"Red" To Retire This Year

Retirement Plans Signal Finale For "Red" Reese

Thirty-two years at the helm of Eastern athletic teams was climaxed last week by the announced retirement of William Bryan (Red) Reese.

Reese, coined the "Red Fox", gained acclaim across the nation as one of the winningest basketball coaches in the nation.

During his career "Red" has not only coached basketball, but football and track as well. Before coming to Eastern in 1930, he coached at Cashmere High School in 1925 and at North Central High School in Spokane. In all, he has coached over 850 basketball encounters.

Asked about the highlight of his coaching career, Reese stated that it came in 1945-46 when his team captured 27 straight wins and a Conference championship. He has also attained a record which few coaches achieve in their coaching careers; during his 1959-60 season he won his 500th game. The 500th victory came on February 19th, 1960 against the Whitworth Pirates.

"Winning the 500th didn't seem any different than winning the first, tenth, or the one-hundredth", said Reese.

"So many of the boys made it possible, especially the boys that season."

Aside from his coaching career, Reese has held many positions of significant importance. In 1952-53 he served as president of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Prior to this he served on the NAIA Council from its beginning. He was one of the founders of the Evergreen Conference, one of the finest small college conferences in the nation.

Reese has coached several hundred players and has seen many of them go on to achieve fame in their own right. He has kept a record of where his players have been employed in recent years.

There are some 85 to 100 of them coaching in the state of Washington alone with many others coaching in the surrounding states. Many others have gone on to be teachers, school superintendents, and businessmen. In his all-star roll call can be found such greats as Irv Leifer, who was a Helms Foundation All-American and the most valuable player in the NAIA tournament.

Besides his accomplishments in the field of basketball, "Red" has also established an outstanding record in the field of track. In the Evergreen Conference Eastern holds seven of the fifteen conference records, including the mile run, 440 yard run, 100 yard dash, high hurdles, 880 yard run, 220 yard run, the mile relay team and the pole vault.

When asked about his plans for the future "Red" was not definite. He did mention that he and his wife, Carmen, are thinking of attending the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

William (Red) Reese has contributed much to the field of physical education and athletics at Eastern and in the interim has made for himself a fine record—seldom attained by coaches of today.

Although the imprint on Eastern athletics will have a lasting effect, the departure of the man and his ideals will be a definite loss to all those closely associated with Eastern.

A Report-In-Depth

Eye-Witness Report On Red China Will Be Presented By Britisher

A first-hand, eye-witness report on Red China will be presented by Felix Greene, a seasoned observer of the international scene, in a talk here Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in Showalter auditorium.

Greene is a British-born businessman now living in California where he directed an importing company. Twice in the past three years he has traveled widely over the mainland of China to bring back a "report-in-depth" of what China is really like today, a report detailed at length in his new book, "Awakened China."

American lecture audiences got their first authentic glimpse into China under Communist rule in 1937 when Greene appeared before them. Three years later he returned to China for over four months, traveling more than 10,000 miles around that vast land by train, bus, plane and riverboat.

He made an extensive study of all sides of Communist life, traveling on his British passport, with the full knowledge of both the British and United States governments. He visited many communes in scattered areas; inspected hospitals, schools, colleges, prisons and courts of law. He spoke with writers and editors; saw the poorest of slums and the best of new housing. He worked with peasants in the fields and ate with them in commune dining halls.

In Peking he interviewed ministers of state and heads of many government departments. Before he left China, he had a private, three-hour interview with Prime Minister Chou-En-lai, the first Western correspondent in many years to have obtained an exclusive interview with one of China's top leaders.

A portion of this historic interview was seen on television in the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Germany, Sweden and many other countries throughout the world.

Greene was told by Chinese officials that he has seen more facets of Chinese life, good and bad, and had interviewed more people than any other observer from the West since Communist rule came to China.

Cadet Capers, Pajama Dance Held Friday

Cadet Capers, the annual AUSA-sponsored talent show will be presented March 6, 8:15 p.m. in Showalter auditorium. A pajama dance in Bali lounge will follow the program.

