesday, February 12, 1964, by Bob Stevens. The Easterner, February 12, 1964. The NSA recognizes the great value of student involvement in international politics, and the international connection of the educational process. While recognizing that a student should be an active participant in all aspects of his academic program, the NSA urges student participation in legitimate social and political activities. The student should be an active, informed, responsible participant in the democratic life of the campus, local, state, national and international communities. The NSA student should seek with interest and responsibility to become concerned not simply with the local problems of the college, but to the academic community, as well as with those great problems that affect all humanity, all national and international life.

Why abolish NSA? by Bob Stevens

The National Student Association, as it was originally conceived, is an organization of student principles and high ideals. It is properly administered and effective. It is a program initiated by N.S.A. could prove to be a most valuable influence in the development of this campus and other campuses.

If representative of student feeling, N.S.A. can serve as an effective guide for measuring student involvement in national and international issues. Governmental agencies on the state and national level could use such a guide when legislating on matters regarding education and other issues in which students are or will be involved. If properly organized, it will have the power to influence national politics, world affairs, and student organization.

But all of the "ifs" outlined above have not become realities. The worthy principles and high ideals have been talked about without being acted upon. National student organization has been stymied by the National Congress and to ignore N.S.A. resolutions because of the opinion of the American student but rather a mere sampling of the American student opinion. This institute only 30 percent of the nation's college students to the National Congress. In all, the delegates of member schools to N.S.A. National Congress are not representative of the student body or representative of the student's own judgement rather than upon the National Congress. The leadership which is so vital to any effective organization has also been a factor. Though many outstanding students have taken their places in leadership positions, they have been joined by an equal number of unqualified yet convincing individuals who hold their own personal achievements above those of the organization which they represent.

And oddity of all the situation, considering the high level of the campus level, the place where such an affiliation should prove to be the forum for the increase of the student membership. They have failed to attract new members and are not geared to strengthen their part in the broad majorities of campus activities. The campus itself in the climate which has evolved out of eight years of not really understanding and accepting the millenium of the "new era". And when they did make concessions, their efforts died for lack of support.

True, we have incurred some benefits from our N.S.A. committee. It has sponsored speakers and designed fund raising programs for worthy causes abroad such as the World Service Committee. However, since we have not accomplished with N.S.A., we can not reasonably consider the N.S.A. to be any less of a help to the students of Eastern. By joining N.S.A., we are helping to maintain a democratic, responsible student body that can represent us on the national level. It is most important that we have our voices heard.

I am sure that the students, if made aware of the situation, will recognize a lack of constructive leadership on the part of the NSA committee. I also take this lack of leadership into consideration when evaluating the present attempts to abolish NSA. Remember, the student voice must be heard, and the student should be an active participant in all aspects of his academic program.

Why abolish NSA? by Bob Stevens

The second petition was initiated by Tony White and Jamshid Kahlili, chairmen of the Foreign Student Committee. It proposes a non-voting seat on the Council for purpose of representing the foreign students. This seat is different from the seat represent--nine foreign students. Who will this seat educate?--only those students who are foreign students. This seat is the prestige of becoming a council member. Why not a blather? Even though we have more foreign students on campus, why should they, in any way, include the prestige of a council member? Why should double representation be enacted? Oh, well, some people will sign anything just to see their name on paper.

second half was not to be denied despite their half time deficit. Central's Jim Clifton scored the first ten points in the second half to bring the Cats back into the game 48-52. The game remained on a fairly even keel until 7:30 of the second half when Central struck. Central, down 62-58, outscored the Savages 11-2 in the next two minutes and took over for good at 5:05.

Bob Warren of Central led all scorers with 19 points. Mike McGuire led the hapless Savages with 18, Don Monasmith followed with 16 and Alex Woods with 15.

Loggers Victorious

The University of Puget Sound set a Memorial Fieldhouse record as they handed Eastern's Savages their seventh conference loss by a score of 65-77.

The Loggers of Tacoma broke an all-time field house record when they scored 38 points from the foul line. They shot an outstanding 82.6 percent from the charity line. Eastern picked up 26 fouls during the contest.

The game was definitely won from the free throw line as Eastern outscored the Loggers from the field 46-48. Eastern jumped off to a fast start with a ten to three lead after three minutes. The Loggers fought doggedly however and regained the lead at 11-12. The game was closely fought all of the way and the lead changed hands 16 different times.

The Savages were behind by a score of 43-37 at halftime. The Loggers went ahead to stay when the clock read 12:31 of the second half. UPS was led by Bob Ablesett and Bob Sprague with 20 points each.

Jim Tutton led the losers with 17 and Joe Allen had 15 while Vince Jarvis ended up with 13.

Savages Suffer Double Loss In Final Homestand

Eastern's Savages dropped their sixth conference basketball game Friday night to the Wildcats of Central Washington State college 89-75 in Memorial Fieldhouse. The loss gave the Savages the loss. At one time during the first period the Savages had a 14 point lead and had a comfortable 12 point edge at halftime. Eastern built up their halftime edge by shooting a remarkable 64% from the floor during the first half. The Wildcats were only able to hit 40% of their field goal attempts during the first half.

Constitution Amendments

It seems that every two years the current constitution is found inadequate and its powers deemed necessary. The procedures or rules by the introduction of a better method. When this decision is made in student government, it is necessary to amend the existing group to the maximum of four representatives from the living groups to the Associated Student Council shall consist of the President, Executive Vice-President, Activities Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the Associated Student Council. The executive committee, in turn, represents the Freshman class: representatives from the living groups as recognized and defined by the Associated Student Council.