Chairman of the program, Doug Hudson, described the show as a bold satire on occurrences in history. He added that it was a "mello-drama with a good deal of slapstick comedy."

Groups assisting with the production are ROTC, Sponsor Corps, the music and drama departments and Bachelor's club.

There will be no admission charge.

EWSC Foreign Students To Whitworth Fete

The foreign students of EWSC will be guests at a Cosmopolitan Club meeting of Whitworth College, Monday evening, March 9. Entertainment will be a report on the Congo by two Whitworth graduates who have just returned from the Congo.

Cheney Hospitality Committee members who will furnish cars for the trip are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ratcliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Mossman, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rowles.

Dames Will Hold Annual Style Show

The EWSC chapter of university Dames is presenting its ninth annual style show, "Fashions Galore in '64", on March 5, 1964, at 8:00 p.m. in Louise Anderson Hall Lounge. This year's style show will feature fashions from Sears, hairstyles by Se'lect Coiffure, shoes from Leed's, and flowers from Chet's. The latest styles in suits, coats, sportswear, dresses, cocktail dresses, and formals will be modeled by members of our club. A complete formal wedding ensemble will also be among the clothes shown.

As a special feature, Mrs. Kenneth Kennedy and Mrs. Norman Thompson, faculty wives will also be modeling.

Proceeds from the style show will aid our scholarship fund, which will be presented to a student of Eastern Washington State College.

Professional Education Interviews April 6

There will be interviews for admission into the Professional Education Program on Monday, April 6, for the students in the following two categories:

1. Those transferring to Eastern and are at the point in our professional sequence of needing to enroll in the methods courses.
2. Those who are securing clearances on the basis of having completed certain required courses during winter quarter.

Any students in the above two categories should contact the Admissions secretary in Martin hall before the end of this winter quarter.

John Reed (standing) and Gordy Hill, KEWC news staffers and originators of Ask Any Question, are shown up to their ears in research trying to provide answers to student questions. If you have a question submit it to the campus station and it will be answered at night on KEWC, 665 kcs.

KEWC Offers New Service

M-N-M Sponsors KEWC Service

Ask Any Question, a new campus service, presented by the KEWC news department and sponsored by the M-N-M Drive-in, was introduced Monday on campus. The service provides an opportunity for any student to ask KEWC newsmen any reasonable, intelligent question. Suggested questions might include politics, history, campus events, or social life.

Questions may be phoned in to KEWC, at 359-2228, or left, with your name and address, in boxes provided in the Lobby of the SUB, L.A. Hall, new men's dorm, Senior, Monroe, or the M-N-M Drive-in at 1204 1st Street in Cheney. Answers to selected questions will be aired daily on KEWC at 7:15 a.m., 6:15 p.m. The entire facilities of the KEWC news department are at your service.

"Romeo And Juliet" Star Goes On Despite Fever

"For there never was a story of more woe, than that of Juliet and her Romeo."

That seems to sum up the successful four-night run of "Romeo and Juliet" presented by Eastern's drama department.

The woe applied to more than Shakespeare's tragedy. It applied to the play cast itself.

Thursday afternoon, Toni Haney, who played Juliet, came down with what was thought to be bronchitis.

Mrs. Ann Burr, wife of Mr. David Burr, director of the play, was taking Toni to the hospital when they were involved in a non-injury auto accident.

Another car took Toni on to the doctor's. No one at that time was sure if she could go on.

At 6:00 it was decided that she would perform, but if her temperature went over 102 degrees they would stop the play.

Though she played the entire night's show with a temperature of 100 degrees, she did manage to finish the performance.

She felt much better on Friday and the remaining performances went with comparatively little trouble.

Director David Burr said Friday, "I thought the show itself went excellently and she (Toni) deserves all the credit you can give her. It took great courage to go on with a fever like that."

"I told the entire cast to be ready for anything," he continued, "as we didn't know what might happen."

Rod Thompson, who played

Romeo, said "What impressed me was her having the 'guts' to stick it out while knowing that she might faint at any moment."

"The rest of the cast deserves special credit, too, for working with her and doing such a great job."

"The way in which she conducted herself under the circumstances is quite tremendous."