The number of representatives from the living groups to the Associated Student Council will be determined according to the following percentage of the on-campus living groups and associated student groups in residence in the on-campus living groups in accordance with the following scales which consist of the main amendment as stated in Item 3, Section 2, Article II.

3. Voting group representation to the Associated Student Council shall be proportioned in accordance with the following scales which consist of the maximum of one representative but restrict any living group to the maximum of four representatives:

- 0-200—One seat on Council.
- 201-400—Two seats on Council.
- 401-700—Three seats on Council.
- 701 and over—Four seats on Council.

Article X Amendment

Delegation of Section 2 and item 1 of section 3 concerning the representatives-at-large and the enumeration of the recognized living groups as of Jan. 1, 1964. The insertion of a new section 2: 1. The provisions provided for at yourself, cannot go unchallenged. First, you mentioned that even if opposed to NSA because of its concentration on national and international issues instead of campus affairs, I am not opposed to student expression in the national interest, and national and international students should be concerned here.

I am opposed, however, to NSA's claim to speak for the national student community when only 10% of colleges and universities eligible for NSA membership participate at the NSA congress and vote without first consulting campus opinion on national and international issues. Secondly, very little time is spent on matters pertaining to campus government, certainly the most important services that should be offered.

You also raised the question that disassociation with NSA would constitute isolationism. I would answer that because of its scope, no college can be academically isolated. When the scores of colleges that have disaffiliated from NSA plus the 85% which remain members, are grouped to assess participation, NSA membership may be said to have become truly international. However, the issue of NSA should not be considered as a test of competency or incompetence on the part of the NSA campus organization, which apparently have little to lose for American universities eligible for NSA membership participate at the Eastern Student Congress, February 15. Representative is from Washington State University, Central Washington University, Pacific Lutheran University, Western Washington University, Whitworth College, Whitman College Community Colleges and WSAC will attend.

opinion is desirable fine—but remove NSA from an American Three Party political role. Larry, in trying to keep this letter brief, I would like quickly to answer a few points. You state that probably the petition is a promotional move, I find it very deceptive. It seems that the employment of labels to movements that are both popular and convenient tool in combating any issue. It is equally further aided from your inventive that the most effective tool the campus NSA opposition would like in removing Eastern from NSA would be to associate Robert Welch as an ardent supporter of NSA. Supposedly the students who are then rally and defeat heavily any measure associated with one like him. Really Larry!

Lastly, you raise the question that the NSA coordinator is much at fault. Your charge, I know, is certainly not vindictive, and criticism is easy and certainly helpful. However, the issue of NSA should not be considered as a test of competency or incompetence on the part of the NSA coordinator, which apparently have little to lose for American universities eligible for NSA membership participate at the campus congress, February 15. Representative is from Washington State University, Central Washington University, Pacific Lutheran University, Western Washington University, Whitworth College, Whitman College Community Colleges and WSAC will attend.

ECONOMICS CAN BE CHUCKLES

Many of you have been avoiding economies because it is so widely known as "the dismal science." Oh, good friends, stop cheating yourselves of so much a laugh and cheer, because economics is a positive red! True, it is called the dismal science, but that is only it was invented in 1861 by Walter C. Dorn.

It is easy to understand why Mr. Dismal's discovery of economics is today almost forgotten, for the fact is that he himself only stayed with the subject for two or three days. After that he took up endomorph, which means fatness. It is said that at his expected weight, Dismal reached 200 pounds. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.

It was not until 1776 when Adam Smith published his Wealth of Nations (or, as it is usually known) that the world came to realize what a witty, funny subject economics is. As Mr. Smith showed in his little treatise, there is nothing complicated about economics.

When there is a great demand for a product, a great supply is placed on the market. When there is a small demand, there is a small supply. Take, for example, castanets. You walk into any average dance town to find castanets. If you won't see more than eighty or ninety castanets shops. That is because the demand is small.

For Marlboro Cigarettes, on the other hand, the demand is great. Thus, you will find Marlboros—with all their yummy rich tobacco flavor and pure white Selecticate filter and phable soft peck and straight—anywhere you look, and Marlboro cigarettes are sold in every one of our fifty great States and Duluth.

To Adam Smith, I say, belongs the distinction of popularizing economics. Mr. Smith was followed by David Ricardo. In fact, everywhere he went he was followed by David Ricardo. Mr. Smith finally got so annoyed that he summoned a bobby, as British policemen are called, and had Mr. Ricardo arrested. This later became known as the Lancashire Purchase.

Upon his mission from grease, as a British jail is called, Mr. Ricardo reported to his parole officer, Thomas Robert Malthus. They soon became fast friends, and one night over a game of what they invented the stock exchange, or chutney, as it is called in England.

Well sit, with the British having, you might say, a corner on economies, the French decided that they wanted some economies too. Being, however, a proud nation, they refused simply to borrow British economies, but insisted on inventing their own. At first they tried using the traffic island as a medium of exchange. When this proved less than satisfactory, they switched to pomades. Discouraged by this second disappointment, they finally shrugged and said, "Oh, who cares about economies anyhow?" and returned to the guillotine and Maurice Chevalier.

America, I am pleased to report, had much better success with economies. Our early merchants quickly broke down economies into its two major categories—useful for your money—and today, as a result of their wisdom, we can all enjoy the automatic toll stations.