True to the traditions of the theatre, "the show must go on", the entire cast went on to deliver the slated number of performances.

They now begin work on the play for next quarter, "A Servant of Two Masters."

Hawaiian Club Begins Here

Native Hawaiians have started a club on campus, dubbing themselves, "Friends of Hawaii."

Recently elected officers include: Alii Kane, president; Gerald DeMello, vice president; Gail Kuanioti, vice president; Ruby Pang, corresponding secretary; Patricia Teshima, recording secretary and Robert Takahashi, treasurer.

The club has 18 charter members. Judo lessons are the current project with other Hawaiian activities planned to follow.

Membership is open to interested students.

NSA Committee Sets Policies

Eastern's N.S.A. committee met last Thursday night for re-organization and re-newed frontiers with Bud Droke as newly appointed co-ordinator.

The re-organization move included appointments to sub-committees, sending a letter to N.S.A. headquarters, and inviting Mr. William Kidd as committee advisor. Steve Powell was appointed as Chairman of Koffee Korner in which he would contact Dr. Morice Bryant, and obtain a movie entitled "Red China Outlaw" for future Koffee Korner.

Appointments as chairman of communications, open forum and teacher committees were left open.

An idea to invite the YR and YD presidents was voiced by the new coordinator. Droke also emphasized that the N.S.A. meetings are open to all Eastern's students, and that he plans to minimize the regular meetings to 15 minutes, and open them for free discussion afterwards. The open discussions would concern some subject or aspect of N.S.A.

The co-ordinator also suggested sending for the Y.A.F. (Young Americans for Freedom) report for use by the committee.

State Senator To Visit Here

John L. Cooney, 5th district Democratic State Senator, will visit the Eastern Washington State campus in Cheney Wednesday, March 4, afternoon. He will talk to a group of students who are his constituents.

What's Wrong

Last week The Easterner failed to execute one of its primary responsibilities; it failed to print any information on a campus project of qualified priority.

This, in itself, was an act which demanded and received retribution. But more than this it made me acutely aware that few, if any, individuals outside The Easterner complex are even remotely aware of what our paper's duties and functions are. During my term as The Easterner's editor, I have subscribed to the Social Responsibility theory of the press as it applies to our college. Briefly this theory consists of five basic functions, which are:

1. A truthful, comprehensive, intelligent account of the day's events in a context which gives them meaning.
2. A forum for the exchange of comments and criticism.
3. The projection of a representative picture of the constituent groups in the society.
4. The presentation and clarification of the goals and value of the society.
5. Full access to the day's intelligence.

Unfortunately, an overwhelming majority of my fellow students, faculty members, and administrators subscribe to the Libertarian theory. In practice, this sort of freedom means leaving the student editor alone until he prints or omit something which offends someone else. Then he is immediately called to the carpet for an "interpretation of the best interests of the college." This theory, because of its very nature, also encourages the student editor to print objectionable material as a test or assertion of his own freedom.

Contrary to what some believe, I violently oppose the Libertarian theory which advocates the freedom—as someone once phrased it—to "print what I damned well please."

I do not feel I have abused either theory.

Most college newspapers, and ours is no exception, are legally published by the president of the college, despite intervening boards and committees. This means, in effect, that as The Easterner's editor, I have absolutely no constitutional rights other than those extended to me by our president. I like to think that because the president has never called me to answer for any of my actions as editor our fundamental philosophies of the "student press" closely align.

However, until those completely ignorant of the goals and theories of a responsible student newspaper are enlightened beyond the scope of their own selfish interests, neither theory will ever come to pass on our campus.

And The Easterner will become a tool for accomplishing administrative and faculty whims.

Cultural Coverage

It has come to our attention this week that Dr. George Lotzenhiser, head of the "Division of Creative Arts, has been dissatisfied with the amount of coverage given his division and the programs sponsored by it this year. We ran a little study to determine the exact amount of space actually given to Creative Arts.

The total amount was 800 column inches—several times the amount given to any other division. This space was provided at no cost to the Division of Creative Arts.

Danforth Prof To Discuss Architecture

"Architecture as an Art Form: will be the topic of a convocation address by Victor Christ-Janer, visiting Danforth Lecturer, Friday at 8:30 a.m. in the Hall of Sciences auditorium.

Christ-Janer's background and training includes sculpture and painting as well as architecture. He has studied all three professions at Yale University, and during World War II served in the Army Department of Engineers and Military Intelligence in the European Theater.

The practice of Christ-Janer's firm, which has seven associate staff members, is varied in its scope and geographic location. In academic circles it is known for its effort in experimental structures, and it also enjoys a respectable position among those which are attempting leadership in the contemporary view.

The work of the firm has been published in L'Architecture d'Aujourd'hui, Bauwelt, Vitrum, Architectural Forum, Architectural Record, Fortune and the AIA Journal. In 1961 Christ-Janer received the American Institute of Architecture Award of Merit for his firm's work in the field of college architecture.

Christ-Janer has a continued interest in education, and holds the position of associate professor at Columbia University where he teaches design in the graduate department of architecture. He has served as visiting critic at Yale and at Columbia, and has been a guest lecturer at various architectural schools in New England.

He will also speak to EWSC humanities classes. His talks are open to the public without charge.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Winter quarter DEAD WEEK begins 6:00 p.m., Wednesday, March 11. Traditionally during Dead Week clubs and organizations do not hold meetings in order that their membership may concentrate on academic endeavors. Exceptions can be made by making arrangements directly with the Office of the Dean of Students for meetings between March 11 and the last day of the quarter, March 20. It should be noted, however, that it is not mandatory for the membership to attend meetings requested during Dead Week.

President To Regional Meet

Dr. Don S. Patterson, Eastern Washington State College president, is representing the Higher Commission of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools at a meeting of the regional accrediting associations being held this week in Washington, D.C.

Reward

Dear Sir,

Last Saturday, February 22, a Case tractor was stolen from the New Men's Dorm. The orange and yellow miniature Case tractor belongs to Dave, a five year old boy. It was a Christmas present. Dave's father, Mr. Logan, director of the dorm is offering a $5 reward for the tractor. Let's try to help out little Dave by looking for his tractor.

Sincerely,
Tony White

Tiger Tony

Dear Sir:

We have chosen the students who will lead our student government in the year to come. The interest shown in this election was great, we had 48 per cent of the student body voting. The best percentage ever accomplished at Eastern. The students who voted protected the rights of all students at Eastern. The responsible citizens have shown they care what happens to their rights and to nearly $200,000 allotted to student government.

But what of the 52 percent that did not care to voice an opinion. Were they too busy to take five minutes and vote? Can it be said that these people have proven they will be responsible citizens in the future. We hear a lot of talk of how shameful it is in our national elections that such a small percentage vote. Other countries envy your freedoms and cannot believe that we take so much for granted.

We have heard from many that the new young generation of Americans will take the responsibility of voting. Well let's hope they are right and they are not judging by Eastern's election. We have shown that 52 per cent are just like the older generation—apathetic. We have two more elections soon for both A.W.S. and A.M.S. Let's see everyone at the polls.

Sincerely,
Tony White

Policy Problems

Revised Policy Will Be Followed By Women's Dean

The Easterner of February 5 carried a story dealing with the "mother" role played by student counselors at many institutions of higher learning. In an efforts to assess the extent of this conflict of roles at EWSC, The Easterner printed a policy statement from the Dean of Students, Daryl Hagie, and the Dean of Women, Virginia Dressler.

In the following communication addressed to The Easterner, Mrs. Dressler makes known her intention of departing from the policy statement she followed at that time.

"A few weeks ago I was quoted in The Eastern as follows: 'If we learn that a white girl or boy is dating a colored girl or boy, we call them in and advise them of the serious repercussions that could result in the future from their actions. We advise them that their parents should be aware of their activities. However, we under no circumstances instruct them not to see each other. This is not a discriminating practice, in that if it came to my attention that a girl was going with an unsuitable young man, depending on the circumstances, I would discuss it with her along the same lines; that is . . . does her family know about her relationship?' It has been called to my attention that my policy of asking students of different races who are dating to come to my office for counseling is wrong action for an administrator in a public institution.

"In instances of this kind, I considered I was carrying out one of my responsibilities, that is pointing out possible problem areas to students, when they came to my attention. After serious review, I have concluded that it is not my responsibility to question action of students unless it is a violation of institution policy or regulations. There is no valid reason for me to interfere in students' personal activities if this is not the case. Labeling students' dating choices as "suitable" or "unsuitable" is also not my responsibility. I regret that my statement has been construed to prolong racial prejudice even in a small way.

"I believe that guidance personnel working with college-age students in a public institution best serve them by being available for help when the students want it. I hope that students feel free to come to my office for advice with any concerns they may have and wish to share with me."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Manual Arts Class Active In Lab Study

The Manual Arts Therapy class taught by Mr. Orland B. Killin has been taking full advantage of extended laboratory study this quarter. They have observed and studied the Manual Arts Therapy program at Medical Lake and have a laboratory field trip arranged to visit the Veteran's Hospital Manual Arts Therapy program at Walla Walla, February 27. Mr. Kenneth Burdick, one of Eastern's Industrial Arts Majors, with a special emphasis in Manual Arts Therapy, is currently employed at the Veteran's Hospital in Walla Walla. He will assist in helping the class study the entire range of Manual Arts Therapy work at the Veteran's Hospital.

Mr. Killin has also arranged to have the class visit the Technical Crafts classes at the State Prison in Walla Walla. Some of the older and more experienced Industrial Arts majors are able to teach and assist with the Manual Arts Therapy program through these classes.

Arrangements are also being made to visit some special Manual Arts Therapy classes in Spokane. In addition to these extra laboratory experiences, the Manual Arts Therapy students experience the regularly scheduled classwork in Mr. Killin's laboratory here at Eastern.

Sprague Earns State B Crown

In a near fairy-tale finish, Sprague High School defeated the poised and methodical Reardan Indians 43-35. The win gave the Sprague quintet the Northeast District Class B High School Tournament Title Saturday night in the fieldhouse.

The upstart Sprague outfit, rated only as an after thought in the state rankings, were never headed as they jumped off to a 14-9 halftime advantage, and went on to post the title victory in a convincing manner.

The four-day tourney decided four berths in next week's state tournament in Spokane. Joining Sprague, and Reardan, are Harrington and Liberty High who finished third and fourth respectively.

EWSC Foreign Students To Give Talks

Mr. Sal Mardini, a foreign student from Chile and an assistant in the Spanish program at EWSC, and Mr. Pat McClelland, a foreign student from Chile, will give a program of Chilean folk songs at a Delta Kappa Gamma luncheon in Spokane, March 7. The occasion is a joint meeting of Alpha Kappa Chapter and Alpha Eta Chapter of Stevens County to be held at the Gay 90's Restaurant.

Mrs. Wade A. Moore of Cusick, Washington, an alumna of EWSC is in charge of the program.

Mr. W. L. Rowles, former head of EWSC Music Department, will accompany the boys to the luncheon.

Debaters To Linfield College

Eastern Washington State College will enter seven students in the 34th annual Tournament of Champions debates at Linfield College, McMinnville, Ore., starting Thursday (March 5).

Five students are the EWSC entrants. They are Alan C. Acock, Andrew H. Carnahan, William B. Droke, Dan Andrews and Sharon Moses.

The debate tournament is expected to draw 1,000 students from the 11 Western states, Howard Hopf, EWSC debate coach said.

Research Results Will Be Published

An EWSC professor's research work results have been accepted for publication in "Northwest Science."

Dr. Marion Bacon, Associate Professor of Biology, co-authored the article with his wife on the "Distribution of Siphonaptera (fleas) on wild rabbits of eastern and central Washington."

The couple collected the data for this research paper as a part of a study at WSU. The present paper concludes a series of 11 articles published since 1955 on wild animals of eastern Washington, their diseases and parasites.

Dr. Bacon said, "Because of the large number of fleas occasionally found upon cottontail rabbits in Washington, the possibility that they could sometimes be vectors of Bubonic plague should not be discredited."

Speech, Hearing Assoc. To Meet Here Saturday

EWSC will host the spring meeting of the Inland Empire Speech and Hearing Association Saturday.

More than 60 speech correctionists from Eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana and a number of advanced college students are expected, Dr. Dorvan Breitenfeldt, head of the EWSC speech and hearing clinic, said.

IESHA is a new organization formed only last spring by the speech therapists of the Inland Empire. Its purpose is to further the profession by providing an opportunity for those actively engaged in this work, as well as those who may be interested for other reasons, to meet and share ideas; to learn of current advances in therapy techniques; and generally to be "recharged" by the intellectual and social exchange that takes place among people of similar interests, Dr. Breitenfeldt said.

The Saturday program, starting at 9 a.m., will include talks by Mrs. Jo Deeter Watts, principal of Spokane's Davis School of the Acoustically Handicapped, who will speak on "Lip Reading," and Jack Arts, former executive director of the Seattle Hearing and Speech Center, speaking on "Audiology in the Field."

Among speech corrections attending will be Richard Reams, head speech correctionist of Spokane School District 81 and 11 members of his staff; Dr. Fred Stanton, director of the speech department, Gonzaga University; Mrs. Ella Erway, speech and drama department faculty member, Whitworth College; Dr. James R. McDearman, director of the Washington State University speech and hearing clinic.

Pine League Girls Gain Championship

Eastern girls won the Pine League basketball championship recently with a perfect record in league play. They gained the title with an easy victory over Gonzaga's female hoopsters.

This is the second year in a row that the girls have captured the league crown with a perfect undefeated season.

Valerie Ho, a sharp-shooting junior, paced the ladies throughout the season with her driving play and floor leadership.

Virginia Asan coached the girls and happens to be the only coach at Eastern that has recorded a perfect season (two in-a-row) in the last two years.

Last week-end the girls competed in an invitational meet at the University of British Columbia at Vancouver, B.C.

Music Grants Will Be Given

Top musical talent from colleges, universities and high schools throughout the Pacific Northwest will appear at the first annual Portland Rose Music Festival at the Memorial Coliseum in Portland, June 10, 11 and 12.

Any high school, college or university band, choir, orchestra or stage band in Oregon, Washington or Idaho is eligible to appear on one of the evening programs, provided it is accepted on the basis of its performance tape.

Musical numbers will be presented in two principal categories: choral and instrumental groups and individual singers and instrumentalists.

Individual $400 scholarships will be awarded in several different categories. Awards will be payable to the college or university of the winner's choice for further study in his chosen field.

Individual entrants should send entries to the Portland Rose Festival Association, Hilton Hotel, Portland, not later than May 1, 1964.

A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

With the Commencement Day just a couple of short months away, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors?" Everybody is asking it; I mean everybody! I mean I haven't been able to walk ten feet on any campus without somebody grabs my elbow and says, "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors, hey?"

This, I must say, is not the usual question asked by collegians who grab my elbow. Ordinarily they say, "Hey, Shorty, got a Marlboro?" And this is fitting. After all, are they not collegians and therefore loaded with brains? And does not intelligence demand the tastiest in tobacco flavor? And does not Marlboro deliver a flavor that is uniquely delicious? And am I not short?

But I digress. Back to the colored hoods of academic robes. A doctor of philosophy wears blue, a doctor of medicine wears green, a master of arts wears white, a doctor of humanities wears crimson, a master of library science wears lemon yellow. Why? Why, for example, should a master of library science wear lemon yellow?

Well sir, to answer this vexing question, we must go back to March 14, 1844. On that date the first public library in the United States was established by Ulrich Sigafos. All of Mr. Sigafos's neighbors were of course wildly grateful—all, that is, except Wrex Todhunter.

Mr. Todhunter had hated Mr. Sigafos since 1822 when both men had wooed the beautiful Melanie Zitt and Melanie had chosen Mr. Sigafos because she was mad for dancing and Mr. Sigafos knew all the latest steps—like the Missouri Compromise Samba, the Shays' Rebellion Schottische, and the James K. Polk Polka—while Mr. Todhunter, alas, could not dance at all, owing to a wound he had received at the Battle of New Orleans. (He was struck by a falling praline.)

Consumed with jealousy at the success of Mr. Sigafos's library, Mr. Todhunter resolved to open a competing library. This he did, but he lured not one single patron away from Mr. Sigafos. "What has Mr. Sigafos got that I have not?" Mr. Todhunter kept asking himself, and finally the answer came to him: books.

So Mr. Todhunter stocked his library with lots of lovely books, and soon he was doing more business than his hated rival. But Mr. Sigafos struck back. To regain his clientele, he began serving tea at his library every afternoon. Thereupon Mr. Todhunter, not to be outdone, began serving tea with sugar. Thereupon Mr. Sigafos began serving tea with sugar and cream. Thereupon Mr. Todhunter began serving tea with sugar and cream and lemon.

This, of course, clinched the victory for Mr. Todhunter because he had the only lemon tree in town—in fact, in the entire state of Maine—and since that day lemon yellow has, of course, been the color on the robes of masters of library science.

(Incidentally, the defeated Mr. Sigafos packed up his library and moved to California where, alas, he failed once more. There were, to be sure, plenty of lemons to serve with his tea, but, alas, there was no cream because the cow was not introduced to California until 1937 by John Wayne.)

Canadian Ballet Troupe Here Sunday

Pictured above is a scene from the "Graduation Ball" which has been added to the repertoire of Les Grands Ballets Canadiens for the 1963-64 season. The cast of over 50 will present a single performance on Eastern's campus this Sunday.

An added attraction of the EWSC Artist Series, Les Grande Ballets Canadiens, will be presented in a matinee performance Sunday (March 8) afternoon.

The program at 2:15 p.m. will be in Showalter Auditorium. Tickets will be available at the door.

Canada's youngest ballet company, Les Grands Ballets Canadiens of Montreal is now engaged in the most ambitious season of its remarkable career. Performing throughout Canada and the United States for the third successive year, the troupe now comprises 30 young dancers and with its expanded repertory is expected to gather new laurels for its crown.

Laurels are no novelty to this exciting troupe which has acquired them steadily since its first burst upon the public view in a coast-to-coast television performance in 1952. The first tour of Canada followed that eventful telecast and "remarkable, captivating" and "superb" are a few of the most common terms applied to the company by critics everywhere.

Les Grands Ballets Canadiens was founded by Mme. Ludmilla Chiriaeff, eminent ballerina who had long believed that an emerging cultural capital like Montreal deserved its own ballet company. With top students from her ballet academy plus Canadian dancers attracted to the project from other cities and from abroad, she began with a company of 16.

Today the company is progressive in every sense of the word. Its repertory includes established works, re-interpreted ballets from Canadian folklore and brilliant new creations set to music by Canadian composers as well as by the masters.

As artistic director of the company, Mme. Chiriaeff continues her successful policy of combining the talents of newcomers with stars of international repute. Besides bringing well-known dancers into the company, she has for several seasons shared the choreography honors with leading dancer, Eric Hyrst, and with outstanding artists like David Lichine who this year staged his ballet "Graduation Ball" with the company.

This year, Mme. Chiriaeff has also obtained the services of the distinguished international ballet master, teacher and choreographer, Daniel Seillier, formerly with the San Carlos Opera Company in Lisbon and for many years ballet master of the Marquis de Cuevas Ballet in Paris.

The company's repertory and its performers comprise an exciting blending of classic and modern, the famous and the newcomers.

A new ballet called "Homage," set to music by Tchaikovsky with choreography by Eric Hyrst, is in the Imperial style. When it was first performed this year the leading role was danced by Rosella Hightower, "prima ballerina assoluta," who came from France to dance with the company.

The company's repertory also includes its popular "Pas de Deux" from "Suite Canadienne," a ballet prepared for Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II during her visit to Canada in 1958. Music is by Michael Perrault and choreography by Mme. Chiriaeff.

The bright, gay ballet "Graduation Ball is one of the important works which have been added this year to the repertoire of Les Grands Ballets Canadiens. David Lichine, internationally famous choreographer, who first created the ballet in 1940 with the original Ballet Russe, came to Montreal from Hollywood to stage it with the company.

Pre-Student Teaching Program Pays Students In Experience And Wages

By Carol Foss

A new kind of teaching experience in a new kind of high school is now available to Eastern students.

Under a program begun last fall at Joel E. Ferris High School in Spokane, students receive pay while gaining valuable experience as teaching assistants. In a job prior to cadet teaching, they perform such duties as correcting test papers, supervising study sessions, and taking roll. While they do not have direct responsibility for preparing lessons, they do enjoy a great deal of personal contact with both pupils and teachers.

An experiment in themselves, these teaching assistants are part of an even larger experiment in education. The program has been started at Ferris High School because its system is peculiarly arranged. Ferris operates on a concept new to this area of the United States, in which students are given more freedom and responsibility than they would have under normal circumstances.

Rather than the regular hour-long sessions, classes at Ferris are broken up into 15-minute periods, called modules. Though most classes last from four to six modules, students often have breaks between classes. Students who have demonstrated that they can handle the responsibility are issued "honor passes" for these breaks. With these passes, they are permitted to go any place in the building in order to study or read. There are no bells at Ferris; the student merely gets up over.

The building at Ferris is completely different in itself. It is built on the campus plan with separate buildings for each division of study. That is, there is a science building, a humanities building, a library, etc. Ferris contains 50 acres, EWSC 55.

In developing the program at Ferris, the administration found that it needed more help. Therefore, the district set aside money to employ college students as teaching assistants. The idea was adopted from a program used in the Midwest where the college students are taken as freshmen and serve as "interns" until they graduate. At Ferris the plan is to get these people as juniors so that they can see how a school runs and then have them back as cadet teachers. At present, Eastern has two teaching assistants at Ferris: William Rogers, who is a junior, and Billie Niemeyer, who is a senior and will be doing her cadet teaching at Ferris next quarter.

The purpose of the program is to provide these students with background experiences and to help the teachers. The assistants receive $116 a quarter for their work (the estimated cost of tuition, fees, and travel). Generally, they arrange their schedules so that they have either the mornings or the afternoons free to work.

The teaching assistants at Ferris now praise the program highly. Says William Rogers, "I've been out of high school a long time and I didn't realize how different it is. It gives you quite a jolt sometimes." He feels that the contact with the students now has him prepared for his cadet teaching later.

Speaking of the work they do in preparing materials for the classroom, Billie Niemeyer says, "It's very good background experience. I get a little background experience in working with students. I'm also getting ideas on making up tests, etc." She adds that she will probably be "a little more confident" when she does her student teaching in the spring.

Principal Arthur Blauert feels that the program offers them "a wide variety of experience. We would like to see the college either give credit for it or a waiver of tuition," he continues. "They won't get rich on what we pay them."

The pay, however, doesn't seem to be of major concern to those in the program. "I wouldn't trade this job for anything I could do part time," says William Rogers. "A part-time job, but it isn't worth it."

The teaching assistants enjoy a casual relationship with the teachers. "We give them suggestions," says Bill. "If they're good suggestions, they go along with them. It's close to equality but not quite."

Mrs. W. T. McLaughlin, who supervises the assistants and gives them their work feels that "it's working out very well. I think these two people are doing a very good job and the teachers are glad to have them. I would think that we would be some help to those people too. I would think they would be learning quite a bit about a school system."

Ken Pointer, who was the first teaching assistant at Ferris and is now doing his student teaching at North Central High School in Spokane, says, "It was a very valuable experience. I got familiar with the ways of the school again, and I think I had an advantage on the material."

Ken also believes that he was better able to work with other teachers as a result of his job last fall. "It gave me a little more on teachers themselves," he says. "I feel more at ease with the faculty now."

Next quarter the number of teaching assistants at Ferris will be increased from two to four. Dr. Roland Lewis, head of the education department, is now in the process of looking for people to fill these positions. Those who are interested must have a recommendation from their major department, an interview with Dr. Lewis, and must be accepted by the principal of the high school. There are no set requirements, but students should have completed and grades consisting mostly of B's or better in the major field.
